Voters to Have Say on College

Board of Supervisors Authorizes Poll By 17-15 Vote for November Election

The voters of Ulster County will determine at the general election next November whether a Community College shall be established in the county.

By a vote of 17 to 15 the board of supervisors authorized the referendum at a special meeting held Thursday for the purpose of acting on establishment of a Community College.

Voting for the resolution offered by Supervisor Roy Webber (R), Marbletown, were all sixteen Republican supervisors present and Supervisor Joseph J. Turck (D), fourth ward. Fifteen Democratic supervisors voted against the Webber resolution. Supervisor James A. Rapp (R), first ward was absent due to illness.

Program Report Made

The Webber resolution to submit the question of establishment of a Community College to referendum at the general election on November 7, under provisions of an amendment to Section 6302 of the Education Law, came after a "progress" report on Community College had been presented to the board signed by all members of the Community College Committee.

Those signing the report were Chairman Roy Webber; Alexander Banyo (R) Ulster; Edwin Chase (R), Wawarsing; Abram Molyneaux (R), Woodstock; John J. Gaffney (D), Lloyd, and Roger Mabie (D), Esopus.

The Webber resolution provides that "the form of the proposition shall be determined by this Board of Supervisors and shall include an estimate of the county's share of the initial capital cost and an estimate of the county's share of the annual cost of maintenance and operation."

Three Sites Inspected

In its report the committee stated various sites had been inspected and to date three possible sites had been decided upon for submission to the State Education department.

Just prior to adjournment Supervisor A. Richard Terwilliger (R), Rochester, told the board he had a "verbal" offer Thursday afternoon of a 62-acre site in the Town of Rochester on Route 209 which he said was perhaps more centrally located in the county than were other sites. Until the location is made known to the Community College committee and further information is available, Terwilliger said he could not disclose the location.

Three Sites Named

The report of the College Committee in part stated that the sites in order of their submission to the committee were:

"1. A Fifty acre site, a gift to the County, located in the Town of Ulster off Rt. 32 near the Kingston exit of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, together with a right of way. This site is the subject of a comprehensive engineering report.

"2. A Fifty acre parcel in the Town of Saugerties in the vicinity of the junction of Rt. 32 and Rte. 212 and near the Saugerties Thruway exit, has been offered to the County for College purposes together with necessary rights of way for access and utilities. Engineering reports have been made on this site.

Allies Are Consulted About Laos

Military Action May Be Next Step

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported near the end of its patience today with what officials privately call Communist stalling over a cease-fire in Laos.

President Kennedy has initiated consultations with allied governments and with congressional leaders on what steps may be taken next to prevent more of Laos from falling to Soviet-backed rebel forces.

Next Move Undecided

New action could include U.S. and allied military intervention aimed at halting the rebel offensive. But informed officials said that Kennedy had not decided finally on his next move.

A State Department statement Thursday night declared "real United States concern over the failure of the Pathet Lao rebel forces" to accept a British-Soviet cease-fire call issued last weekend.

Behind this concern was a growing anxiety that the rebel offensive could shortly result in the capture of the royal capital, Luang Prabang, and the administrative capital, Vientiane.

Should rebel successes bring the collapse of the pro-Western Boun Oum government, the ability of the Western powers to deal with the Communist challenge in the Southeast Asian kingdom would be almost disastrously crippled.

Threat to Others

Beyond the immediate threat to Laos, Kennedy administration leaders fear, is a broader threat to South Viet Nam and Thailand. The United States recently gave both countries new assurances of military support as events may require.

In Laos, there was no indication that the Pathet Lao would call off the shooting at noon today. The royal government set that hour for the halt in fighting to become effective.

Before leaving Washington on a speech making trip Kennedy conferred Thursday with congressional leaders. He told them, it was learned, that the situation for pro-Western forces in Laos was deteriorating and that further moves have to be considered seriously.

Discuss Approach

Following this meeting, the State Department issued a statement which said: "Today's discussions have revolved around the question of what the approach of the United States and other nations interested in maintaining the integrity of an independent Laos is to be should the Communist rebels prove completely unwilling to grant a cease-fire and work toward a peaceful solution."

The President also had a session Thursday with the National Security Council.

The cease-fire call was part of a package deal negotiated by Britain and the Soviet Union. Another part of the agreement called for a 14-nation conference to open May 12 at Geneva for the purpose of working out a permanent Laotian settlement. Officials indicated that if the ceasefire was not accepted in fact as well as in theory by the Communist side the United States had no intention of going to the conference.

5 Generals Sent to France

DeGaullists Seize 400 in Vast Purge

ALGIERS (AP)—A vast purge was launched in Algeria today to stamp out the last remnants of rebellion among the military and European civilians. Five generals were sent off to France under arrest and three more military units were ordered dissolved.

A spokesman for the Information Ministry said a roundup of rebellious elements had resulted in 400 arrests. More are expected as President Charles de Gaulle moves swiftly to crush opposition to his policy of self-determination in Algeria.

Other Minor Generals

Among the five generals arrested and secretly sent to France was Gustave Tridon, chief of staff of the gendarmeries in Algeria, a professional who entered the gendarmerie in 1932. He was made a brigadier general only last month. The other four were relatively minor generals.

The spokesman, Jacques Coup de Frejac, said the five generals, five colonels and a navy lieutenant will face trial for the four-day revolt in Algeria.

The spokesman listed military units ordered disbanded as the 14th and 18th Alpine paratroop regiments; and an air force unit formed to fight on the ground.

They are in addition to breaking up the 1st Foreign Legion Parachute Regiment, ordered Thursday. All its officers are prisoners. The regiment was the military backbone of the weekend uprising.

70 Policemen Arrested

The spokesman said sanctions of one kind or another have been taken against 200 officers. Other authorities said 70 policemen in Algiers were among those under arrest.

Coup de Frejac told newsmen three newspapers have been suspended until the investigation is over—Echo D'Alger, Depech Quotidiennce and Derniere Heure. Other sources disclosed that 12 staff members of Radio Algiers were suspended or transferred. A high appeals court judge was suspended.

Gendarme raids turned up 8,250 arms held illegally, the spokesman reported. These were confiscated from right-wing settlers who had them in their homes.

Warrants Out for 3

Coup de Frejac said there still is no news of the whereabouts of three generals who, with now imprisoned Gen. Maurice Challe, led the military coup. They are Andre Zeller, Raoul Salan and Edmond Jouhaud. There is general belief the three still are in Algeria.

Warrants of arrest have been issued for them. Jean Morin, De Gaulle's delegate-general in Algeria, warned that anyone giving them aid or comfort would be guilty of complicity under the French penal code. This applies also to persons who know the whereabouts of the three and do not inform authorities.

FBI Praises Chief Murphy's Efficiency at Testimonial

A man fully qualified to make the observation paid tribute here Thursday night to Robert F. Murphy as an efficient police chief with an efficient department.

Harvey G. Foster, special agent in charge of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was principal speaker at a dinner commemorating Chief Murphy's 25th anniversary as a member of the Kingston Police Department.

More than 300 attended the event in the Governor Clinton Hotel, sponsored by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

Agent Foster commended Chief Murphy as a leader and efficient executive, who advocates training in police work for his officers so that they may have the advantage of modern methods in performing their duties.

Chief Murphy and his force have taken special courses set up by the FBI in various phases of police methods.

Agent Foster said the FBI is glad to have had the opportunity to help train the Kingston policemen, and he complimented them on their interest. The men take the training on their own time indicating that they have a real interest in their jobs.

Col. George F. Chandler, a retired surgeon, and first superintendent of the New York State Police, added his compliments in a brief speech to Chief Murphy and his department.

Mayor Edwin F. Radel welcomed the gathering and noted the presence of Lt. Kenneth Weidenborner, who came from the State Police to supervise reorganization of the local department in 1958.

Man Could Have Survived

Toughest Test Yet, Word on Little Joe

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—The Mercury space capsule underwent its final and most severe unmanned test today with this verdict: A man aboard unquestionably could have survived.

Next week an American astronaut at Cape Canaveral, Fla., will stake his life on that finding.

Little Joe VII, a cluster of eight solid propellant rockets, leaped up from this test station of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at 9:04 a.m. with the 3,000-pound space chamber on its nose.

Fast Recovery

Half an hour later, after a flight that produced stresses even more violent than the extreme conditions that had been planned, the capsule was back on the beach after a parachute-cushioned landing in the sea and fast recovery by a helicopter.

Meantime the vehicle had been blasted loose from the booster by rocket devices intended to save a space flier in case of trouble in the liftoff.

Asked if a man could have lived through it, project manager William M. Bland replied: "Unquestionably."

The aim was to determine whether the equipment would work under the most punishing conditions an astronaut might encounter.

Real Test Tuesday

Next comes the real test—probably next Tuesday—at Cape Canaveral, Fla., with man aboard for a longer ride.

Little Joe VII, consisting of six-solid-propellant rockets, blasted off at 9:04 a.m. from this Virginia Eastern Shore test center. The space chamber with two ballast-filled dummies aboard, rode on the vehicle's nose.

In 30 seconds the rocket lifted the 3,000-pound capsule to about 35,000 feet, where a timing device triggered the escape sequence.

The vehicle at that moment was traveling at about 1,200 miles an hour.

Five Candidates for School Board Are Heard by 150 at Lake Katrine Meeting

Some 150 persons attended the third and final meeting of candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) Thursday evening in the Lake Katrine School — a discussion which was a repeat performance of the first two meetings.

Hugh Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department, was unable to attend because of a prior commitment. Also absent was Mrs. Ruth Clair, a teacher in the Onteora Central School District.

The remaining five candidates made brief statements and spent more than an hour answering a number of questions of considerable diversity and range, some personal, some general, some local.

Participating were Mrs. Edith Case Murphy of Kingston and Robert S. Stedge of the Town of Ulster, supported by the Nonpartisan Nominating Committee; Bernie Singer, a North Front Street businessman; Robert MacKinnon, a Kingston attorney and Howard Mansfield of Tillson. Joseph Benjamin served as moderator.

Mrs. Thomas Maines, president of the Kingston Parent Teacher Association Council (Consolidated) brought greetings to those attending and expressed her appreciation for such a fine turnout of area residents.

Asked if they would abide by the result of any referendum submitted to the voters, all five replied in the affirmative.

In reply to a question, "How does your standard of education compare with the rest of the United States?", Mrs. Murphy said New York State ranked high, perhaps at the top, and that the quality of education in the local school system would, in her opinion, compare favorably with education anywhere.

Stedge indicated that it was his belief that local education was of good quality and would compare well with other districts. MacKinnon said this state would perhaps rate in the top 20 per cent of the nation as a whole, but Singer expressed the view that this state leads only in "dollars spent on each student," and that New York rates about 12th in comparison with other states. Mansfield said it was has impression that the Conant report placed Kingston about 11th among those school systems which were included in the study.

This question was addressed to Mansfield: "You've told us what you're against. What are you for?"

First, he said, he would make sure "that your children will become indoctrinated with honest-to-goodness Americanism. I don't care if they can count above two if they are not good Americans." He said he is against experimenting with curriculums and that sociology, behavioral sciences, psychology, etc., have no place in modern education when this

DR. E. FRANKLIN HALL

Ohio Doctor New Commissioner of Health in Ulster

The appointment of Dr. E. Franklin Hall of Akron, O., as health commissioner for Ulster County was announced today.

Dr. Hall, whose appointment was made known by Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt, president of the Ulster County Board of Health, will assume his new post June 5.

Succeeds Hargrave

The Ohio appointee succeeds Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave who gave up the local post to assume a position with the State Health Department.

Dr. DeWitt said Dr. Hall was recommended for the office of health commissioner of Ulster County by Dr. William R. Donovan, White Plains, regional director of the State Health Department.

Born in Flemingsburg, Ky., Nov. 14, 1922, Dr. Hall received his premedical training at the University of Louisville and his M.D. degree at the University of Louisville School of Medicine in 1951. He interned at Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, and was in private general practice in Paris, Ky., for three years. He received his Master Degree in Public Health at the University of Michigan, June 11, 1960, after five years as health commissioner in Kentucky.

$15,000 in Budget

For the past 10 months Dr. Hall has been Health Commissioner for Summit County General Health District located at Cuyahoga Falls, O. He is married and has two daughters, ages 9 and 13 years.

Ulster County has been without a Health Commissioner since the resignation of Dr. Hargrave. The 1961 county budget provides a $15,000 salary item for commissioner.

FBI Praises Chief Murphy's Efficiency at Testimonial

A man fully qualified to make the observation paid tribute here Thursday night to Robert F. Murphy as an efficient police chief with an efficient department.

Harvey G. Foster, special agent in charge of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was principal speaker at a dinner commemorating Chief Murphy's 25th anniversary as a member of the Kingston Police Department.

More than 300 attended the event in the Governor Clinton Hotel, sponsored by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

Agent Foster commended Chief Murphy as a leader and efficient executive, who advocates training in police work for his officers so that they may have the advantage of modern methods in performing their duties.

Chief Murphy and his force have taken special courses set up by the FBI in various phases of police methods.

Agent Foster said the FBI is glad to have had the opportunity to help train the Kingston policemen, and he complimented them on their interest. The men take the training on their own time indicating that they have a real interest in their jobs.

Col. George F. Chandler, a retired surgeon, and first superintendent of the New York State Police, added his compliments in a brief speech to Chief Murphy and his department.

Mayor Edwin F. Radel welcomed the gathering and noted the presence of Lt. Kenneth Weidenborner, who came from the State Police to supervise reorganization of the local department in 1958.

Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn recalled the days when he and Chief Murphy grew up in the same neighborhood and of the character and ambition he displayed.

Telegrams Read

Dick McCarthy, local newscaster, toastmaster for the dinner, read a number of congratulatory telegrams including those from Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Bernhardt S. Kramer, representative to Congressman

Man Could Have Survived

Toughest Test Yet, Word on Little Joe

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—The Mercury space capsule underwent its final and most severe unmanned test today with this verdict: A man aboard unquestionably could have survived.

Next week an American astronaut at Cape Canaveral, Fla., will stake his life on that finding.

Little Joe VII, a cluster of eight solid propellant rockets, leaped up from this test station of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at 9:04 a.m. with the 3,000-pound space chamber on its nose.

Fast Recovery

Half an hour later, after a flight that produced stresses even more violent than the extreme conditions that had been planned, the capsule was back on the beach after a parachute-cushioned landing in the sea and fast recovery by a helicopter.

Meantime the vehicle had been blasted loose from the booster by rocket devices intended to save a space flier in case of trouble in the liftoff.

Asked if a man could have lived through it, project manager William M. Bland replied: "Unquestionably."

The aim was to determine whether the equipment would work under the most punishing conditions an astronaut might encounter.

Real Test Tuesday

Next comes the real test—probably next Tuesday—at Cape Canaveral, Fla., with man aboard for a longer ride.

Little Joe VII, consisting of six-solid-propellant rockets, blasted off at 9:04 a.m. from this Virginia Eastern Shore test center. The space chamber with two ballast-filled dummies aboard, rode on the vehicle's nose.

In 30 seconds the rocket lifted the 3,000-pound capsule to about 35,000 feet, where a timing device triggered the escape sequence.

The vehicle at that moment was traveling at about 1,200 miles an hour.

Five Candidates for School Board Are Heard by 150 at Lake Katrine Meeting

Some 150 persons attended the third and final meeting of candidates for the Kingston Board of Education (Consolidated) Thursday evening in the Lake Katrine School — a discussion which was a repeat performance of the first two meetings.

Hugh Greer, a member of the Kingston Fire Department, was unable to attend because of a prior commitment. Also absent was Mrs. Ruth Clair, a teacher in the Onteora Central School District.

The remaining five candidates made brief statements and spent more than an hour answering a number of questions of considerable diversity and range, some personal, some general, some local.

Participating were Mrs. Edith Case Murphy of Kingston and Robert S. Stedge of the Town of Ulster, supported by the Nonpartisan Nominating Committee; Bernie Singer, a North Front Street businessman; Robert MacKinnon, a Kingston attorney and Howard Mansfield of Tillson. Joseph Benjamin served as moderator.

Mrs. Thomas Maines, president of the Kingston Parent Teacher Association Council (Consolidated) brought greetings to those attending and expressed her appreciation for such a fine turnout of area residents.

Asked if they would abide by the result of any referendum submitted to the voters, all five replied in the affirmative.

In reply to a question, "How does your standard of education compare with the rest of the United States?", Mrs. Murphy said New York State ranked high, perhaps at the top, and that the quality of education in the local school system would, in her opinion, compare favorably with education anywhere.

Stedge indicated that it was his belief that local education was of good quality and would compare well with other districts. MacKinnon said this state would perhaps rate in the top 20 per cent of the nation as a whole, but Singer expressed the view that this state leads only in "dollars spent on each student," and that New York rates about 12th in comparison with other states. Mansfield said it was has impression that the Conant report placed Kingston about 11th among those school systems which were included in the study.

This question was addressed to Mansfield: "You've told us what you're against. What are you for?"

First, he said, he would make sure "that your children will become indoctrinated with honest-to-goodness Americanism. I don't care if they can count above two if they are not good Americans." He said he is against experimenting with curriculums and that sociology, behavioral sciences, psychology, etc., have no place in modern education when this

Paradox of DeGaulle, France Strange Story

BY TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS — (NEA) — "No one loves De Gaulle except 45 million Frenchmen," a famous French journalist remarked. "And even Frenchmen don't really love De Gaulle until they need him.

"Then they come running like scared children and De Gaulle is always there to incarnate greatness."

This is the paradox of Charles de Gaulle's hold on the nation. France cannot live easily with him or without him. Just now, he is much beloved.

His leadership has saved France from civil war and national disaster. His prestige now is greater than it ever has been. He is regarded with the same awe that Joan of Arc must have inspired. Like Joan, De Gaulle is law unto himself, being above party and class.

And yet, when the present tumult dies, people again will grumble at De Gaulle, ridicule his pretensions to greatness and compare him to King Louis XIV.

De Gaulle's marriage to France is contentious; he appears, like Socrates, to be nagging his wife. One need only watch De Gaulle on television to realize how irritating he can be. It is an extraordinary performance.

He scolds Frenchmen as though they were a nation of errant schoolboys. His lips are pursed petulantly, his eyes blink. He ends by pleading with the nation to be reasonable and behave. Imagine President Kennedy acting similarly.

It is tiresome for the Frenchman, living with the virtuous De Gaulle and being made to feel like a sinner. The temptation is to sin.

But perhaps some change has been wrought by the crisis in Algeria; it seems that De Gaulle has broken through the barrier separating him from the nation.

For nearly three years, De Gaulle virtually has been a prisoner of the army that brought him to power; his hands have been tied regarding the Algerian War settlement. But now, all has changed. The dissident army officers now are his prisoners.

Part of De Gaulle's isolation from the public has been deliberate. He has learned the secret that preserved the British monarchy while other thrones toppled — the leader never should be too accessible; he should be slightly remote and mysterious.

In his memoirs, De Gaulle speaks of the necessity of "keeping oneself methodically at the right height and distance." The opening paragraph of his memoirs contains the key to De Gaulle's philosophy: "France cannot be France without greatness."

So much for De Gaulle, the victor. Now what about the losers, the defeated generals and other officers in Algeria? Is the world to be treated to the spectacle of generals committing mass suicide like a flock of lemmings?

Many of the old school officers loyal to De Gaulle feel this is the only solution for the vanquished. They argue that the honor of the French army must be redeemed, that those who dishonored the flag must commit harikari.

To the outside world, this sounds as anachronistic as duels in Bois de Boulogne at dawn. In some ways, it smacks of comic opera.

But to the French, these affairs are tragic; honor is a very real concept here. Honor and the fatherland are incised on public buildings and sewn on flags.

The defection of so many army officers has struck France the gravest blow since the Nazis entered in 1940. It will take France a long time to recover from this bitter humiliation. A ruthless purge of the officer ranks is indicated.

"The collapse of the Algerian insurrection marks the end of career officers drawn from aristocratic families. They have disgraced themselves in Algiers as badly as they did in the Dreyfus case when they sent an innocent man to Devil's Island for four years," a retired officer said.

So the mutiny is to be followed by purges and perhaps even blood-letting. France has a capacity for self-inflicted wounds.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON SAYS 'READ THE FINE PRINT'

BABSON PARK, Fla., April 28—I believe in insurance—life insurance, fire insurance, accident insurance, and especially in the "Blue Cross" and "Blue Shield." If I were not a statistician, I would be selling insurance.

The 1960 Hurricane

I own property a few miles north of here which got sad treatment from "Donna." I am now down here settling up my losses with the insurance company. These losses were first on the house, which (after some dickering) we agreed would be $400. This included leaks in the roof, windows and screens broken, and other damages. The insurance adjuster finally gave me a check for the damages. When looking at it, I saw it to be for only $300. When I complained he courteously asked: "Have you read the fine print of your policy?" I replied that I had not; but upon doing so I learned that the insurance company can make a deduction of $100. In fact, if the loss had been only $100, I would have received nothing!

I next showed the insurance adjuster where my beautiful palm trees had been torn out. These had cost me $75 or more each. We agreed that my loss on the valuable trees, shrubs, etc. was at least $900. But when I asked for a check to reimburse me, the adjuster inquired if I had read the fine print in my policy which specifically exempted the insurance company from all such losses! But this was not all. I also suffered the loss of fifty feet of concrete wall eight feet high attached to my house. Surely, I expected to be reimbursed for rebuilding this wall; but for the third time the adjuster asked: "Have you read all the fine print?" Upon doing so I found that the fine print on the policy held the insurance company absolutely exempt from responsibility for damages involving the destruction of any walls!

Insurance Companies Not to Blame

It is not the fault of the insurance companies if you and I fail to read "the fine print." Furthermore, if all of these exceptions were not specifically spelled out, the premium which I paid would have had to be much higher. It is the old story: "We cannot have our cake and eat it too." When buying insurance, or real estate, or anything else, we cannot beat the basic laws of mathematics. The only safe way to try and beat an insurance company (or a real estate agent) is to buy when interest rates are high and cash in when they are low.

The same general principle applies to buying stocks. Insurance companies make money by selling umbrellas when the sun is shining. But brokers make money by selling stocks today when everyone wants them. The careful investor will not be fooled by popular demand, which is usually wrong. Write on the cover of your check book:—" 'Come into my parlor,' said the spider to the fly."

What About Insurance Stocks?

As most people are stupid and usually do the wrong thing at the wrong time and never read the fine print, I have decided to invest more money in insurance stocks: life, fire, accident, and casualty. In fact, over the past fifty years the life insurance stocks have done more for investors than any other class of stocks.

All insurance companies are slow in getting started; they cannot pay [illegible] during their early years. They must use their profits for [illegible] reserves. Insurance companies are carefully supervised by state authorities. Yet, everyone is working to help them make money. This includes the doctors, the druggists, the legislators, the fire departments, and the schools. In fact, even President Kennedy with his work to help the need is prolonging life, which greatly helps all life insurance companies. Hence, instead of worrying about "the fine print," I am going to go home to Massachusetts and buy more insurance stocks!

As Spray Manager, Mr. Beak is responsible for the protection and quality of 100,000 bushels of apples grown annually at the Beak and Skiff Apple Farm. Guthion provides the broad protection he wants, and reduces his costs appreciably.

"Guthion cuts our spraying costs by $10,000, gives us superior control of codling moths and leaf rollers"

Says Mr. C. Ronald Beak, Spray Manager, Beak & Skiff Apple Farm, Lafayette, N.Y.

"No more 'crash programs' for each insect... Guthion alone does the whole job"

"Guthion has enabled us to not only reduce our insect control costs from $36,000 to $26,000 annually," reports Mr. Beak, "but we now get sure, constant control with periodic Guthion applications, by commencing our program promptly at petal fall. Before using Guthion, we were spending more and more each year for constant inspections and for special crash sprayings for individual insects, using high concentrates of phosphates and miticides. Guthion has eliminated these worries.

"The all-season dependability of Guthion has saved us both time and money. We have been able to eliminate two or three spray applications each season. It used to require three sprayers to treat our orchard at 10 day intervals. We now do the same job with Guthion with two sprayers and apply at 10 to 15 day intervals.

Guthion controls major pests

"But perhaps the most important consideration of all is the superior, long-lasting effectiveness of Guthion," Mr. Beak says. "For example, we made our last application of Guthion on the equivalent of 2,000 bushels of early McIntosh and Dutchess apples last July 11. Without further protection, they were picked August 15th.

"We did not find a single instance of codling moth or red-banded leaf roller. Aphids were kept at a minimum and mites were reduced to an acceptable incidence level. This same degree of control held true throughout the remainder of the orchard."

Higher grade fruit assured

"The amount of seconds in our crop is lower than at any time in recent years," Mr. Beak reports. "And Guthion gives our trees a better appearance, too. The leaves are greener and healthier . . . and since they supply nutrients to the growing apples, this better appearance is reflected in the quality of the apples themselves."

Higher profits from Guthion

Here's why Guthion means more fruit profits for you. It is the only single insecticide that controls all major fruit pests, all season long. Guthion alone equals or surpasses the control of any complicated combination of chemicals.

Guthion lasts longer, too . . . eliminates worry about special insect build-ups, specific spray timing, and even eliminates between cover sprays. To reduce your spray costs and get better insect control this season, use Guthion. It works!

Higher grade fruit assured

"The amount of seconds in our crop is lower than at any time in recent years," Mr. Beak reports. "And Guthion gives our trees a better appearance, too. The leaves are greener and healthier . . . and since they supply nutrients to the growing apples, this better appearance is reflected in the quality of the apples themselves."

Higher profits from Guthion

Here's why Guthion means more fruit profits for you. It is the only single insecticide that controls all major fruit pests, all season long. Guthion alone equals or surpasses the control of any complicated combination of chemicals.

Guthion lasts longer, too . . . eliminates worry about special insect build-ups, specific spray timing, and even eliminates between cover sprays. To reduce your spray costs and get better insect control this season, use Guthion. It works!

WHY THEY DID IT

When Cuba's Fidel Castro took power less than two and a half years ago, much of the free world hailed what seemed then an authentic revolution.

Today, as new revolutionaries storm his harassed and shaken regime, that sympathy has vanished almost everywhere.

The exceptions may be those numerous quarters in Latin America where any movement taking the label "revolution" is viewed with more than ordinary tolerance.

Among chief reasons observers cite for the turn-about:

Castro quickly proved himself a professional revolutionary incapable of governing, and either connived with or tolerated Communists in his government.

Partly to cloak his inadequacy, he chose the demagogue's cheap route to enhanced support, aggravating U.S.-Cuban relations needlessly and finally making us the scapegoat for all his failures.

Having deliberately exiled Cuba from the U.S. and some Latin lands, he completed the corruption of his revolution by throwing himself wholly into the arms of Moscow and Peiping.

The Cubans in mounting numbers who have shared the world's disillusionment have long been planing a strike at Castro. Why did they choose this time?

Recent rebel comment suggested preparation through sabotage and manufactured chaos might go on for weeks or months. Late accounts indicate, however, that leaders might have decided time was not on their side.

They may have seen peril to their cause in reports of crated Soviet jets at Cuban dockside, of the first Red-trained Cuban jet pilots back from Czechoslovakia.

Steadily, Castro's store of Red arms grew, and these plus training put more backbone in his alleged 300,000-man militia, with its core of 25,000 toughened, last-ditch Fidelistas.

On the other hand, defections from the air force had begun, the navy was stamped untrustworthy by Castro, and even the army was said to be rebel-infiltrated.

Refugees poured from Cuba, fleeing the closer grip of Red tyranny and economic turmoil Castro inflicted on his people after seizing nearly $1 billion in U. S. assets.

The rebels therefore may have tried to pick that strategic hour when an increasingly frustrated, desperate Castro still lacked the military means to convert his desperation into a final snuffing out of Cuba's still vibrant free spirit.

Men everywhere who realize what he has done already to betray that spirit must wish his rebel challengers all success.

A PENALTY OF CHANGE

A recent piece in the London Observer on agricultural industrialization shows how worldwide is the swift change in farming. This revolution in agriculture, to which the Observer refers as the advent of "Mammon—the Agrobusinessman," has brought tremendous increases in production. Mechanization in the field and adding machines in the farm office have reduced the drudgery and guesswork in farming.

This has not lessened the problem of finding a market for the vastly increased output per man. All the same, it is progress. But it is something else, too. It is the end of one of our economy's great stabilizers.

In former times, when things were tough the family farm welcomed home thousands of unemployed from the cities. These returning prodigals knew that as long as they had a few acres to tend their children, though ragged perhaps, would never go hungry; their situation, though agonizing, need never become desperate. Most city families no longer have this backstop.

The family farm once provided true social security for thousands. It was the Treasury's great bulwark against heavy unemployment payments and vast relief spending. It "took up the slack" in a way no longer possible. We have gained a lot, mechanizing our farming. And we have lost something, too.

PRESTIGE

During the 1960 campaign, John Kennedy raised the issue of American prestige. Never before in American history had any candidate for the Presidency based his campaign on the decline of the prestige of his country. It was a sharp blow at the morale of the country.

If the prestige of the United States in 1960 were compared with 1860, the picture would have to be that in 1960 our prestige was higher, but if the standing of this country in the world were compared, say, when Theodore Roosevelt was President with the last years of the Eisenhower Administration, one would have to say that we stood higher in Teddy's day. During the campaign, the debate sounded silly to those who held that prestige is unmeasurable. The Conservatives held that those who possess and use force have prestige and those who turn the other cheek, get slapped twice. Lyndon Johnson, running for Vice President, put the Democratic argument concisely when he said in Boston:

"Under no single Administration in American history has the position of our nation in the world declined so far and so fast as it has under the present (GOP) Administration. . . ."

This is very tough language and President Eisenhower took to television and denounced the denouncers. Nixon thought that the prestige of the United States was at an all time high, which Governor Rockefeller believed was an exaggerated statement.

So, let us have a look at this word, prestige, as we reach May in 1961. After the Cuban debacle, our prestige, as a competent and prudent people, has hit a new low. When this country was defeated in Korea by Red China, many nations reviewed their positions and became neutralist. Such an opportunistic politician as Nehru of India organized a positive neutralist group, which having decided that the United States is impotent, adjusted its thinking to support Khrushchev.

So, this defeat in Cuba, if it remains a defeat, will require every nation in the American hemisphere to review its position.

It is absurd to suggest that the United States had nothing to do with the Cuban rebel activities. The leaders of the Cuban rebels were in the United States, in New York City, in Miami and to a lesser extent, in New Orleans. They were known to many persons and their activities were almost public. Some of them discussed their plans with newspapermen.

Throughout the period of preparation, the question was regularly brought up as to which of the various rebel leaders would have the support of the State Department and the CIA. No secret was made of seeking support; no secret was made of the CIA's support of the Verona group. Surely every secret agent of interested governments was on the job getting this kind of information, and while some of it may have been incorrect and exaggerated, those who had a right to be best informed agreed on the basic data of CIA aid to Cuban rebels.

I think that most Americans are pleased that the rebels should have been aided for two reasons: 1. Because Castro is so despised in this country; and 2. Because it was obvious to the man on the street that Castro's noisy courage was backed by real strength. Therefore when the rebels made for the beachhead, it was generally assumed that the CIA had ample supplies. It now turns out that both assumptions were incorrect. The CIA's information concerning Cuba seems to have been no better than it was concerning Suez or Hungary or Iraq, or the Summit Conference at Paris or the attitude of schoolboys in Tokyo who kept President Eisenhower from visiting that country.

It is clear that the CIA needs an overhauling both as to personnel and method. It employs too many political philosophers who do their own evaluating and too few ordinary spies who provide data without evaluation. But the time whatever comes to the CIA reaches a President for a decision, it has been mulled over by the junior political philosophers and is practically valueless.

The Hoover Commission, of which President Kennedy's father was a member, looked into the CIA and was astonished at what they found. They requested General Mark Clark to make a study and to file a report. That report has been kept secret from the American Congress and the American people. Before President Kennedy goes any further he might have a look at this report.

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will answer in a series of speeches next month the off-the-record briefings and TV interview suggestions by Kennedy Administration officials blaming the Eisenhower administration for the abortive Cuban invasion plan.

Nixon is known to have been particularly shocked by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall's off-the-cuff comments on TV because they were so at variance with what Nixon had been told by President Kennedy in their personal interview.

In the series of six speeches Nixon will make beginning May 2, he will not criticize the President personally for the actions taken in the Cuban and Laotian crises.

The 1960 GOP candidate is known to feel that it took guts for Kennedy to make the decisions he did. Nixon will support the President as the official responsible for the conduct of U.S. foreign policy; this is also the position of former President Eisenhower.

This backing up of the President will restrain Nixon a little in outlining future policies for dealing with current crises stirred up by the Communists.

Nixon's views on events leading up to these crises are a matter of record, however. He may therefore feel free to set the record straight as he sees it on events that took place during the Eisenhower Administration.

Nixon has been charged with being one of the prime movers for training American guerrillas for invasion operations. If he chooses, he can recite the record on that.

Two years ago, when Fidel Castro came to Washington and spoke before The American Society of Newspaper Editors, Nixon spent three hours with the bearded Cuban.

Castro maintained that he was not a Communist. Nixon assessed him as being a captive of the Communists, however, and came to the conclusion that he could not be won over to the Free World cause. A year ago, Nixon's views were generally accepted in the Eisenhower Administration and policies were shaped accordingly.

During the presidential campaign, Senator Kennedy was briefed on this policy by the Central Intelligence Agency.

In the fourth TV debate with Nixon, however, Senator Kennedy took the position that what was being done by the Eisenhower Administration to meet the Cuban threat was not enough. Kennedy advocated more direct aid to Cuban rebels opposing Castro.

Nixon took the opposite point of view in the public debate, apparently to hide the administration's covert activities. After the election, however, when Nixon saw President-elect Kennedy in Miami, the vice president expressed his personal views that all U. S. programs for dealing with the Communist threat were woefuly inadequate.

Previously, the vice president had said publicly he thought the Central Inteligence Agency should be used only for gathering information, not for the direction of covert military operations.

President Kennedy's action in naming Gen. Maxwell Taylor to investigate CIA operations is now taken as an indication that the present Administration is looking at this possibility.

In supporting President Kennedy's decision to let the Cuban invasion operation go forward, Nixon may take the position that the action was not completely planned to take care of a possible setback.

President Eisenhower's planning of the Lebanon invasion is offered as an example to show what was lacking in the Kennedy planning. After the decision to send the Marines ashore in Lebanon, President Eisenhower turned to the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and asked:

"Foster, are you ready to take the second step?" Secretary Dulles nodded his assent.

The second was understood to include meeting outside military opposition if it should develop from the United Arab Republic, Russia or any other source.

Such a decision was not made in the case of Cuba.

Opposition to making such a decision and taking such action is still being forced on President Kennedy by some of his top administration officials. Their viewpoint is that the way to win over Latin America is by the $500 million social development program now before Congress.

Nixon has previously opposed this program as inadequate by itself and he may be expected to continue his opposition in his forthcoming series of speeches.

The arguments against adopting a soft policy in dealing with the Cuban situation are outlined as follows:

Fear that the operation might fail through miscalcuulations are answered with the contention that it is better to do something than do nothing and the President must take risks.

Fear that the Russians might move into the Cuban struggle are answered by the contention that Russia will never trade Havana for Moscow.

Fear that if the U.S. moves into Cuba, Khrushchev would move into Berlin is answered by the contention that Havana would be merely another Budapest, but Berlin would mean the start of World War III.

Nixon will open his speaking tour in Greenville, S. C., on May 2. He will talk in New York May 4, in Chicago May 5, Des Moines May 6, Detroit May 9 and Columbus, Ohio, May 10.

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A young mother writes: "I just came from my doctor who tells me I have rheumatoid arthritis. The only advice he gave me was to take aspirin, do exercises and apply warmth to my joints.

"Now my mother has been an invalid because of this disease for many years. I've seen her suffer and frankly I'd rather be dead than go through what she goes through each day.

"Her doctors told her if she had come to them earlier in the disease they could have prevented her from being crippled. Yet I went to my doctor at first suspicion of the disease and I've been given nothing except measures to relieve my pain. Please help me. Or tell me what I can do to get help."

I can only suggest a frank discussion with the physician in charge. And, for further information, write the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation at 10 Columbus Circle, New York City 19, N. Y.

Q—"I have an eruption inside my cheek and on one side of my tongue. Doctors call it lichen planus. It's only on the side where I have a partial denture. Can this turn to cancer?"

A—No. Lichen planus is a nuisance disturbance that is resistant to treatment. It is unrelated to cancer. But, if it is only on the side where there's a partial denture it is quite possible that mechanical irritation from the appliance might contribute to the disturbance.

Q—"My mother complains that when she sleeps on her right side, her left arm becomes numb. Then, if she turns on the left side, the right arm becomes numb. Either way, it wakens her. Is this serious?"

A—I doubt that it's serious. Usually the complaint goes the other way around. As in the "Saturday night paralysis" that follows overindulgence in alcoholic beverages and the resultant heavy sleep. If your mother is very stout, it's possible that she has some interference with circulation in the upper arm when she lies on her side. Why doesn't she try sleeping on her back?

Virginia School Ruling Seen As Blow to States' Rights

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 27 — President Kennedy may have dealt a fatal blow to the movement to obtain money from the Federal government to subsidize public schools. He has just demanded that the legislature of a sovereign state — Virginia — be compelled to take punitive action against a single county for failing to open its schools or else abandon the whole public-school system throughout the state. In view of this development, will Congress now take a chance and appropriate money that gives a bureau in Washington potential power over the operation of the public schools throughout the United States?

To tell a state how it must appropriate its funds, how it shall set up its own system of education, and what steps it must take to satisfy the Federal government's demands is unprecedented in American history. Yet this, in effect, is the authority sought by the Department of Justice, with the approval of the President, in applying to a Federal court for an order against the state of Virginia.

The step is far-reaching. It could mean that in the future the Federal government could even tell a state it must have a uniform system of government applying to every county or city. It so happens that the State of Virginia permits its counties and independent cities to adopt, as they choose, various forms of executive management or control by boards of supervisors elected by the people. But under the theory just applied by the United States Department of Justice, the counties and municipalities would not be permitted to have their own forms of local government, but would have to adopt a system uniform throughout the state. If any county or city deviated, it would be in danger of being compelled to accept an order of the Federal government in Washington served upon the state through the courts.

14th Amendment Doctrine

This doctrine is, of course, based upon the concept of the Fourteenth Amendment, which the Supreme Court of the United States proclaimed in its "desegregation" decisions in 1954. The point was made then that "equal protection of the laws" means equal application of state laws to children attending public school.

But there is nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment or anywhere else in the Constitution which says that the Federal government may tell a state it cannot provide funds to keep its public schools open in 97 counties and 32 independent cities because a single county happens to close such schools.

This is an obvious form of punitive action that can readily be repeated by an executive order directing any state which accepts Federal funds to operate all its schools according to standards laid down by a Federal bureau.

For months now, the lobbyists for Federal aid to education and the politicians who hope to get votes through promised increases in teachers' salaries have been denying that any form of Federal control of education would be involved in current proposals for financial aid to state schools. But now it turns out that, without any specific right granted through existing law, an executive order could be issued—or a court decree sought by direct intervention of the Federal government—telling a state how to run its educational system.

Grants Stopped

The Federal government is demanding not only that a state re-open public schools in a particular county but that it shall stop state and county tuition grants for the use of parents who send their children to private schools and cease to pay from state funds for the "maintenance and operation of public schools anywhere in Virginia" as long as the public schools in one county are closed.

This can only mean that the Federal government now feels it can interfere in any tuition grants, fellowships, scholarships or other forms of aid if it doesn't like the way the states operate such educational programs. It is certainly something novel for the Federal government to tell state legislatures how to spend their money.

It will be contended that the Supreme Court has not as yet ruled on the new demand of the Department of Justice for dictatorial powers over education in the states. But it may be taken for granted that the lawyers at the department have blazed a new trail and probably have found new devices satisfactory to them whereby the end will justify the means.

If the Federal government can tell the State of Virginia that it cannot provide funds for its public schools unless it makes every county and city conform to a pattern approved by the Federal government, then constitutional government, as it has been known since the founding of the republic, will indeed have vanished. Government by executive order or court decree will have supplanted acts of Congress and the laws of fifty state legislatures.

Do You Remember

by Sophie Miller

I met Bill Brophy, formerly with a local radio station and now on one of the big New York City stations. He is a former Kingston High School boy who made good in the big city, and he told me every once in a while he catches up with this column down there. He told me Martin Weldon, also at one time with WKNY when I was there, is now covering the Eichmann trial in Jerusalem for his New York City station. Mr. Weldon, several years ago, wrote a very interesting book on Babe Ruth.

Received "The Wayne Independent" from Honesdale, Pa., dated April 11, 1961. It was sent to me by Frances Soete of 214 Ninth Street, Honesdale, Pa. What interests me, when I receive mail or newspapers from other towns and states, is how they know about this column. Of course, Rondout and Honesdale have been on friendly terms since way back in the 1820's because of the D and H Canal, as we are at opposite ends of the famous canal.

An item is marked in the newspaper about the Canal Society of New York State planning a dinner in Honesdale, April 29. It seems they also plan a spring tour which will start at Port Jervis and terminate at Honesdale, Saturday, April 29. They also plan to have an illustrated lecture at the supper meeting, to be held at the Grace Episcopal Church Parish House, to be given by Edwin D. LeRoy. He wrote a very fine illustrated book, called "The Delaware and Hudson Canal" in 1950 which I think some of the readers have seen in our Kingston City Library. Perhaps some of the readers know Mr. Cleary, the president of the New York Tow Boat Exchange, 17 Battery Place, New York City, whose father and grandfather boated on the D and H Canal between Honesdale and Rondout.

Another item tells about three mine cars which were transported from the former Hudson Coal Co. breaker at Olyphant to Honesdale, by E. Soden and Sons, Honesdale, a gift to the Wayne County Historical Society by the Glen Alden Coal Co. for the society's railroad museum. Honesdale is termed the "Cradle of Transportation," being the place where the first locomotive turned a wheel by steam on a track in America in 1829. I take it, it was the Stourbridge Lion, imported from England, by the D and H in 1829, of which I have handsome pictures put out by the Argosy Magazine. The Stourbridge Lion is a rugged steam engine with bright red wheels, and high smoke stack, and a gold crest mounted on the front of the boiler. I take it the engine may be seen at the Wayne County Historical Society in all its glory.

The newspaper items also tell about the 24-ton mine saddleback steam locomotive, No. 61, given by the Alden Coal Co. who had purchased the property and land title of the Hudson Coal. The locomotive is 20 feet in length, 9 feet high, 8 feet wide and is of the narow gauge type, with bell, sand box, whistle, headlight, but no cowcatcher, because they have no cows in mines. It is in perfect condition because it was housed inside and only recently reconditioned. Coal, tools, oil can and everything is aboard.

Henry Soete, president of the Historical Society says the locomotive was manufactured by the Vulcan Iron Works of Wilkes-Barre and is of the 1900 vintage. They had to lay a section of narrow gauge rail ties and draw the locomotive off the conveying truck to the laid track. The Wayne County Historical Society Railroad Museum, Honesdale, Pa., should be an interesting place to visit this summer.

It is absurd to suggest that the United States had nothing to do with the Cuban rebel activities. The leaders of the Cuban rebels were in the United States, in New York City, in Miami and to a lesser extent, in New Orleans. They were known to many persons and their activities were almost public. Some of them discussed their plans with newspapermen.

Throughout the period of preparation, the question was regularly brought up as to which of the various rebel leaders would have the support of the State Department and the CIA. No secret was made of seeking support; no secret was made of the CIA's support of the Verona group. Surely every secret agent of interested governments was on the job getting this kind of information, and while some of it may have been incorrect and exaggerated, those who had a right to be best informed agreed on the basic data of CIA aid to Cuban rebels.

I think that most Americans are pleased that the rebels should have been aided for two reasons: 1. Because Castro is so despised in this country; and 2. Because it was obvious to the man on the street that Castro's noisy courage was backed by real strength. Therefore when the rebels made for the beachhead, it was generally assumed that the CIA had ample supplies. It now turns out that both assumptions were incorrect. The CIA's information concerning Cuba seems to have been no better than it was concerning Suez or Hungary or Iraq, or the Summit Conference at Paris or the attitude of schoolboys in Tokyo who kept President Eisenhower from visiting that country.

It is clear that the CIA needs an overhauling both as to personnel and method. It employs too many political philosophers who do their own evaluating and too few ordinary spies who provide data without evaluation. But the time whatever comes to the CIA reaches a President for a decision, it has been mulled over by the junior political philosophers and is practically valueless.

The Hoover Commission, of which President Kennedy's father was a member, looked into the CIA and was astonished at what they found. They requested General Mark Clark to make a study and to file a report. That report has been kept secret from the American Congress and the American people. Before President Kennedy goes any further he might have a look at this report.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Get All Available Data On Arthritis Treatment

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A young mother writes: "I just came from my doctor who tells me I have rheumatoid arthritis. The only advice he gave me was to take aspirin, do exercises and apply warmth to my joints.

"Now my mother has been an invalid because of this disease for many years. I've seen her suffer and frankly I'd rather be dead than go through what she goes through each day.

"Her doctors told her if she had come to them earlier in the disease they could have prevented her from being crippled. Yet I went to my doctor at first suspicion of the disease and I've been given nothing except measures to relieve my pain. Please help me. Or tell me what I can do to get help."

I can only suggest a frank discussion with the physician in charge. And, for further information, write the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation at 10 Columbus Circle, New York City 19, N. Y.

Q—"I have an eruption inside my cheek and on one side of my tongue. Doctors call it lichen planus. It's only on the side where I have a partial denture. Can this turn to cancer?"

A—No. Lichen planus is a nuisance disturbance that is resistant to treatment. It is unrelated to cancer. But, if it is only on the side where there's a partial denture it is quite possible that mechanical irritation from the appliance might contribute to the disturbance.

Q—"My mother complains that when she sleeps on her right side, her left arm becomes numb. Then, if she turns on the left side, the right arm becomes numb. Either way, it wakens her. Is this serious?"

A—I doubt that it's serious. Usually the complaint goes the other way around. As in the "Saturday night paralysis" that follows overindulgence in alcoholic beverages and the resultant heavy sleep. If your mother is very stout, it's possible that she has some interference with circulation in the upper arm when she lies on her side. Why doesn't she try sleeping on her back?

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will answer in a series of speeches next month the off-the-record briefings and TV interview suggestions by Kennedy Administration officials blaming the Eisenhower administration for the abortive Cuban invasion plan.

Nixon is known to have been particularly shocked by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall's off-the-cuff comments on TV because they were so at variance with what Nixon had been told by President Kennedy in their personal interview.

In the series of six speeches Nixon will make beginning May 2, he will not criticize the President personally for the actions taken in the Cuban and Laotian crises.

The 1960 GOP candidate is known to feel that it took guts for Kennedy to make the decisions he did. Nixon will support the President as the official responsible for the conduct of U.S. foreign policy; this is also the position of former President Eisenhower.

This backing up of the President will restrain Nixon a little in outlining future policies for dealing with current crises stirred up by the Communists.

Nixon's views on events leading up to these crises are a matter of record, however. He may therefore feel free to set the record straight as he sees it on events that took place during the Eisenhower Administration.

Nixon has been charged with being one of the prime movers for training American guerrillas for invasion operations. If he chooses, he can recite the record on that.

Two years ago, when Fidel Castro came to Washington and spoke before The American Society of Newspaper Editors, Nixon spent three hours with the bearded Cuban.

Castro maintained that he was not a Communist. Nixon assessed him as being a captive of the Communists, however, and came to the conclusion that he could not be won over to the Free World cause. A year ago, Nixon's views were generally accepted in the Eisenhower Administration and policies were shaped accordingly.

During the presidential campaign, Senator Kennedy was briefed on this policy by the Central Intelligence Agency.

In the fourth TV debate with Nixon, however, Senator Kennedy took the position that what was being done by the Eisenhower Administration to meet the Cuban threat was not enough. Kennedy advocated more direct aid to Cuban rebels opposing Castro.

Nixon took the opposite point of view in the public debate, apparently to hide the administration's covert activities. After the election, however, when Nixon saw President-elect Kennedy in Miami, the vice president expressed his personal views that all U. S. programs for dealing with the Communist threat were woefuly inadequate.

Previously, the vice president had said publicly he thought the Central Inteligence Agency should be used only for gathering information, not for the direction of covert military operations.

President Kennedy's action in naming Gen. Maxwell Taylor to investigate CIA operations is now taken as an indication that the present Administration is looking at this possibility.

In supporting President Kennedy's decision to let the Cuban invasion operation go forward, Nixon may take the position that the action was not completely planned to take care of a possible setback.

President Eisenhower's planning of the Lebanon invasion is offered as an example to show what was lacking in the Kennedy planning. After the decision to send the Marines ashore in Lebanon, President Eisenhower turned to the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and asked:

"Foster, are you ready to take the second step?" Secretary Dulles nodded his assent.

The second was understood to include meeting outside military opposition if it should develop from the United Arab Republic, Russia or any other source.

Such a decision was not made in the case of Cuba.

Opposition to making such a decision and taking such action is still being forced on President Kennedy by some of his top administration officials. Their viewpoint is that the way to win over Latin America is by the $500 million social development program now before Congress.

Nixon has previously opposed this program as inadequate by itself and he may be expected to continue his opposition in his forthcoming series of speeches.

The arguments against adopting a soft policy in dealing with the Cuban situation are outlined as follows:

Fear that the operation might fail through miscalcuulations are answered with the contention that it is better to do something than do nothing and the President must take risks.

Fear that the Russians might move into the Cuban struggle are answered by the contention that Russia will never trade Havana for Moscow.

Fear that if the U.S. moves into Cuba, Khrushchev would move into Berlin is answered by the contention that Havana would be merely another Budapest, but Berlin would mean the start of World War III.

Nixon will open his speaking tour in Greenville, S. C., on May 2. He will talk in New York May 4, in Chicago May 5, Des Moines May 6, Detroit May 9 and Columbus, Ohio, May 10.

Virginia School Ruling Seen As Blow to States' Rights

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 27 — President Kennedy may have dealt a fatal blow to the movement to obtain money from the Federal government to subsidize public schools. He has just demanded that the legislature of a sovereign state — Virginia — be compelled to take punitive action against a single county for failing to open its schools or else abandon the whole public-school system throughout the state. In view of this development, will Congress now take a chance and appropriate money that gives a bureau in Washington potential power over the operation of the public schools throughout the United States?

To tell a state how it must appropriate its funds, how it shall set up its own system of education, and what steps it must take to satisfy the Federal government's demands is unprecedented in American history. Yet this, in effect, is the authority sought by the Department of Justice, with the approval of the President, in applying to a Federal court for an order against the state of Virginia.

The step is far-reaching. It could mean that in the future the Federal government could even tell a state it must have a uniform system of government applying to every county or city. It so happens that the State of Virginia permits its counties and independent cities to adopt, as they choose, various forms of executive management or control by boards of supervisors elected by the people. But under the theory just applied by the United States Department of Justice, the counties and municipalities would not be permitted to have their own forms of local government, but would have to adopt a system uniform throughout the state. If any county or city deviated, it would be in danger of being compelled to accept an order of the Federal government in Washington served upon the state through the courts.

14th Amendment Doctrine

This doctrine is, of course, based upon the concept of the Fourteenth Amendment, which the Supreme Court of the United States proclaimed in its "desegregation" decisions in 1954. The point was made then that "equal protection of the laws" means equal application of state laws to children attending public school.

But there is nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment or anywhere else in the Constitution which says that the Federal government may tell a state it cannot provide funds to keep its public schools open in 97 counties and 32 independent cities because a single county happens to close such schools.

This is an obvious form of punitive action that can readily be repeated by an executive order directing any state which accepts Federal funds to operate all its schools according to standards laid down by a Federal bureau.

For months now, the lobbyists for Federal aid to education and the politicians who hope to get votes through promised increases in teachers' salaries have been denying that any form of Federal control of education would be involved in current proposals for financial aid to state schools. But now it turns out that, without any specific right granted through existing law, an executive order could be issued—or a court decree sought by direct intervention of the Federal government—telling a state how to run its educational system.

Grants Stopped

The Federal government is demanding not only that a state re-open public schools in a particular county but that it shall stop state and county tuition grants for the use of parents who send their children to private schools and cease to pay from state funds for the "maintenance and operation of public schools anywhere in Virginia" as long as the public schools in one county are closed.

This can only mean that the Federal government now feels it can interfere in any tuition grants, fellowships, scholarships or other forms of aid if it doesn't like the way the states operate such educational programs. It is certainly something novel for the Federal government to tell state legislatures how to spend their money.

It will be contended that the Supreme Court has not as yet ruled on the new demand of the Department of Justice for dictatorial powers over education in the states. But it may be taken for granted that the lawyers at the department have blazed a new trail and probably have found new devices satisfactory to them whereby the end will justify the means.

If the Federal government can tell the State of Virginia that it cannot provide funds for its public schools unless it makes every county and city conform to a pattern approved by the Federal government, then constitutional government, as it has been known since the founding of the republic, will indeed have vanished. Government by executive order or court decree will have supplanted acts of Congress and the laws of fifty state legislatures.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

I met Bill Brophy, formerly with a local radio station and now on one of the big New York City stations. He is a former Kingston High School boy who made good in the big city, and he told me every once in a while he catches up with this column down there. He told me Martin Weldon, also at one time with WKNY when I was there, is now covering the Eichmann trial in Jerusalem for his New York City station. Mr. Weldon, several years ago, wrote a very interesting book on Babe Ruth.

Received "The Wayne Independent" from Honesdale, Pa., dated April 11, 1961. It was sent to me by Frances Soete of 214 Ninth Street, Honesdale, Pa. What interests me, when I receive mail or newspapers from other towns and states, is how they know about this column. Of course, Rondout and Honesdale have been on friendly terms since way back in the 1820's because of the D and H Canal, as we are at opposite ends of the famous canal.

An item is marked in the newspaper about the Canal Society of New York State planning a dinner in Honesdale, April 29. It seems they also plan a spring tour which will start at Port Jervis and terminate at Honesdale, Saturday, April 29. They also plan to have an illustrated lecture at the supper meeting, to be held at the Grace Episcopal Church Parish House, to be given by Edwin D. LeRoy. He wrote a very fine illustrated book, called "The Delaware and Hudson Canal" in 1950 which I think some of the readers have seen in our Kingston City Library. Perhaps some of the readers know Mr. Cleary, the president of the New York Tow Boat Exchange, 17 Battery Place, New York City, whose father and grandfather boated on the D and H Canal between Honesdale and Rondout.

Another item tells about three mine cars which were transported from the former Hudson Coal Co. breaker at Olyphant to Honesdale, by E. Soden and Sons, Honesdale, a gift to the Wayne County Historical Society by the Glen Alden Coal Co. for the society's railroad museum. Honesdale is termed the "Cradle of Transportation," being the place where the first locomotive turned a wheel by steam on a track in America in 1829. I take it, it was the Stourbridge Lion, imported from England, by the D and H in 1829, of which I have handsome pictures put out by the Argosy Magazine. The Stourbridge Lion is a rugged steam engine with bright red wheels, and high smoke stack, and a gold crest mounted on the front of the boiler. I take it the engine may be seen at the Wayne County Historical Society in all its glory.

The newspaper items also tell about the 24-ton mine saddleback steam locomotive, No. 61, given by the Alden Coal Co. who had purchased the property and land title of the Hudson Coal. The locomotive is 20 feet in length, 9 feet high, 8 feet wide and is of the narow gauge type, with bell, sand box, whistle, headlight, but no cowcatcher, because they have no cows in mines. It is in perfect condition because it was housed inside and only recently reconditioned. Coal, tools, oil can and everything is aboard.

Henry Soete, president of the Historical Society says the locomotive was manufactured by the Vulcan Iron Works of Wilkes-Barre and is of the 1900 vintage. They had to lay a section of narrow gauge rail ties and draw the locomotive off the conveying truck to the laid track. The Wayne County Historical Society Railroad Museum, Honesdale, Pa., should be an interesting place to visit this summer.

Angrily Denies Charge

Wagner Says Rocky Behind Favor Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner denies he ever traded favors with a steamship line executive, and says a current state investigation is a Republican effort to win this year's city election by "trying to destroy my personal reputation."

The Democratic mayor angrily charged that Republican Gov. Rockefeller was "personally responsible for permitting this to happen."

The mayor referred to a report that a unit of the State Investigation Commission was investigating to learn whether Wagner accepted favors from the steamship official, whose company leases a city pier.

Rockefeller said in a statement issued through a spokesman:

"The mayor's charge is completely without foundation. All of the investigations being carried on by the bipartisan...commission, the members of which were appointed in 1958 by former Gov. Harriman (a Democrat) and the legislative leaders, are the commission's responsibility, and it would be inappropriate for me to comment on matters pending before the commission."

Wagner said in a statement late Thursday that George Sanders, owner of the Hudson River Day Line, "has never received a special favor from me or the city, and I have accepted no special favor from him."

Wagner's denunciation of the investigation was directed at a special subordinate unit of the State Investigation Commission headed by Whitney Seymour Jr.

Jacob Grumet, chairman of the commission, said it "has never made any charges against the mayor of this city up to date" and "we are not investigating the mayor . . . the mayor's statement does not refer to us."

FBI Praises

Wharton, Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick, Charles J. Tiano and Attorney William A. Kelly, former county judge.

Patrolman Richard Scherer, accompanied by Roger Baer, opened the program with the Star Spangled Banner. The Rev. James Kelley, Church of the Presentation, Port Ewen, gave the invocation, and the benediction was by the Rev. Roy Allan Hassel of Trinity Methodist Church.

Receives Ring

Meyer Levy, president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, presented Chief Murphy with a ring. There were also gifts for Mrs. Murphy and the three sons of the couple, Charles, James and Robert.

Filled with emotion when he arose to talk, the Chief said "I always thought I was thick-skinned. What can one say at a time like this but thank you."

Two sisters and a brother of the Chief were among those honoring him, Mrs. William Steuding of Kingston; Mrs. Alfred Wolfert of Newburgh, and Raymond Murphy of this city.

Among those at the head table were Chief of Police and Mrs. Stanley DuCharme of Schenectady; Chief Abe Rand of Ellenville; former Mayor and Mrs. Frederick H. Stang; Col. Chandler; Alderman-at-Large and Mrs. Harold Kaye; Mayor and Mrs. Radel; Fire Chief James M. Brett; Joseph Murphy, retired fire chief; the Rev. James V. Keating, St. Joseph's Church; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel J. Shea, pastor of St. Mary's Church and dean of Ulster County; Harry Gold and Francis J. Vogt, assistant district attorneys; Charles Phinney, retired police chief.

Programs distributed gave a history of Chief Murphy's service in the department, and also that of his father, Charles J. Murphy, who died in 1931 while still on the force.

Chief Murphy joined the department March 1, 1936 and rose from the ranks through various promotions. He became chief August 20, 1959.

During World War II, Murphy as a top turret gunner on the 8th Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress Lizzy Belle received the Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement on many high altitude heavy bombardment attacks over Germany and German occupied Europe. He served from 1942 to 1945.

Croswell Is Named As Hurley Clerk, Goble Resigns Job

Charles W. Goble, town clerk of the town of Hurley, has submitted his resignation to the town board and at a meeting of the board this week the resignation was accepted "with regret" Supervisor Charles Relyea (R), announced Thursday.

Raymond Croswell of Russell Street, Hurley, was named town clerk to fill out the unexpired term, Supervisor Relyea announced.

Eyes 'Speed Zones'

The town board, acting on petitions from residents of various areas of the township, took action toward the establishment of "speed zones" and erection of a traffic light at the junction of Onteora Trail and the Woodstock road in West Hurley.

As a result of that action the board conferred with a representative of the State Traffic Control Commission on Wednesday in relation to consent of the Commission to establish speed zones and erect the traffic signal.

For some time there have been complaints of excessive speed in congested areas of the town and in particular in areas traversed by school children. This includes the Lucas Avenue area and the road running from the Hurley Four Corners at Lucas Avenue westerly to the village of Hurley.

The State Traffic Commission made a survey of traffic conditions some time ago but no authorization to establish speed zones was forthcoming.

A supplemental survey was made on Wednesday and the result of that survey is not known, or whether it will result in authority to post reduced speeds in the recommended areas. The Traffic Commission is reluctant to establish reduced speed zones in areas unless absolute need for such posting is apparent.

Concern About Children

Supervisor Relyea (R), said the request for establishment of reduced speed zones had been made for the purpose of "slowing down traffic" and protecting the public, particularly the school children who are required to traverse certain portions of the highways.

Lucas Avenue Extension was recently improved and widened from the city line to the Hurley Four Corners. Since then it has frequently been referred to as a "speedway" where pedestrians are constantly in danger. Relyea said numerous accidents had happened on the road leading from Four Corners to the village of Old Hurley, a street on which there are many homes and over which children pass en route from school to their homes.

Messina Property Granted Variance By Zoning Board

After a public hearing held last night at the village clerk's office, the Saugerties Zoning Board of Appeals granted a variance on the property of Dr. Richard J. Messina on Burt Street (9-W), from its present classification of Residential U-1 to Commercial U-3, to permit the construction of a building to be used solely as offices for the practice of dentistry or medicine.

William D. Brinnier, attorney for Dr. Messina, presented a petition containing 24 signatures of residents in the immedate area who voiced no objection to the variance. He cited the fact that the property on the west side of the street is now zoned as commercial and that the plans for the professional building on the east side would enhance the neighborhood rather than detract from it.

The two members present, Albert Giannotti and Clarence Link, were in agreement on the granting of the variance. Lewis Robinson, the third member of the Zoning Board was not present.

Dr. Messina, in his remarks to the board, said that it is his intenton to have a modern structure built at the site that would accomodate his own offices and space for one other office to be used for the practice of medicine or dentistry.

P-TA Advocates College Location On Winston Site

The following letter is a copy of one sent to the County Board of Supervisors through Peter Williams, Saugerties town supervisor, and read at the special meeting Thursday night in Kingston to discuss the contemplated community college.

The letter was written by Mrs. Ann Karashay and Kenneth Lane representing the committee for Community College of the Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association. It reads as follows:

Gentlemen: The Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association would like to go on record as favoring the establishment of an Ulster County Community College in the Town of Saugerties on the Winston property offered as a donation for this purpose by Mr. and Mrs. Shaller.

A high percentage of the high school population of Ulster County lives within a small radius of the Saugerties site. Also, a large portion of Greene County's population is located within commuting distance of Saugerties and tuition from their students would help defray the cost of operation. Our proximity to Columbia County, which is without college facilities, should also be a factor to be considered in your decision.

Since other parts of the county are already being served to a considerable extent by colleges located in Poughkeepsie, Middletown, and New Paltz, we feel that the Saugerties site is ideal to serve the largest number of students.

We shall appreciate your consideration of our thoughts concerning this matter. Signed, Ann Karashay, Kenneth Lane, Committee for Community College, Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Brinkman Is Given 5-10 Term, Other Court Cases

Mrs. Helen Mae Brinkman, former Chichester resident, who entered a plea of guilty to first degree manslaughter for the death of her infant daughter in 1958, was sentenced to a term of from 5 to 10 years at Westfield State Prison for Women at Bedford Hills Thursday afternoon in County Court.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino allowed credit for the 304 days she had spent in jail and also on motion of her attorney, Sherwood E. Davis, allowed credit for the two years and 172 days she spent in Matteawan State Hospital where she was committed shortly after the crime. Mrs. Brinkman had recently been returned to Ulster County to stand trial for the killing, after doctors held her sufficiently recovered to stand trial. She had been committed to Matteawan as being mentally incompetent to make a defense to the charge.

Robert Jay McCandless of Pennsylvania and his brother, John Ellsworth McCandless, a member of the Marine Corps, charged with having assaulted and robbed Mrs. Sarah Cooper, Ellenville boarding-house keeper last January 21, entered pleas of guilty to second degree assault after a jury had been partially selected. Robert W. Griggs appeared by assignment for the defendants.

They will be sentenced May 1 at 2 p. m.

Case Is Adjourned

The case of Robert Hendrickson and Bernard Ferraro, charged with third degree burglary and unlawful entry to the William Schmershal premises at Barclay Heights, Saugerties, was adjourned to June 5, when it may be moved for trial. A motion to inspect the grand jury minutes made by Hubert Richter, counsel, is pending.

The case of Richard D. Brown, Robert W. Dane, Kenneth W. Allen, Joseph W. McKeon and Anthony L. S. DeSoltis were adjourned to May 1 at 2 p. m. They are accused of entering a Wallkill store on March 8.

In adjourning the term until June when it is expected additional matters will be disposed of, County Judge Raymond J. Mino noted that over 30 civil cases had been disposed of during the present term of court, reducing the civil calendar by approximately 25 per cent. He thanked the jurors for their cooperation and noted that a large number of criminal cases had been disposed of by himself and Acting County Judge Francis X. Tucker.

Judge Mino told jurors who desired to continue to serve in June to so notify the clerk.

During their service as jurors Judge Mino told the jurors they had probably taken note of the inadequate facilities at the court house for the conduct of business and pointed out the need for jurors to repeatedly "climb the long series of steps" to the court room. He said the facilities for housing jurors during deliberation had also probably been noted and he suggested that they go back home and bring to the attention of their representatives on the board of supervisors the inadequate facilities. Need for a new county building to provide adequate facilities, Judge Mino said, had probably been forcefully brought to the attention of the jurors during their services at court. Judge Mino said he was particularly pleased at the work accomplished at the term, the first trial term over which he had presided since being named to the bench, succeeding former County Judge Louis G. Bruhn who had been elevated to the Supreme court bench.

Fire Damages Garage On Washington Ave.

A fire said to be of possible incendiary origin damaged a three-car, one-story, frame garage owned by Mary Scully of 158 Washington Avenue Thursday afternoon.

No cars were in the garage, firemen said, but items stored there and the structure were badly damaged. The blaze started near a rear window.

Probers Charge That Union Rules to Cost $3 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators charged today that arbitrary rules of an electricians union threaten to add $3 million to the cost of the Titan missile program.

Defense plans call for 12 squadrons of the intercontinental missiles.

Jerome S. Adlerman, counsel to the Senate Investigations subcommittee, claimed evidence that unionized electricians' refusal to permit the use of prefabricated electrical cable connections in the missile would add "a quarter of a million dollars per squadron to the cost, or a total of around $3 million."

The subcommittee chairman, John L. McClellan, D-Ark., demanding new federal laws to curb the rash of strikes and other labor troubles plaguing missile bases, called more witnesses for questioning on this and other matters.

"Where is America's patriotism?" he exploded Thursday after hearing testimony of strikes allegedly called to throw projects behind schedule and force payment of overtime wages to laborers at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a drive to meet project dates.

Robert Palmer, pictured as the top labor official at the base, denied heatedly that any strikes have been called there to force the payment of overtime.

Study on Park Site for School Due on May 3

A report resulting of a preliminary study of rock and cave structure under a Hasbrouck Park site being considered for a new school is due to be given at a May 3 meeting of the education board, it was learned today.

A geological survey was advised because of abandoned lime caves, subsequently used for mushroom growing, under the park area, and the study was ordered recently by Perkins & Will; school architects.

It is proposed to build the school on the Gross Street side of the park. Previous studies for city purposes have indicated that the cave area ends some distance east of the proposed school site, but the survey was advised because of possible secondary land disturbance resulting of any disruption of the undermined area.

The education board is expected to decide after review of the preliminary geological survey whether further study should be made on and near the proposed school site.

Angrily Denies Charge

Wagner Says Rocky Behind Favor Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner denies he ever traded favors with a steamship line executive, and says a current state investigation is a Republican effort to win this year's city election by "trying to destroy my personal reputation."

The Democratic mayor angrily charged that Republican Gov. Rockefeller was "personally responsible for permitting this to happen."

The mayor referred to a report that a unit of the State Investigation Commission was investigating to learn whether Wagner accepted favors from the steamship official, whose company leases a city pier.

Rockefeller said in a statement issued through a spokesman:

"The mayor's charge is completely without foundation. All of the investigations being carried on by the bipartisan...commission, the members of which were appointed in 1958 by former Gov. Harriman (a Democrat) and the legislative leaders, are the commission's responsibility, and it would be inappropriate for me to comment on matters pending before the commission."

Wagner said in a statement late Thursday that George Sanders, owner of the Hudson River Day Line, "has never received a special favor from me or the city, and I have accepted no special favor from him."

Wagner's denunciation of the investigation was directed at a special subordinate unit of the State Investigation Commission headed by Whitney Seymour Jr.

Jacob Grumet, chairman of the commission, said it "has never made any charges against the mayor of this city up to date" and "we are not investigating the mayor . . . the mayor's statement does not refer to us."

FBI Praises

Wharton, Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick, Charles J. Tiano and Attorney William A. Kelly, former county judge.

Patrolman Richard Scherer, accompanied by Roger Baer, opened the program with the Star Spangled Banner. The Rev. James Kelley, Church of the Presentation, Port Ewen, gave the invocation, and the benediction was by the Rev. Roy Allan Hassel of Trinity Methodist Church.

Receives Ring

Meyer Levy, president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, presented Chief Murphy with a ring. There were also gifts for Mrs. Murphy and the three sons of the couple, Charles, James and Robert.

Filled with emotion when he arose to talk, the Chief said "I always thought I was thick-skinned. What can one say at a time like this but thank you."

Two sisters and a brother of the Chief were among those honoring him, Mrs. William Steuding of Kingston; Mrs. Alfred Wolfert of Newburgh, and Raymond Murphy of this city.

Among those at the head table were Chief of Police and Mrs. Stanley DuCharme of Schenectady; Chief Abe Rand of Ellenville; former Mayor and Mrs. Frederick H. Stang; Col. Chandler; Alderman-at-Large and Mrs. Harold Kaye; Mayor and Mrs. Radel; Fire Chief James M. Brett; Joseph Murphy, retired fire chief; the Rev. James V. Keating, St. Joseph's Church; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel J. Shea, pastor of St. Mary's Church and dean of Ulster County; Harry Gold and Francis J. Vogt, assistant district attorneys; Charles Phinney, retired police chief.

Programs distributed gave a history of Chief Murphy's service in the department, and also that of his father, Charles J. Murphy, who died in 1931 while still on the force.

Chief Murphy joined the department March 1, 1936 and rose from the ranks through various promotions. He became chief August 20, 1959.

During World War II, Murphy as a top turret gunner on the 8th Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress Lizzy Belle received the Distinguished Flying Cross for extraordinary achievement on many high altitude heavy bombardment attacks over Germany and German occupied Europe. He served from 1942 to 1945.

Croswell Is Named As Hurley Clerk, Goble Resigns Job

Charles W. Goble, town clerk of the town of Hurley, has submitted his resignation to the town board and at a meeting of the board this week the resignation was accepted "with regret" Supervisor Charles Relyea (R), announced Thursday.

Raymond Croswell of Russell Street, Hurley, was named town clerk to fill out the unexpired term, Supervisor Relyea announced.

Eyes 'Speed Zones'

The town board, acting on petions from residents of various areas of the township, took action toward the establishment of "speed zones" and erection of a traffic light at the junction of Onteora Trail and the Woodstock road in West Hurley.

As a result of that action the board conferred with a representative of the State Traffic Control Commission on Wednesday in relation to consent of the Commission to establish speed zones and erect the traffic signal.

For some time there have been complaints of excessive speed in congested areas of the town and in particular in areas traversed by school children. This includes the Lucas Avenue area and the road running from the Hurley Four Corners at Lucas Avenue westerly to the village of Hurley.

The State Traffic Commission made a survey of traffic conditions some time ago but no authorization to establish speed zones was forthcoming.

A supplemental survey was made on Wednesday and the result of that survey is not known, or whether it will result in authority to post reduced speeds in the recommended areas. The Traffic Commission is reluctant to establish reduced speed zones in areas unless absolute need for such posting is apparent.

Concern About Children

Supervisor Relyea (R), said the request for establishment of reduced speed zones had been made for the purpose of "slowing down traffic" and protecting the public, particularly the school children who are required to traverse certain portions of the highways.

Lucas Avenue Extension was recently improved and widened from the city line to the Hurley Four Corners. Since then it has frequently been referred to as a "speedway" where pedestrians are constantly in danger. Relyea said numerous accidents had happened on the road leading from Four Corners to the village of Old Hurley, a street on which there are many homes and over which children pass en route from school to their homes.

Messina Property Granted Variance By Zoning Board

After a public hearing held last night at the village clerk's office, the Saugerties Zoning Board of Appeals granted a variance on the property of Dr. Richard J. Messina on Burt Street (9-W), from its present classification of Residential U-1 to Commercial U-3, to permit the construction of a building to be used solely as offices for the practice of dentistry or medicine.

William D. Brinnier, attorney for Dr. Messina, presented a petition containing 24 signatures of residents in the immedate area who voiced no objection to the variance. He cited the fact that the property on the west side of the street is now zoned as commercial and that the plans for the professional building on the east side would enhance the neighborhood rather than detract from it.

The two members present, Albert Giannotti and Clarence Link, were in agreement on the granting of the variance. Lewis Robinson, the third member of the Zoning Board was not present.

Dr. Messina, in his remarks to the board, said that it is his intenton to have a modern structure built at the site that would accomodate his own offices and space for one other office to be used for the practice of medicine or dentistry.

P-TA Advocates College Location On Winston Site

The following letter is a copy of one sent to the County Board of Supervisors through Peter Williams, Saugerties town supervisor, and read at the special meeting Thursday night in Kingston to discuss the contemplated community college.

The letter was written by Mrs. Ann Karashay and Kenneth Lane representing the committee for Community College of the Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association. It reads as follows:

Gentlemen: The Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association would like to go on record as favoring the establishment of an Ulster County Community College in the Town of Saugerties on the Winston property offered as a donation for this purpose by Mr. and Mrs. Shaller.

A high percentage of the high school population of Ulster County lives within a small radius of the Saugerties site. Also, a large portion of Greene County's population is located within commuting distance of Saugerties and tuition from their students would help defray the cost of operation. Our proximity to Columbia County, which is without college facilities, should also be a factor to be considered in your decision.

Since other parts of the county are already being served to a considerable extent by colleges located in Poughkeepsie, Middletown, and New Paltz, we feel that the Saugerties site is ideal to serve the largest number of students.

We shall appreciate your consideration of our thoughts concerning this matter. Signed, Ann Karashay, Kenneth Lane, Committee for Community College, Saugerties Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Brinkman Is Given 5-10 Term, Other Court Cases

Mrs. Helen Mae Brinkman, former Chichester resident, who entered a plea of guilty to first degree manslaughter for the death of her infant daughter in 1958, was sentenced to a term of from 5 to 10 years at Westfield State Prison for Women at Bedford Hills Thursday afternoon in County Court.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino allowed credit for the 304 days she had spent in jail and also on motion of her attorney, Sherwood E. Davis, allowed credit for the two years and 172 days she spent in Matteawan State Hospital where she was committed shortly after the crime. Mrs. Brinkman had recently been returned to Ulster County to stand trial for the killing, after doctors held her sufficiently recovered to stand trial. She had been committed to Matteawan as being mentally incompetent to make a defense to the charge.

Robert Jay McCandless of Pennsylvania and his brother, John Ellsworth McCandless, a member of the Marine Corps, charged with having assaulted and robbed Mrs. Sarah Cooper, Ellenville boarding-house keeper last January 21, entered pleas of guilty to second degree assault after a jury had been partially selected. Robert W. Griggs appeared by assignment for the defendants.

They will be sentenced May 1 at 2 p. m.

Case Is Adjourned

The case of Robert Hendrickson and Bernard Ferraro, charged with third degree burglary and unlawful entry to the William Schmershal premises at Barclay Heights, Saugerties, was adjourned to June 5, when it may be moved for trial. A motion to inspect the grand jury minutes made by Hubert Richter, counsel, is pending.

The case of Richard D. Brown, Robert W. Dane, Kenneth W. Allen, Joseph W. McKeon and Anthony L. S. DeSoltis were adjourned to May 1 at 2 p. m. They are accused of entering a Wallkill store on March 8.

In adjourning the term until June when it is expected additional matters will be disposed of, County Judge Raymond J. Mino noted that over 30 civil cases had been disposed of during the present term of court, reducing the civil calendar by approximately 25 per cent. He thanked the jurors for their cooperation and noted that a large number of criminal cases had been disposed of by himself and Acting County Judge Francis X. Tucker.

Judge Mino told jurors who desired to continue to serve in June to so notify the clerk.

During their service as jurors Judge Mino told the jurors they had probably taken note of the inadequate facilities at the court house for the conduct of business and pointed out the need for jurors to repeatedly "climb the long series of steps" to the court room. He said the facilities for housing jurors during deliberation had also probably been noted and he suggested that they go back home and bring to the attention of their representatives on the board of supervisors the inadequate facilities. Need for a new county building to provide adequate facilities, Judge Mino said, had probably been forcefully brought to the attention of the jurors during their services at court. Judge Mino said he was particularly pleased at the work accomplished at the term, the first trial term over which he had presided since being named to the bench, succeeding former County Judge Louis G. Bruhn who had been elevated to the Supreme court bench.

Fire Damages Garage On Washington Ave.

A fire said to be of possible incendiary origin damaged a three-car, one-story, frame garage owned by Mary Scully of 158 Washington Avenue Thursday afternoon.

No cars were in the garage, firemen said, but items stored there and the structure were badly damaged. The blaze started near a rear window.

Probers Charge That Union Rules to Cost $3 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators charged today that arbitrary rules of an electricians union threaten to add $3 million to the cost of the Titan missile program.

Defense plans call for 12 squadrons of the intercontinental missiles.

Jerome S. Adlerman, counsel to the Senate Investigations subcommittee, claimed evidence that unionized electricians' refusal to permit the use of prefabricated electrical cable connections in the missile would add "a quarter of a million dollars per squadron to the cost, or a total of around $3 million."

The subcommittee chairman, John L. McClellan, D-Ark., demanding new federal laws to curb the rash of strikes and other labor troubles plaguing missile bases, called more witnesses for questioning on this and other matters.

"Where is America's patriotism?" he exploded Thursday after hearing testimony of strikes allegedly called to throw projects behind schedule and force payment of overtime wages to laborers at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a drive to meet project dates.

Robert Palmer, pictured as the top labor official at the base, denied heatedly that any strikes have been called there to force the payment of overtime.

Study on Park Site for School Due on May 3

A report resulting of a preliminary study of rock and cave structure under a Hasbrouck Park site being considered for a new school is due to be given at a May 3 meeting of the education board, it was learned today.

A geological survey was advised because of abandoned lime caves, subsequently used for mushroom growing, under the park area, and the study was ordered recently by Perkins & Will; school architects.

It is proposed to build the school on the Gross Street side of the park. Previous studies for city purposes have indicated that the cave area ends some distance east of the proposed school site, but the survey was advised because of possible secondary land disturbance resulting of any disruption of the undermined area.

The education board is expected to decide after review of the preliminary geological survey whether further study should be made on and near the proposed school site.

Budget Hearing Indicates Interest in Summer School

Mounting interest in summer sessions at Onteora Central School was evidenced during the public hearing on the 1961-62 school budget of $1,743,034 this week.

The question of why Onteora Central has not instituted summer classes was raised by Earl Christiana of Woodstock.

In reply to Christiana's question, District Principal William H. Deming said that the Onteora administration is thinking about it and summer sessions probably will come in a few years.

Trustee Arthur P. Knight was chairman of the budget hearing and read the various items. There was some opposition to certain items in the budget but no changes were made in planned appropriations in the budget which is roughly nine per cent higher than this year's budget.

Sharpest criticism on any item came from James J. Fairbairn of Shokan who questioned the appropriation for the Woodstock Guild. A total of $5,032 is alloted for the Guild in the new budget. Fairbairn charged that the figures were excessive and cited figures purportedly showing that all the monies appropriated last year were not spent. Principal Deming dissented sharply from Fairbairn's protest, challenging the source of his information and its accuracy.

District voters will vote on the budget and one Board of Education vacancy on Wednesday, May 3, between the hours of 2 p. m. and 9 p. m. at designated polling centers in Boiceville, Shandaken, West Hurley and Woodstock.

Meeting on May 2

The annual school district meeting will be held in the main building at Boiceville on Tuesday, May 2, at 7:30 p. m. An informal discussion may be held at this time on the school budget or any other matters that pertain to the conduct of the meeting. However, voters may not increase or reduce the amount of any item of the budget at this meeting.

Candidates for the 5-year term on the Board of Education are David R. Fox, the incumbent, and R. C. Cruthers of West Shokan. Fox was named by the Board to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of John Haggerty of West Hurley and is a candidate for re-election for the full term.

Residents who have registered for the May, 1961, annual meeting on July 12 or 13, 1960, or any other registration date held during this school year are eligible to vote on Wednesday, May 3. It is not possible for residents to register on May 2 or 3, 1961 to gain voting eligibility for the annual meeting on May 3, 1961.

The new budget is $143,330 higher than the 1960-61 budget. Increased costs for instructional services and fixed charges are primarily responsible for the budget increase. These costs deal with teacher's salaries and pension payments and are mandated by state and local faculty salary regulations.

The increased costs scheduled for auxiliary agencies are due mainly to purchase of a new school bus at a cost of $10,000. Several of the district's present buses are over nine years of age.

Two Resolutions

Two separate propositions are again being submitted for voter approval. One would authorize the Board of Education to appropriate $5,400 for student accident insurance. School officials said this insurance proved its worth during the 1960-61 school year and continuance of the same will provide necessary and adequate protection for the children of the district.

The second proposition authorizes expenditure of $500 to the following district libraries Olive, $100; Phoenicia $100; Pine Hill, $50; Woodstock, $250. These libraries render special service to district students.

Estimated tax rates for 1961-62 on a tax levy of $1,140,573 by towns, including propositions I and II and surtaxes in Woodstock and West Hurley follow: Woodstock, $100.29; Lexington, $19.594; Shandaken, $40.648; Olive, $86.711; Hurley, $43.358; and Marbletown, $47.399.

Major items in the budget are, as usual, instructional services which amounts to $864,963 or or roughly 50.64 per cent of the budget and auxiliary agencies, $271,120, about 15.87 per cent of the total budget.

W'stock P-TA Recommends Another Vote on Bond Issue

The Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association has adopted a resolution asking the Onteora Board of Education to re-submit the $1,016,500 bond issue to the voters of the Onteora Central Schools District prior to July 1, 1961.

The resolution adopted by the P-TA executive committee will be presented to the general membership for approval on Thursday, May 4. P-TA president Jack Gibson has announced.

The P-TA resolution says in part that "the school-age population of the district will continue to grow and the critical shortage of 19 classrooms will still be there in September."

The bond issue as originally presented by the Onteora Board of Education" is the best plan presently available to meet this shortage," the P-TA resolution says.

"In support of this bond issue, we urge the board to inform the public of the cost of double sessions versus the cost of the bond issue stated in terms of tax increase per thousand dollars of assessed valution," the resolution continues.

Pledge Support

"We further urge the Board of Education to re-examine their public relations promotion in support of the re-submitted bond issue," says the resolution.

The P-TA pledged its solid support of the bond issue and urges all voters in the Woodstock district to vote for the bond issue if it is re-submitted. The resolution also directs the executive committee of the Woodstock P-TA to cooperate with any groups working for passage of the bond issue and to offer their assistance in presenting the facts to the voters.

The Woodstock P-TA is the first organization in the central district to recommend re-submission of the same issue which was defeated on April 10 by a vote of 1,422 to 1,272.

At its recent meeting the Onteora Board of Education voted 5-3 to extend option on the Epstein site in Phoenicia for another six months, but did not take any definitive action with respect to the future of the bond issue.

Square Club's Dinner Saturday

More than 150 persons are expected to attend the Woodstock Square Club's annual Citizen of the Year dinner Saturday night at Deanie's.

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson will receive the annual citation. Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson will be the principal speaker. Cocktails are scheduled at 6:30 p. m. with dinner at 7 p. m.

Central Ordered To Continue Its Beeline Service

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The New York Central Railroad was ordered today to continue its Beeliner service on the St. Lawrence Division between Syracuse and Massena.

At the same time, the Public Service Commission gave the Central permission to discontinue its night train between Utica and Massena, via Watertown, and its coach service between Philadelphia, (Jefferson County) and Ogdensburg.

That service may end 15 days after the Central notifies the public, the PSC said.

The Central's partial victory in its bid to end the entire passenger operation on the division because of declining patronage was fortified by a commission examiner's report.

Examiner Russell E. Dunn said that, because of little use of service on an already reduced operation, there was "serious doubt as to how long any passenger service can be continued" in the St. Lawrence Valley.

Dunn recommended that the Central be permitted "without prejudice" to renew its request, "should future patronage belie the claims of opposition witnesses" who testified at several hearings.

In ordering the Central to continue Beeliner service, the PSC specified that trains must leave Syracuse each weekday morning to arrive at Massena about noon. The returning train must leave Massena in the late afternoon.

The schedule, the PSC said, should enable passengers to make connections at Syracuse with trains on the Main Line.

Today's action marked the third time in five years the Central has been authorized to drop passenger trains from the St. Lawrence Division. Six trains were eliminated in 1956 and four more in 1958.

The Beeliners — single-car diesels—operate between Syracuse and Ogdensburg and between Syracuse and Massena, both via Watertown and Philadelphia.

The other remaining service has consisted of a conventional train carrying a sleeping car between Utica and Massena, via Lowville, Carthage and Watertown.

In its application, the Central said its operations on the division had resulted in a $193,400 loss the first 11 months of 1960.

Residents of the area contended public convenience and necessity required continued service. They argued that patronage would be adequate if trains made suitable connections with Main Line trains.

Try to make chili con carne the day before you plan to serve it. This dish benefits from an overnight stay in the refrigerator because its flavors develop. Reheat it very slowly.

3 Men Charged With Possessing Counterfeit Bills

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Secret Service and state and city police swooped down on a printer and two other men early today and charged them with possessing and selling counterfeit $10 and $20 bills.

The arrests broke a ring, police said, that had printed at least $10,000 worth of counterfeit notes in the last two weeks.

The bills, said to be of inferior quality, probably were printed locally, police said.

None of the three men was charged with printing counterfeit money, however.

Held for arraignment were:

Paul A. Lynch, 30, a printer employed at a local factory, and Clifford Munger, 24, both of Syracuse, and William P. Thompson, 22, of suburban Liverpool.

Lynch was charged with possessing and selling counterfeit $20 notes; Munger, with possessing and passing counterfeit $10 notes, and Thompson, with possessing and passing counterfeit $20 notes.

The Secret Service said its probe was continuing.

Schisa, director of public health nurses in the County of Ulster, were present to discuss the physical set up of the town office, due to the renovation of the town building. A donation was made to the American Nurses Foundation and the latest program for Geriatoris Nursing service was explained.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ransom were Sunday evening callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bogart and family.

3 Men Charged With Possessing Counterfeit Bills

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Secret Service and state and city police swooped down on a printer and two other men early today and charged them with possessing and selling counterfeit $10 and $20 bills.

The arrests broke a ring, police said, that had printed at least $10,000 worth of counterfeit notes in the last two weeks.

The bills, said to be of inferior quality, probably were printed locally, police said.

None of the three men was charged with printing counterfeit money, however.

Held for arraignment were:

Paul A. Lynch, 30, a printer employed at a local factory, and Clifford Munger, 24, both of Syracuse, and William P. Thompson, 22, of suburban Liverpool.

Lynch was charged with possessing and selling counterfeit $20 notes; Munger, with possessing and passing counterfeit $10 notes, and Thompson, with possessing and passing counterfeit $20 notes.

The Secret Service said its probe was continuing.

Central Ordered To Continue Its Beeline Service

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The New York Central Railroad was ordered today to continue its Beeliner service on the St. Lawrence Division between Syracuse and Massena.

At the same time, the Public Service Commission gave the Central permission to discontinue its night train between Utica and Massena, via Watertown, and its coach service between Philadelphia, (Jefferson County) and Ogdensburg.

That service may end 15 days after the Central notifies the public, the PSC said.

The Central's partial victory in its bid to end the entire passenger operation on the division because of declining patronage was fortified by a commission examiner's report.

Examiner Russell E. Dunn said that, because of little use of service on an already reduced operation, there was "serious doubt as to how long any passenger service can be continued" in the St. Lawrence Valley.

Dunn recommended that the Central be permitted "without prejudice" to renew its request, "should future patronage belie the claims of opposition witnesses" who testified at several hearings.

In ordering the Central to continue Beeliner service, the PSC specified that trains must leave Syracuse each weekday morning to arrive at Massena about noon. The returning train must leave Massena in the late afternoon.

The schedule, the PSC said, should enable passengers to make connections at Syracuse with trains on the Main Line.

Today's action marked the third time in five years the Central has been authorized to drop passenger trains from the St. Lawrence Division. Six trains were eliminated in 1956 and four more in 1958.

The Beeliners — single-car diesels—operate between Syracuse and Ogdensburg and between Syracuse and Massena, both via Watertown and Philadelphia.

The other remaining service has consisted of a conventional train carrying a sleeping car between Utica and Massena, via Lowville, Carthage and Watertown.

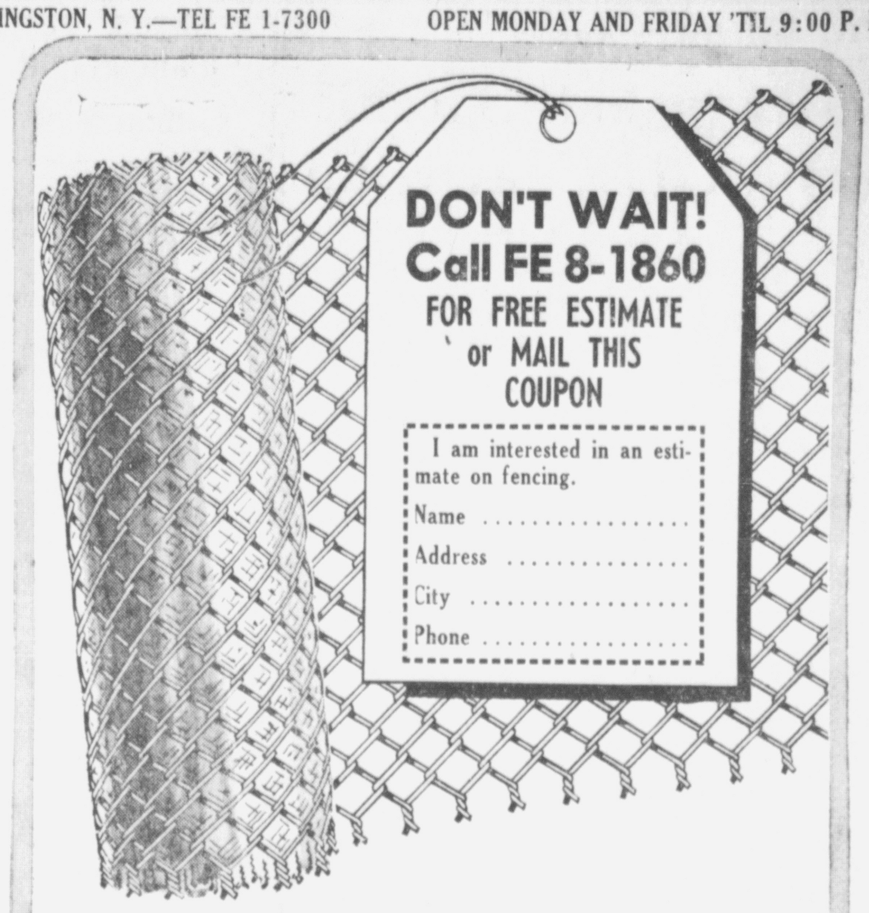

In its application, the Central said its operations on the division had resulted in a $193,400 loss the first 11 months of 1960.

Residents of the area contended public convenience and necessity required continued service. They argued that patronage would be adequate if trains made suitable connections with Main Line trains.

After Kennedy's Appeal

Editors Ask Specific Guides on Censorship

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy urges that American newspaper publishers consider some form of self-censorship in light of cold war threats to national security.

He has given no particulars on what he has in mind. But he says his administration would cooperate wholeheartedly if the press would "consider and recommend the voluntary assumption of specific new steps or machinery."

Place Security First: JFK

The President emphasized that he was not proposing government censorship or new secret classifications, which could be abused, on government activity.

He suggested that the newspapers weigh not only whether a story is news but also whether publication is in the interest of national security.

A cross-section of publishers adopted a restrained attitude toward Kennedy's appeal "to heed the duty of self-restraint" in their news columns. Those interviewed supported the general idea, but some insisted on specific guidelines.

Kennedy made his proposal Thursday night in an address before 1,700 publishers, editors and other newspaper executives and their wives at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The dinner address was part of a two-day speech and conference trip.

Kennedy — deeply concerned over rebel disregard of an East-West cease-fire appeal in Laos—today opens a new series of talks on world dangers with leading Americans and United Nations officials.

To Meet Hoover, Mac

Kennedy first scheduled meetings with former President Herbert Hoover and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. He arranged to drive from his suite in the Carlyle Hotel to the Waldorf-Astoria, where Hoover and MacArthur have apartments.

Then he invited Adlai E. Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations, and U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to lunch in his own quarters.

His purpose was to acquaint all four with White House views—and seek their thoughts—on Cuba, Laos and other trouble spots.

Hoover is the fifth leading Republican to confer with Kennedy on world problems in recent days. The others were former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Kennedy said in his proposal for consideration of self-censorship:

"If the press is awaiting a declaration of war before it imposes the self-discipline of combat conditions then I can only say that no war ever posed a greater threat to our security.

Remark Rates Applause

"If you are awaiting a finding of 'clear and present danger,' then I can only say that the danger has never been more clear and its presence has never been more imminent."

Kennedy said that to meet "this national peril" there are two requirements: far greater public information as well as far greater official secrecy.

He was applauded when he said no administration official should exploit his remarks to censor news, cover up mistakes or "withhold from the press and the public the facts they deserve to know."

He again was applauded—for the only other time in his speech—when he said no president should fear public scrutiny of his program and asked the help of publishers "in the tremendous task of informing and alerting the American people."

Rebels Claiming Victory in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Western-backed Laotian government's noon target hour for a cease-fire in the civil war passed today with no response from the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

Proclaiming "we are the victors," rebel broadcasts were still demanding Thursday that the Vientiane government send a delegation to their headquarters at Xieng Khouang, in eastern Laos, "to negotiate and discuss the cease-fire and armistice question."

Won't Bow to Demand

The Vientiane government showed no disposition to bow to the rebel demand and instead hoped that negotiations would get under way this weekend in Luang Prabang, the royal capital 138 miles north of Vientiane, at the ceremonial cremation of the late King Sisavang Vong.

Central Hudson awarded prizes to the three top winners in each school and the first prize entry from each school was considered for the grand award judging.

The grand judging in the lamp building contest was conducted by Clarence F. Graser, industrial design manager of International Business Machines in Poughkeepsie, Miss Jan Reynolds, lighting and color consultant of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., Walter H. Garrett, regional engineer, lamp division of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, and Ralph A. Reed of the General Electric Company.

Judges for the kitchen planning competition included Mrs. Lucille Palmer, home service consultant of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, Mrs. Eileen Kelly, home economist of builder sales department of the General Electric Company, and Mrs. Jean Paul, electric home service director of Orange and Rockland Utilities.

Bares Nazi Massacre

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP)— A woman witness at the trial of Adolf Eichmann quietly told the story today of a Nazi massacre in a Polish village, the murder of her own father, and the slaughter of children who wept.

"I saw this with my own eyes," said Eda Lichtmann, testifying in the trial of the former Gestapo officer accused by Israel of major complicity in the destruction of an estimated six million European Jews.

Mrs. Lichtmann's eyes were hidden behind dark glasses as she told her story in a flat, tired voice. When she finished, she removed the glasses for an instant and wiped her eyes with a handkerchief.

Brushes From Soviet

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said Thursday Cuba has bought 48,240 shaving brushes from a Soviet bloc country. The radio said the purchase would supply more than half the nations's shaving brush needs for this year.

Stall on Cease-Fire

Lincoln White declined to discuss the question of a "cutoff point" for U.S. patience in waiting for the rebel forces, which now hold much of northern Laos, to agree to end the fighting. However, authorities said the Kennedy administration was not willing to wait very much longer.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined irregularly early this afternoon in the slowest trading of the week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .30 at 242.60 with industrials down .50, and both rails and utilities unchanged.

Losses of most key stocks were narrow. Some fell a point or so and a wide assortment were unchanged.

Motors were narrowly mixed and steels unchanged to lower. The aircraft-missiles and electronics made minor moves, showing no trend. Drugs, tobaccos and rubbers drifted off. Oils, nonferrous metals and chemicals were irregular.

Some of the wide-moving favorites of recent weeks continued to shrink under profit taking but a recovery tendency was apparent here and there. Kerr-McGee Oil erased a 2-point loss. American Machine & Foundry more than halved a loss exceeding 2 points. Philadelphia & Reading was down about 2 points more.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .56 at 678.98.

High Court Rules Defendants May Refuse Answers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Defendants rightfully may refuse to answer police questions on "matters which might be used against them," the state's highest court says.

The Court of Appeals made the point Thursday in reversing unanimously the conviction of two men on charges of taking dimes from parking meters. Richard Bianculli and Guiseppo D'Orio, both of New York City, won a new trial because the prosecution in their original trial submitted evidence that they refused to answer police questions following their arrest.

Other Decisions

In other decisions, the high court unanimously:

Upheld a state law permitting localities to levy real-estate taxes on house trailers. The New York Mobile Homes Association, representing owners of trailer parks, had challenged an assessment on trailers by the Town of Chili, Monroe County.

Upheld the legality of a Buffalo city charter revision that permits Democratic Mayor Frank A. Sedita to succeed himself in office. Sedita immediately announced he would be willing to run for another term in November. Roland R. Benzoa, a Republican minority member of the Buffalo City Council had challenged a 1960 change in the charter on the contention that a referendum should have been held on the revision.

Granted the request of Edward B. Brown, an inmate of Dannemora State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, for a sanity test because convicts cannot be "unalterably abandoned and forgotten by the remainder of society." Lower courts had refused Brown's plea on the ground that a prisoner's place of detention was "an administrative matter not subject to court intervention."

In the parking-meter case, the Court of Appeals noted that Bianculli had 2,177 dimes and a key designed to open meters when arrested Oct. 3, 1957. A paper bag with 15 coin canisters was found in a trash basket.

New Trial Ordered

"We have no hesitancy in saying that, on this record, the evidence is sufficient" to convict the defendants, the judges observed.

But they added:

"There must be a reversal and a new trial ordered for substantial error in the admission of evidence."

Bianculli and D'Orio had been convicted of second-degree grand larceny, petit larceny, conspiracy and possessing burglar's tools.

Trailer-park owners who challenged the law on real-estate taxes contended that trailers were not real property and that a trailer owned by one person could not be considered part of land owned by another.

The court held that the law represented "an attempt to secure reimbursement from trailer-dwellers for some share of the expense" of municipal services.

Following the court's decision on the legality of Buffalo's charter revision, Sedita, in his first term in the $20,000-a-year mayoral post, issued this statement:

"If the Democratic Executive Committee sees fit to endorse me for another term and if the people of Buffalo want me, I'd like the opportunity to continue my programs."

Brown's case stemmed from his transfer in 1957 to the Dannemora hospital from Attica State Prison, to which he had been sentenced to an indeterminate term in 1952 on a charge of first-degree rape.

The transfer was based on a psychiatric examination. Brown contended he was not insane.

Awaiting City Commitment

"Your Committee is presently awaiting a commitment from the City of Kingston with respect to the furnishing, for Comunity College purposes of water and sewer facilities. A a meeting of the Community College Committee on Wednesday, March 29, 1961, Mayor Radel verbally assured us that he thought arrangements could be made. When a firm committment has been made by the City, your Committee will be in a position to submit all of the information on the three sites to the State Education Department for approval and an indication of the matching funds available for each site."

Prior to taking up the matter of Community College, the sole purpose of the special meeting, Major H. Edgar Timmerman, Ulster County Civil Defense Director, spoke on the three-day Operation Alert 1961 which was in progress. He spoke of the public participation this afternoon and asked all supervisors to see that there was full cooperation. In the event of refusal to cooperate Timmerman said arrests would be made. He also referred to the county-wide "schools go home" test, the first ever held on a county-wide basis.

Communications Read

A number of communications were read by Deputy Clerk Joseph A. Snyder whose mother died on Wednesday.

Among the communications were those from Alfred S. Holmes attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schaller in reference to the 50-acre tract at Saugerties; Saugerties Parent-Teachers Association; trustees of the village of Ellenville; Saugerties Area Chamber of Commerce; Citizens Advisory Committee for a Community College and the Community College Committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce; Town of Gardiner Civic and Taxpayers Association of Gardiner. These letters, referred to the College Committee by Chairman Robert Phinney, expressed the advantages of sites in the respective areas of the county.

A communication was also received from Richard J. Whelan, general manager of the IBM plant in Kingston in reference to the 50-acres offered adjacent to the IBM Country Club at Flatbush.

Adolph Hwalinski offered a 53½ acre site in the town of Ulster westerly of the city of Kingston adjacent to the Valentine Burgevin, Inc., property off Pearl Street for the sum of $15,000 and Burgevin, Inc., offered a strip of land 50 feet wide extending westerly from the water storage tank on Round Top at Pearl Street extension as a gift for a right of way to the Hwalinski property. That offer expires March 1, 1962.

P-TA Writes Board

In a communication from the Board of Education of Saugerties Central School District and the Saugerties P-TA the Saugerties site was favored as being most centrally located to the "largest percentage of population" in the area which would send students to the college. It was pointed out that it was close to Greene County and also Columbia County which would send students to the college.

Ellenville board of trustees pointed out that Ellenville was "close to the geographical center of the county and suggested the college be located somewhere south or southwest of Kingston. The letter also urged action, calling the Community College a "political football" to the present date.

Letters From Mayor

A letter from Mayor Edwin F. Radel referring to a survey by the city engineer in relation to the closeness of city water and sewage to the Pearl Street site, was read. It stated there was ample water available for domestic and fire purposes and the sewer line was close and could support a school population of 1,000. The survey was "preliminary" but indicated extension of services could be easily accomplished.

A second letter from Mayor Radel referred to Kingston as the "hub" of the county from which a large portion of the students would come. He suggested a site near Kingston should be given "first preference."

The Webber resolution calling for a refereudum led to lengthy discussions by numerous members of the board on the roll call.

Calls Precedure Logical

Chairman Webber spoke on the resolution as did Supervisor Banyo (R), a member of the committee. Banyo said many would call the resolution for a referendum as delaying a college. He said this was not so. It would take considerable time to work out preliminary problems and select a site, work out costs, the county's share of the cost of building and later operation costs and he said since the the Education Law provided for a referendum it was the logical thing to do. Meanwhile the matter of site and costs could be worked out and he called the referendum "the democratic way" by allowing the people to express their opinion since they were the ones financially concerned. A college could not be constructed in 1961 and he fixed a target date of 1962.

Supervisor Roger Mabie (D), Esopus, also a member of the committee praised the work of the committee thus far for its "non-partisan" manner, said the committee and Chairman Webber had worked diligently and he opposed a suggestion which had been made that trustees be named and permitted to take over. He suggested keeping the matter within the College Committee until a site is selected. He referred to the college training of many members of the board and the committee but he opposed the referendum.

Supervisor James T. McCardle (D), Ninth ward, said the record showed both parties favored a Community College and there had been no reference to a referendum until now. He held that the Citizens' Advisory Committee had investigated the "sentiment" of the county people and it appeared "favorable" and he saw no need for a referendum since there had been no apparent opposition.

No Delay, He Says

Majority Leader Jesse McHugh (R), Shawangunk said the referendum would not delay the college. At this time the cost of the project was unknown. He favored the college but he suggested it was "time to think of the taxpayers" and said if the facts were shown to the people he was sure the referendum would be favorable.

Abram Molyneaux (R), Woodstock, a member of the committee, said all supervisors favored a college but a cost survey should be made. He also referred to the law which provided for the referendum.

Supervisor Edwin Chase (R), Wawarsing, member of the committee favored the referendum.

For People to Decide

In voting for the referendum Supervisor Turck (D), Fourth ward, said he was for a college but felt the democratic way was through a referendum in which the people could speak.

Minority Leader Gaffney (D), Lloyd, said it was good to move slowly, but there had been only one letter suggesting that the board move "slowly" and he felt that the people favored the college. People who "oppose" are more apt to express an opinion than those who favor a proposition and he said he felt by now any concerted opposition should have been heard. He opposed the referendum. He called attention to the fact that the proposition must be ready by September to get it on the ballot this fall and he said in the "hurry" to get the proposition on the ballot "we may come up with something which is not palitable and the college may be lost for a number of years." He did not oppose the referendum as a "delaying" tactic but he said a "crash" program necessary to get the matter on the ballot might be "bad," resulting in a misunderstanding by the voters and loss of the college.

After the vote Mayor Eugene Gulsker addressed the board. He said his talk was "academic" now that the referendum had been voted. He said he had contacted the State University, which was vitally interested in the program and had been informed the State University was "ignorant" of what has been going on in Ulster County relative to the college. He say there was need for a college, that Russia was forging ahead because it is educating its people. Mayor Glusker, a Democrat, chided the board on having called a meeting for 8 p. m., kept many of the public waiting hours and said the board should consider courtesy to those who had come to attend and speak at the meeting.

Supervisor George Majestic (D), Gardiner spoke for New Paltz as a site and said the State College there would be a great help with it's vast library. "Let's make New Paltz the College Town and Kingston the County Seat," he concluded.

Supervisor Peter Williams (R), Saugerties referred to the state recommendation that the Community College be located "north of Kingston."

Supervisor Edwin Chase (R), Wawarsing called attention to the winter road conditions over the mountain if a college were located in New Paltz and said it should be located south of Kingston where the valleys converge.

Prior to adjournment out of respect to the memory of Mrs. John A. Snyder, mother of Clerk Robert A. Snyder, Majority Leader McHugh said he favored a Community College but he had not suggested a site in his town but if the college could be located in his town and the cost be not over $750,000 his town would assume 'one third of the cost."

Supervisor Benjamin Storms (R), second ward, told the supervisors Dr. E. Franklin Hall had been engaged as County Health Commissioner and several candidates had been interviewed for the position of director of the Tumor Clinic.

Tax Angle Can Govern Possible Stock Growth

ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "I have held shares of Continental Can for 40 years and am wondering if I should sell it and buy Union Pacific, which you speak of favorably as an income stock. Time is running out on me. I enjoy reading your column and would appreciate your advice." — J. K.

A) This would be a good switch except for the tax angle. Currently, Continental Can is selling to yield about 4.5 per cent and Union Pacific about 5.0 per cent. However, you have a large profit in Continental Can, and selling it would probably mean a significant reduction in your principal because of the capital gains tax. In this case, your annual cash return on Union Pacific might actually be less than what you are now receiving from Continental Can.

Q) "I am 40 years old, married with two children, and earn over $12,000 a year. About five years ago, I began investing conservatively and presently hold shares of Niagara Mohawk Power, National Fuel Gas and Florida Public Utilities. Now that I have a sound group of dividend-payers, I am looking for three stocks with greater appreciation prospects."—M. S.

A) First, let me congratulate you on the sensible way you have approached investing. You have a good basis upon which to build a larger, more aggressive portfolio.

For this purpose I suggest that you consider the following: Spartans Industries (NYSE) is an ably managed mass producer and distributor of popular priced wearing apparel for men, women, and children. I believe the company's move into the discount store field will enlarge earnings considerably.

Kerr-McGee (NYSE) is a medium-sized, fully integrated oil and gas company with expanding interests in other natural resource products such as helium.

Universal Match (NYSE) is widely diversified in the area of coin-handling equipment, vending machines, and military items. Its new electronic money-changing device has very big possibilities.

Five Candidates

country is "in the front line trenches." He wants the teaching of basic skills. He charged that children are being taught collectivism, socialism and centralized government, "that precinct politics is rotten," etc., and that this kind of education "is destroying our nation."

In answer to another question, Mansfield said he sends two of his children to St. Peter's Parochial School, Rosendale, and that his older son attends New Paltz Central High School.

Stedge, a magistrate in the town of Ulster, was asked if political office was compatible with service on the school board.

Office Is Public Trust

He replied that he has been in office about a year and a half and that he has yet to have anyone in high political office ask him for special favor, that the principle of honest public officials is of supreme importance, particularly in view of our world confrontation by an alien philosophy of government, and that the "only way we can really win is with another ideology" which can match and over-match Communism.

Stedge said we claim to believe in democracy and yet question the faith of our officials. "I believe a public office is a public trust," he said, explaining that he would never decide a question of education on a political basis but on what "would do the most good for the most people over a long period of time."

Carries Out Her Convictions

Mrs. Murphy was asked, "If elected what philosophy will you follow in evaluating the work of the administration?" She explained that she has been head of the mathematics department at Kingston High School for many years (since 1942) and has never "been dictated to by any superintendent or high school principal. If you know me very well you know that I really have a will of my own and have no fear in carrying out my convictions once decided."

The following question was addressed to all of the candidates: "What are the primary objectives of public school education in a democracy?"

Mrs. Murphy replied that it is to educate a child to live with his community, to be able to take his place in life, to uphold American ideals and contribute as much as he is able to his community and human welfare, " and perhaps we ought not to forget that we must teach a child to live with himself. If you can't live with yourself you can't live with your associates."

Stedge expressed the belief that our faith in our own system could be heightened that our children should understand the meaning and precious quality of democracy and accept and believe in it.

MacKinnon said that students should be taught to respect democracy, become useful citizens, and given preparation to earn a living by which they will be able to maintain their pride and self-respect.

Singer Takes Exception

Singer took exception with Mrs. Murphy's statement that one objective of public school education is to make it possible for a person to learn to live with himself. He said he feels a person should be taught the "difference between right and wrong."

Mansfield cited as objectives of public school education "Love of God of country, of home and those great human ties" which bind us together.

Residents go to the polls from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday to elect two candidates for the board of education. They will succeed President Robert Herzog and Vice-President Robert O'Reilly. Members of the board are elected for five-year terms. The post is unsalaried.

Last night's meeting was the final in the series which began at the Port Ewen School almost two weeks ago. A second meeting was held at the George Washington School last Monday.

To Air SEC Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that two prominent members of the American Stock Exchange engaged in market rigging and illegal stock sales approaching $10 million were to be detailed today by federal investigators.

Lawyers for the Securities and Exchange Commission, after completing a year-long investigation of exchange members Jerry and Gerard Re, were ready to sum up the findings in a bulky legal brief.

The Res, exchange specialists who conducted the daily market auctions in about 20 stocks, also were to file a brief in their own behalf through attorney Milton Gould.

After Kennedy's Appeal

Editors Ask Specific Guides on Censorship

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy urges that American newspaper publishers consider some form of self-censorship in light of cold war threats to national security.

He has given no particulars on what he has in mind. But he says his administration would cooperate wholeheartedly if the press would "consider and recommend the voluntary assumption of specific new steps or machinery."

Place Security First: JFK

The President emphasized that he was not proposing government censorship or new secret classifications, which could be abused, on government activity.

He suggested that the newspapers weigh not only whether a story is news but also whether publication is in the interest of national security.

A cross-section of publishers adopted a restrained attitude toward Kennedy's appeal "to heed the duty of self-restraint" in their news columns. Those interviewed supported the general idea, but some insisted on specific guidelines.

Kennedy made his proposal Thursday night in an address before 1,700 publishers, editors and other newspaper executives and their wives at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The dinner address was part of a two-day speech and conference trip.

Kennedy — deeply concerned over rebel disregard of an East-West cease-fire appeal in Laos—today opens a new series of talks on world dangers with leading Americans and United Nations officials.

To Meet Hoover, Mac

Kennedy first scheduled meetings with former President Herbert Hoover and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. He arranged to drive from his suite in the Carlyle Hotel to the Waldorf-Astoria, where Hoover and MacArthur have apartments.

Then he invited Adlai E. Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations, and U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to lunch in his own quarters.

His purpose was to acquaint all four with White House views—and seek their thoughts—on Cuba, Laos and other trouble spots.

Hoover is the fifth leading Republican to confer with Kennedy on world problems in recent days. The others were former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Kennedy said in his proposal for consideration of self-censorship:

"If the press is awaiting a declaration of war before it imposes the self-discipline of combat conditions then I can only say that no war ever posed a greater threat to our security.

Remark Rates Applause

"If you are awaiting a finding of 'clear and present danger,' then I can only say that the danger has never been more clear and its presence has never been more imminent."

Kennedy said that to meet "this national peril" there are two requirements: far greater public information as well as far greater official secrecy.

He was applauded when he said no administration official should exploit his remarks to censor news, cover up mistakes or "withhold from the press and the public the facts they deserve to know."

He again was applauded—for the only other time in his speech—when he said no president should fear public scrutiny of his program and asked the help of publishers "in the tremendous task of informing and alerting the American people."

Ever add turnips, along with the usual onion, carrots and celery to pot roast?

Rebels Claiming Victory in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Western-backed Laotian government's noon target hour for a cease-fire in the civil war passed today with no response from the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

Proclaiming "we are the victors," rebel broadcasts were still demanding Thursday that the Vientiane government send a delegation to their headquarters at Xieng Khouang, in eastern Laos, "to negotiate and discuss the cease-fire and armistice question."

Won't Bow to Demand

The Vientiane government showed no disposition to bow to the rebel demand and instead hoped that negotiations would get under way this weekend in Luang Prabang, the royal capital 138 miles north of Vientiane, at the ceremonial cremation of the late King Sisavang Vong.

and the students whose lamps and kitchen models placed first in each of the 40 participating Mid-Hudson Valley schools.

Central Hudson awarded prizes to the three top winners in each school and the first prize entry from each school was considered for the grand award judging.

The grand judging in the lamp building contest was conducted by Clarence F. Graser, industrial design manager of International Business Machines in Poughkeepsie, Miss Jan Reynolds, lighting and color consultant of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., Walter H. Garrett, regional engineer, lamp division of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, and Ralph A. Reed of the General Electric Company.

Judges for the kitchen planning competition included Mrs. Lucille Palmer, home service consultant of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, Mrs. Eileen Kelly, home economist of builder sales department of the General Electric Company, and Mrs. Jean Paul, electric home service director of Orange and Rockland Utilities.

Bares Nazi Massacre

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP)— A woman witness at the trial of Adolf Eichmann quietly told the story today of a Nazi massacre in a Polish village, the murder of her own father, and the slaughter of children who wept.

"I saw this with my own eyes," said Eda Lichtmann, testifying in the trial of the former Gestapo officer accused by Israel of major complicity in the destruction of an estimated six million European Jews.

Mrs. Lichtmann's eyes were hidden behind dark glasses as she told her story in a flat, tired voice. When she finished, she removed the glasses for an instant and wiped her eyes with a handkerchief.

Brushes From Soviet

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said Thursday Cuba has bought 48,240 shaving brushes from a Soviet bloc country. The radio said the purchase would supply more than half the nations's shaving brush needs for this year.

Stall on Cease-Fire

Lincoln White declined to discuss the question of a "cutoff point" for U.S. patience in waiting for the rebel forces, which now hold much of northern Laos, to agree to end the fighting. However, authorities said the Kennedy administration was not willing to wait very much longer.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined irregularly early this afternoon in the slowest trading of the week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .30 at 242.60 with industrials down .50, and both rails and utilities unchanged.

Losses of most key stocks were narrow. Some fell a point or so and a wide assortment were unchanged.

Motors were narrowly mixed and steels unchanged to lower. The aircraft-missiles and electronics made minor moves, showing no trend. Drugs, tobaccos and rubbers drifted off. Oils, nonferrous metals and chemicals were irregular.

Some of the wide-moving favorites of recent weeks continued to shrink under profit taking but a recovery tendency was apparent here and there. Kerr-McGee Oil erased a 2-point loss. American Machine & Foundry more than halved a loss exceeding 2 points. Philadelphia & Reading was down about 2 points more.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .56 at 678.98.

High Court Rules Defendants May Refuse Answers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Defendants rightfully may refuse to answer police questions on "matters which might be used against them," the state's highest court says.

The Court of Appeals made the point Thursday in reversing unanimously the conviction of two men on charges of taking dimes from parking meters. Richard Bianculli and Guiseppo D'Orio, both of New York City, won a new trial because the prosecution in their original trial submitted evidence that they refused to answer police questions following their arrest.

Other Decisions

In other decisions, the high court unanimously:

Upheld a state law permitting localities to levy real-estate taxes on house trailers. The New York Mobile Homes Association, representing owners of trailer parks, had challenged an assessment on trailers by the Town of Chili, Monroe County.

Upheld the legality of a Buffalo city charter revision that permits Democratic Mayor Frank A. Sedita to succeed himself in office. Sedita immediately announced he would be willing to run for another term in November. Roland R. Benzoa, a Republican minority member of the Buffalo City Council had challenged a 1960 change in the charter on the contention that a referendum should have been held on the revision.

Granted the request of Edward B. Brown, an inmate of Dannemora State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, for a sanity test because convicts cannot be "unalterably abandoned and forgotten by the remainder of society." Lower courts had refused Brown's plea on the ground that a prisoner's place of detention was "an administrative matter not subject to court intervention."

In the parking-meter case, the Court of Appeals noted that Bianculli had 2,177 dimes and a key designed to open meters when arrested Oct. 3, 1957. A paper bag with 15 coin canisters was found in a trash basket.

New Trial Ordered

"We have no hesitancy in saying that, on this record, the evidence is sufficient" to convict the defendants, the judges observed.

But they added:

"There must be a reversal and a new trial ordered for substantial error in the admission of evidence."

Bianculli and D'Orio had been convicted of second-degree grand larceny, petit larceny, conspiracy and possessing burglar's tools.

Trailer-park owners who challenged the law on real-estate taxes contended that trailers were not real property and that a trailer owned by one person could not be considered part of land owned by another.

The court held that the law represented "an attempt to secure reimbursement from trailer-dwellers for some share of the expense" of municipal services.

Following the court's decision on the legality of Buffalo's charter revision, Sedita, in his first term in the $20,000-a-year mayoral post, issued this statement:

"If the Democratic Executive Committee sees fit to endorse me for another term and if the people of Buffalo want me, I'd like the opportunity to continue my programs."

Brown's case stemmed from his transfer in 1957 to the Dannemora hospital from Attica State Prison, to which he had been sentenced to an indeterminate term in 1952 on a charge of first-degree rape.

The transfer was based on a psychiatric examination. Brown contended he was not insane.

cent to the Kingston City line, consisting of separate parcels and a right of way, has been offered on a joint gift and purchase arrangement. Engineering reports on this site are available from local professional engineers.

Awaiting City Commitment

"Your Committee is presently awaiting a commitment from the City of Kingston with respect to the furnishing, for Community College purposes of water and sewer facilities. A a meeting of the Community College Committee on Wednesday, March 29, 1961, Mayor Radel verbally assured us that he thought arrangements could be made. When a firm committment has been made by the City, your Committee will be in a position to submit all of the information on the three sites to the State Education Department for approval and an indication of the matching funds available for each site."

Prior to taking up the matter of Community College, the sole purpose of the special meeting, Major H. Edgar Timmerman, Ulster County Civil Defense Director, spoke on the three-day Operation Alert 1961 which was in progress. He spoke of the public participation this afternoon and asked all supervisors to see that there was full cooperation. In the event of refusal to cooperate Timmerman said arrests would be made. He also referred to the county-wide "schools go home" test, the first ever held on a county-wide basis.

Communications Read

A number of communications were read by Deputy Clerk Joseph A. Snyder whose mother died on Wednesday.

Among the communications were those from Alfred S. Holmes attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Schaller in reference to the 50-acre tract at Saugerties; Saugerties Parent-Teachers Association; trustees of the village of Ellenville; Saugerties Area Chamber of Commerce; Citizens Advisory Committee for a Community College and the Community College Committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce; Town of Gardiner Civic and Taxpayers Association of Gardiner. These letters, referred to the College Committee by Chairman Robert Phinney, expressed the advantages of sites in the respective areas of the county.

A communication was also received from Richard J. Whelan, general manager of the IBM plant in Kingston in reference to the 50-acres offered adjacent to the IBM Country Club at Flatbush.

Adolph Hwalinski offered a 53½ acre site in the town of Ulster westerly of the city of Kingston adjacent to the Valentine Burgevin, Inc., property off Pearl Street for the sum of $15,000 and Burgevin, Inc., offered a strip of land 50 feet wide extending westerly from the water storage tank on Round Top at Pearl Street extension as a gift for a right of way to the Hwalinski property. That offer expires March 1, 1962.

P-TA Writes Board

In a communication from the Board of Education of Saugerties Central School District and the Saugerties P-TA the Saugerties site was favored as being most centrally located to the "largest percentage of population" in the area which would send students to the college. It was pointed out that it was close to Greene County and also Columbia County which would send students to the college.

Ellenville board of trustees pointed out that Ellenville was "close to the geographical center of the county and suggested the college be located somewhere south or southwest of Kingston. The letter also urged action, calling the Community College a "political football" to the present date.

Letters From Mayor

A letter from Mayor Edwin F. Radel referring to a survey by the city engineer in relation to the closeness of city water and sewage to the Pearl Street site, was read. It stated there was ample water available for domestic and fire purposes and the sewer line was close and could support a school population of 1,000. The survey was "preliminary" but indicated extension of services could be easily accomplished.

A second letter from Mayor Radel referred to Kingston as the "hub" of the county from which a large portion of the students would come. He suggested a site near Kingston should be given "first preference."

The Webber resolution calling for a refereudum led to lengthy discussions by numerous members of the board on the roll call.

Calls Precedure Logical

Chairman Webber spoke on the resolution as did Supervisor Banyo (R), a member of the committee. Banyo said many would call the resolution for a referendum as delaying a college. He said this was not so. It would take considerable time to work out preliminary problems and select a site, work out costs, the county's share of the cost of building and later operation costs and he said since the the Education Law provided for a referendum it was the logical thing to do. Meanwhile the matter of site and costs could be worked out and he called the referendum "the democratic way" by allowing the people to express their opinion since they were the ones financially concerned. A college could not be constructed in 1961 and he fixed a target date of 1962.

Supervisor Roger Mabie (D), Esopus, also a member of the committee praised the work of the committee thus far for its "non-partisan" manner, said the committee and Chairman Webber had worked diligently and he opposed a suggestion which had been made that trustees be named and permitted to take over. He suggested keeping the matter within the College Committee until a site is selected. He referred to the college training of many members of the board and the committee but he opposed the referendum.

Supervisor James T. McCardle (D), Ninth ward, said the record showed both parties favored a Community College and there had been no reference to a referendum until now. He held that the Citizens' Advisory Committee had investigated the "sentiment" of the county people and it appeared "favorable" and he saw no need for a referendum since there had been no apparent opposition.

No Delay, He Says

Majority Leader Jesse McHugh (R), Shawangunk said the referendum would not delay the college. At this time the cost of the project was unknown. He favored the college but he suggested it was "time to think of the taxpayers" and said if the facts were shown to the people he was sure the referendum would be favorable.

Abram Molyneaux (R), Woodstock, a member of the committee, said all supervisors favored a college but a cost survey should be made. He also referred to the law which provided for the referendum.

Supervisor Edwin Chase (R), Wawarsing, member of the committee favored the referendum.

For People to Decide

In voting for the referendum Supervisor Turck (D), Fourth ward, said he was for a college but felt the democratic way was through a referendum in which the people could speak.

Minority Leader Gaffney (D), Lloyd, said it was good to move slowly, but there had been only one letter suggesting that the board move "slowly" and he felt that the people favored the college. People who "oppose" are more apt to express an opinion than those who favor a proposition and he said he felt by now any concerted opposition should have been heard. He opposed the referendum. He called attention to the fact that the proposition must be ready by September to get it on the ballot this fall and he said in the "hurry" to get the proposition on the ballot "we may come up with something which is not palitable and the college may be lost for a number of years." He did not oppose the referendum as a "delaying" tactic but he said a "crash" program necessary to get the matter on the ballot might be "bad," resulting in a misunderstanding by the voters and loss of the college.

After the vote Mayor Eugene Gulsker addressed the board. He said his talk was "academic" now that the referendum had been voted. He said he had contacted the State University, which was vitally interested in the program and had been informed the State University was "ignorant" of what has been going on in Ulster County relative to the college. He say there was need for a college, that Russia was forging ahead because it is educating its people. Mayor Glusker, a Democrat, chided the board on having called a meeting for 8 p. m., kept many of the public waiting hours and said the board should consider courtesy to those who had come to attend and speak at the meeting.

Supervisor George Majestic (D), Gardiner spoke for New Paltz as a site and said the State College there would be a great help with it's vast library. "Let's make New Paltz the College Town and Kingston the County Seat," he concluded.

Supervisor Peter Williams (R), Saugerties referred to the state recommendation that the Community College be located "north of Kingston."

Supervisor Edwin Chase (R), Wawarsing called attention to the winter road conditions over the mountain if a college were located in New Paltz and said it should be located south of Kingston where the valleys converge.

Prior to adjournment out of respect to the memory of Mrs. John A. Snyder, mother of Clerk Robert A. Snyder, Majority Leader McHugh said he favored a Community College but he had not suggested a site in his town but if the college could be located in his town and the cost be not over $750,000 his town would assume 'one third of the cost."

Supervisor Benjamin Storms (R), second ward, told the supervisors Dr. E. Franklin Hall had been engaged as County Health Commissioner and several candidates had been interviewed for the position of director of the Tumor Clinic.

Tax Angle Can Govern Possible Stock Growth

Q) "I have held shares of Continental Can for 40 years and am wondering if I should sell it and buy Union Pacific, which you speak of favorably as an income stock. Time is running out on me. I enjoy reading your column and would appreciate your advice." — J. K.

A) This would be a good switch except for the tax angle. Currently, Continental Can is selling to yield about 4.5 per cent and Union Pacific about 5.0 per cent. However, you have a large profit in Continental Can, and selling it would probably mean a significant reduction in your principal because of the capital gains tax. In this case, your annual cash return on Union Pacific might actually be less than what you are now receiving from Continental Can.

Q) "I am 40 years old, married with two children, and earn over $12,000 a year. About five years ago, I began investing conservatively and presently hold shares of Niagara Mohawk Power, National Fuel Gas and Florida Public Utilities. Now that I have a sound group of dividend-payers, I am looking for three stocks with greater appreciation prospects."—M. S.

A) First, let me congratulate you on the sensible way you have approached investing. You have a good basis upon which to build a larger, more aggressive portfolio.

For this purpose I suggest that you consider the following: Spartans Industries (NYSE) is an ably managed mass producer and distributor of popular priced wearing apparel for men, women, and children. I believe the company's move into the discount store field will enlarge earnings considerably.

Kerr-McGee (NYSE) is a medium-sized, fully integrated oil and gas company with expanding interests in other natural resource products such as helium.

Universal Match (NYSE) is widely diversified in the area of coin-handling equipment, vending machines, and military items. Its new electronic money-changing device has very big possibilities.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Five Candidates

country is "in the front line trenches." He wants the teaching of basic skills. He charged that children are being taught collectivism, socialism and centralized government, "that precinct politics is rotten," etc., and that this kind of education "is destroying our nation."

In answer to another question, Mansfield said he sends two of his children to St. Peter's Parochial School, Rosendale, and that his older son attends New Paltz Central High School.

Stedge, a magistrate in the town of Ulster, was asked if political office was compatible with service on the school board.

Office Is Public Trust

He replied that he has been in office about a year and a half and that he has yet to have anyone in high political office ask him for special favor, that the principle of honest public officials is of supreme importance, particularly in view of our world confrontation by an alien philosophy of government, and that the "only way we can really win is with another ideology" which can match and over-match Communism.

Stedge said we claim to believe in democracy and yet question the faith of our officials. "I believe a public office is a public trust," he said, explaining that he would never decide a question of education on a political basis but on what "would do the most good for the most people over a long period of time."

Carries Out Her Convictions

Mrs. Murphy was asked, "If elected what philosophy will you follow in evaluating the work of the administration?" She explained that she has been head of the mathematics department at Kingston High School for many years (since 1942) and has never "been dictated to by any superintendent or high school principal. If you know me very well you know that I really have a will of my own and have no fear in carrying out my convictions once decided."

The following question was addressed to all of the candidates: "What are the primary objectives of public school education in a democracy?"

Mrs. Murphy replied that it is to educate a child to live with his community, to be able to take his place in life, to uphold American ideals and contribute as much as he is able to his community and human welfare, " and perhaps we ought not to forget that we must teach a child to live with himself. If you can't live with yourself you can't live with your associates."

Stedge expressed the belief that our faith in our own system could be heightened that our children should understand the meaning and precious quality of democracy and accept and believe in it.

MacKinnon said that students should be taught to respect democracy, become useful citizens, and given preparation to earn a living by which they will be able to maintain their pride and self-respect.

Singer Takes Exception

Singer took exception with Mrs. Murphy's statement that one objective of public school education is to make it possible for a person to learn to live with himself. He said he feels a person should be taught the "difference between right and wrong."

Mansfield cited as objectives of public school education "Love of God of country, of home and those great human ties" which bind us together.

Residents go to the polls from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday to elect two candidates for the board of education. They will succeed President Robert Herzog and Vice-President Robert O'Reilly. Members of the board are elected for five-year terms. The post is unsalaried.

Last night's meeting was the final in the series which began at the Port Ewen School almost two weeks ago. A second meeting was held at the George Washington School last Monday.

To Air SEC Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that two prominent members of the American Stock Exchange engaged in market rigging and illegal stock sales approaching $10 million were to be detailed today by federal investigators.

Lawyers for the Securities and Exchange Commission, after completing a year-long investigation of exchange members Jerry and Gerard Re, were ready to sum up the findings in a bulky legal brief.

The Res, exchange specialists who conducted the daily market auctions in about 20 stocks, also were to file a brief in their own behalf through attorney Milton Gould.

Sports Specials Feature TV Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Television, like its viewers, is beginning to move outdoors for the summer season.

In addition to baseball, there are a couple of sports specials now turning up weekly for the spectators. There are other items of general viewing interest during the next few days, too, but the supply is thinning.

Tonight, for instance, there's NBC's "Young at Heart" musical special (10-11 Eastern Standard Time) with Jane Powell, Art Carney and Gwen Verdon.

ABC premieres its new "World of Sports" series Saturday afternoon (5-6) with pictures and commentary on both the Penn and the Drake relays.

Sunday's highlights emphasize the space age: CBS' "Twentieth Century" (6:30-7 p.m.) is a review of civilian defense in the age of missiles. NBC has a news special, "The Astronauts," which includes interviews with the three candidates waiting for America's first manned missile launching.

NBC's Barbara Stanwyck Show Monday night (10-10:30) is a timely drama: "Yanqui, Go Home," about an American trapped in a Latin-American revolution. Tuesday night's CBS "Thriller," (9-10) concerns a scholarly book dealer who uses his knowledge of literature to learn his wife is unfaithful.

Glenda Farrell and Tom Tully, once a cop in "The Line Up," star in Wednesday's Steel Hour on CBS (10-11 p.m.), in a drama called "Summer Rhapsody."

CBS's "Summer Sports Spectacular" Thursday (7:30-8:30 p.m.) traces the history of the new Los Angeles baseball team. And ABC's "Silents, Please," (10:30-11) is a condensation of D. W. Griffiths' classic "America."

The moon takes 27 days, seven hours and 43.2 minutes to circle the earth.

Probation Shift Pleases Jurors

Announcement in The Freeman recently that the probation office of Ulster County was moving to new quarters in the Court House met with approval of the Association of Grand Jurors of Ulster County.

Thomas J. Murphy, president of the jurors, said in a communication to The Freeman today:

"During the tenure of Edmund Burhans the association, by committee and letter, made this proposal to the board of supervisors both for private space and additional staff help. The latter situation was made by appointment of an assisant to Mr. Burhans."

President Murphy also pointed out that the association has recommended and proposed to the board to arrange some plan for parking space in the Court House parking lot for grand jurors while in session.

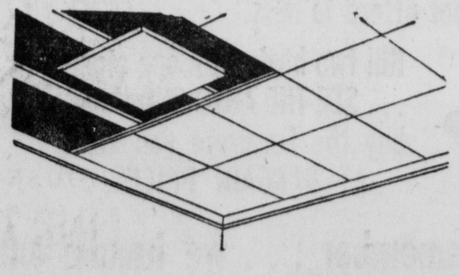

Murphy said that a card of identity on juror's cars was the idea of the association and stressed that this plan is in use in Orange County.

The juror's president also stressed the need of a fire escape from the grand jury room at the court house. He added "this is a multiple structure and hazardous to those who perform their civic duty as grand jurors."

Bingo Probe Shifts To Upstate Cities

NEW YORK (AP) —The State Investigation Commission probe of bingo operations has turned to games in Utica, Buffalo, Rochester and Troy.

After the third day of testimony, the commission Thursday adjourned its five-day hearing until next Tuesday.

The commission contends that racketeers, professional gamblers and commercial operators have been making big profits from bingo games meant to be run to benefit patriotic, religious and civic groups.

Donald C. Houle, a member of the Utica Fire Department, testified Thursday about bingo games conducted by the John W. Phelan Police and Firemen's Post of the American Legion in Utica.

Houle said the post received only $15 a night from weekly games conducted for it by Milo Merril, a professional promoter.

The witness also conceded that the post filed false financial statements to the Lottery Control Commission about bingo operations in 1959 and 1960.

The investigation's chief counsel, Carl Vergari, said Merril and Michael Wynn, another professional bingo-hall operator, promoted games in Buffalo, Rochester and Troy, in addition to Utica.

Both Merril and Wynn operated out of Headquarters Hall in Utica, Vergari said.

Vergari also said that Wynn promoted games for seven organizations in 1960 and received a total of $73,728, of which he gave $39,154 to the sponsoring organizations. Merril, Vergari added, gave one organization $3,654 and received $9,035 in rentals.

Educator Explains How American Schools Work

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The United States does not seek a national system of education, but rather, American schools "develop union without uniformity," an educator says.

Dr. William E. Young, state director of elementary education, said Thursday night the American school system had "provided a society where each man is equally valued."

Young spoke at the opening session of the 12th annual conference of the New York State Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. About 1,000 teachers and administrators are attending the four-day meeting.

Hospital Ship Aground

TOKYO (AP) — The American hospital ship Hope has run aground off the east Java coast and has asked the Indonesian navy for help, the Indonesian news agency Pia reported today. Pia said the vessel suffered no damage but was unable to free herself by her own power.

Times Printers Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Printers at the New York Times returned to their jobs Thursday afternoon after briefly renewing a wildcat work stoppage that began on Wednesday. The stoppage did not affect normal publication of all editions of today's paper.

An arbitration panel was set today to consider a union petition for reinstatement of a printer, Samuel Resnick, whose discharge touched off the walkout.

Cuba Inquiry Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate inquiry into the Cuban invasion was postponed today until Monday when Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles said "several emergencies" would prevent his appearance.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Latin-American Affairs subcommittee, announced the postponement after a series of telephone calls to the State Department.

Bingo Probe Shifts To Upstate Cities

NEW YORK (AP) —The State Investigation Commission probe of bingo operations has turned to games in Utica, Buffalo, Rochester and Troy.

After the third day of testimony, the commission Thursday adjourned its five-day hearing until next Tuesday.

The commission contends that racketeers, professional gamblers and commercial operators have been making big profits from bingo games meant to be run to benefit patriotic, religious and civic groups.

Donald C. Houle, a member of the Utica Fire Department, testified Thursday about bingo games conducted by the John W. Phelan Police and Firemen's Post of the American Legion in Utica.

Houle said the post received only $15 a night from weekly games conducted for it by Milo Merril, a professional promoter.

The witness also conceded that the post filed false financial statements to the Lottery Control Commission about bingo operations in 1959 and 1960.

The investigation's chief counsel, Carl Vergari, said Merril and Michael Wynn, another professional bingo-hall operator, promoted games in Buffalo, Rochester and Troy, in addition to Utica.

Both Merril and Wynn operated out of Headquarters Hall in Utica, Vergari said.

Vergari also said that Wynn promoted games for seven organizations in 1960 and received a total of $73,728, of which he gave $39,154 to the sponsoring organizations. Merril, Vergari added, gave one organization $3,654 and received $9,035 in rentals.

Educator Explains How American Schools Work

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The United States does not seek a national system of education, but rather, American schools "develop union without uniformity," an educator says.

Dr. William E. Young, state director of elementary education, said Thursday night the American school system had "provided a society where each man is equally valued."

Young spoke at the opening session of the 12th annual conference of the New York State Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. About 1,000 teachers and administrators are attending the four-day meeting.

Hospital Ship Aground

TOKYO (AP) — The American hospital ship Hope has run aground off the east Java coast and has asked the Indonesian navy for help, the Indonesian news agency Pia reported today. Pia said the vessel suffered no damage but was unable to free herself by her own power.

Times Printers Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Printers at the New York Times returned to their jobs Thursday afternoon after briefly renewing a wildcat work stoppage that began on Wednesday. The stoppage did not affect normal publication of all editions of today's paper.

An arbitration panel was set today to consider a union petition for reinstatement of a printer, Samuel Resnick, whose discharge touched off the walkout.

Cuba Inquiry Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate inquiry into the Cuban invasion was postponed today until Monday when Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles said "several emergencies" would prevent his appearance.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Latin-American Affairs subcommittee, announced the postponement after a series of telephone calls to the State Department.

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that, in pursuance of the powers vested in me by law, I shall on Monday, the 12th of June, 1961, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, commence selling at public auction, so much of each of the said several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land, as shall be sufficient to pay all State, County, Highway, School or other taxes assessed thereon in the year 1959 for 1960 and Kingston Consolidated School District taxes for the year 1960-61 on properties outside the City limits, that may then remain due on each thereof, respectively, together with the interest, costs and charges which have arisen or accrued or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall sell, until the said sale shall be completed. The purchasers at such sale shall pay the amount of their respective bids to the County Treasurer within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale, and receive certificates describing the lands purchased, the sums paid, and the time when the purchasers will be entitle to deeds; and after the expiration of one year from the last day of such sale they shall be entitled to receive conveyances of the lands so purchased by them, respectively, (or at their option may foreclose the lien as provided by law), unless said lands shall have been previously redeemed, pursuant to law. All liens on property involved in this sale are sold subject to the rights of persons in the military service as defined and established by section 500 of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act as amended October 7, 1942, and all subsequent amendments thereto.

FURTHER NOTICE IS GIVEN, THAT PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 1038 OF THE REAL PROPERTY TAX LAW, THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF ULSTER COUNTY HAS, BY RESOLUTION, DULY ADOPTED ON JUNE 9th, 1953, AUTHORIZED, EMPOWERED AND DIRECTED THE COUNTY TREASURER TO BID IN FOR ULSTER COUNTY ANY AND ALL LANDS OFFERED FOR TAX SALE, FOR THE GROSS AMOUNT OF TAXES PLUS INTEREST, PENALTIES AND OTHER CHARGES ALLOWED BY LAW WITH RESPECT THERETO.

Dated: Kingston, N. Y., April 28, 1961.

DeSapio Charges Liberals, GOP in Secret Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Tammany Hall chief Carmine G. DeSapio says the State's Liberal Party and his own party's splinter groups will get no chance to dictate Democratic party candidates in this year's city election.

Speaking at a county organization fund-raising dinner Thursday night, DeSapio accused the Liberal Party of making "secret covenants with the Republican traders in Albany."

He also declared that efforts to back a fusion movement would undermine the traditional two-party system.

"For our part, we in the New York County (Manhattan) organization will not permit any splinter group to dictate who our candidates will be," DeSapio said.

The Manhattan County chairman, who is also a national committeeman, was joined by State Chairman Michael H. Prendergast in his defiance of the Liberals.

Prendergast challenged the Liberals to withhold support from next year's Democratic state ticket, implying the Democrats could take the governorship without their help.

He again staked out his claim to continued leadership despite snubs from the Kennedy administration.

"If my goose should ever be ready for cooking," he said, "it won't be to the tasteless recipe of self-proclaimed political leaders whose only interest is digesting as much power as they can."

Deny Gas Boost For 350,000 in West N. Y. Area

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The Public Service Commission today denied a request of the Iroquois Gas Corp. of Buffalo to raise by 25 cents monthly rates of 350,000 customers in Western New York.

The utility had sought to raise the initial charge for 600 cubic feet of gas from $1.25 to $1.50 a month. The PSC said the company's earnings are "not deficient" and "no increase has been justified," on the basis of evidence presented at hearings.

Iroquois, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the National Fuel Gas Co., serves customers in Buffalo, Lackawanna, Salamanca, Tonawanda, Niagara Falls, North Tonawanda, Dunkirk, Batavia and in other communities in Erie, Cattaraugus, Wyoming, Niagara, Chautauqua, Genesee, Livingston, Monroe and Ontario counties.

Iroquois had estimated the increase would have produced about $1,064,000 additional annual revenue. It contended that its monthly cost of providing the initial volume exceeded $3 per customer.

Why We Say--

GOLD MINING: When something comes to a slow end,it is said to "peter out". The expression started with early gold mining where saltpetre was used in blasting. When the gold supply was exhausted, there was no need for further blasting.

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that, in pursuance of the powers vested in me by law, I shall on Monday, the 12th of June, 1961, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, commence selling at public auction, so much of each of the said several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land, as shall be sufficient to pay all State, County, Highway, School or other taxes assessed thereon in the year 1959 for 1960 and Kingston Consolidated School District taxes for the year 1960-61 on properties outside the City limits, that may then remain due on each thereof, respectively, together with the interest, costs and charges which have arisen or accrued or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall sell, until the said sale shall be completed. The purchasers at such sale shall pay the amount of their respective bids to the County Treasurer within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale, and receive certificates describing the lands purchased, the sums paid, and the time when the purchasers will be entitle to deeds; and after the expiration of one year from the last day of such sale they shall be entitled to receive conveyances of the lands so purchased by them, respectively, (or at their option may foreclose the lien as provided by law), unless said lands shall have been previously redeemed, pursuant to law. All liens on property involved in this sale are sold subject to the rights of persons in the military service as defined and established by section 500 of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act as amended October 7, 1942, and all subsequent amendments thereto.

FURTHER NOTICE IS GIVEN, THAT PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 1008 OF THE REAL PROPERTY TAX LAW, THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF ULSTER COUNTY HAS, BY RESOLUTION, DULY ADOPTED ON JUNE 9th, 1953, AUTHORIZED, EMPOWERED AND DIRECTED THE COUNTY TREASURER TO BID IN FOR ULSTER COUNTY ANY AND ALL LANDS OFFERED FOR TAX SALE, FOR THE GROSS AMOUNT OF TAXES PLUS INTEREST, PENALTIES AND OTHER CHARGES ALLOWED BY LAW WITH RESPECT THERETO.

DeSapio Charges Liberals, GOP in Secret Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Tammany Hall chief Carmine G. DeSapio says the State's Liberal Party and his own party's splinter groups will get no chance to dictate Democratic party candidates in this year's city election.

Speaking at a county organization fund-raising dinner Thursday night, DeSapio accused the Liberal Party of making "secret covenants with the Republican traders in Albany."

He also declared that efforts to back a fusion movement would undermine the traditional two-party system.

"For our part, we in the New York County (Manhattan) organization will not permit any splinter group to dictate who our candidates will be," DeSapio said.

The Manhattan County chairman, who is also a national committeeman, was joined by State Chairman Michael H. Prendergast in his defiance of the Liberals.

Prendergast challenged the Liberals to withhold support from next year's Democratic state ticket, implying the Democrats could take the governorship without their help.

He again staked out his claim to continued leadership despite snubs from the Kennedy administration.

"If my goose should ever be ready for cooking," he said, "it won't be to the tasteless recipe of self-proclaimed political leaders whose only interest is digesting as much power as they can."

Deny Gas Boost For 350,000 in West N. Y. Area

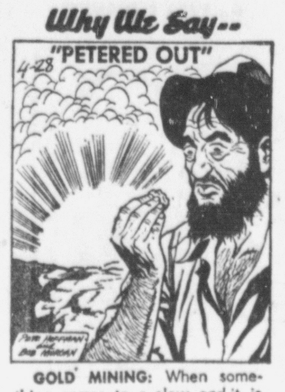

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The Public Service Commission today denied a request of the Iroquois Gas Corp. of Buffalo to raise by 25 cents monthly rates of 350,000 customers in Western New York.

The utility had sought to raise the initial charge for 600 cubic feet of gas from $1.25 to $1.50 a month. The PSC said the company's earnings are "not deficient" and "no increase has been justified," on the basis of evidence presented at hearings.

Iroquois, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the National Fuel Gas Co., serves customers in Buffalo, Lackawanna, Salamanca, Tonawanda, Niagara Falls, North Tonawanda, Dunkirk, Batavia and in other communities in Erie, Cattaraugus, Wyoming, Niagara, Chautauqua, Genesee, Livingston, Monroe and Ontario counties.

Iroquois had estimated the increase would have produced about $1,064,000 additional annual revenue. It contended that its monthly cost of providing the initial volume exceeded $3 per customer.

Woman Is Found Along Wallkill

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (AP)—A woman pediatrician from Larchmont, N.Y., was found early today by a search party after she wandered away from the Orange County Country Club.

The woman was identified as Dr. Rose C. Black, 34. Her husband, Donald, also is a physician in Larchmont.

Authorities gave this account:

Dr. Black was the guest of her brother, Joseph Ciliberto, at the country club Thursday night. About 10 p.m. she said she was going for a walk. When she failed to return to the club, a search party combed the golf course and adjacent woods.

Shortly after 1 a.m. they found Dr. Black on the bank of the Wallkill River about 1½ miles from the clubhouse. Her shoes were off, she was up to her knees in the water, and holding onto a bankside tree branch.

Incoherent, she was taken to Horton Hospital and treated for shock and exposure. Her condition was described as fair.

There was no evidence of foul play, police said.

Legion Head Says

U. S. Must Act Alone to Halt Cuba Communism

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — The security of the United States is this country's greatest concern in the Cuban crisis, and it should act alone to stop communism there if other nations will not cooperate, the national commander of the American Legion said Thursday night.

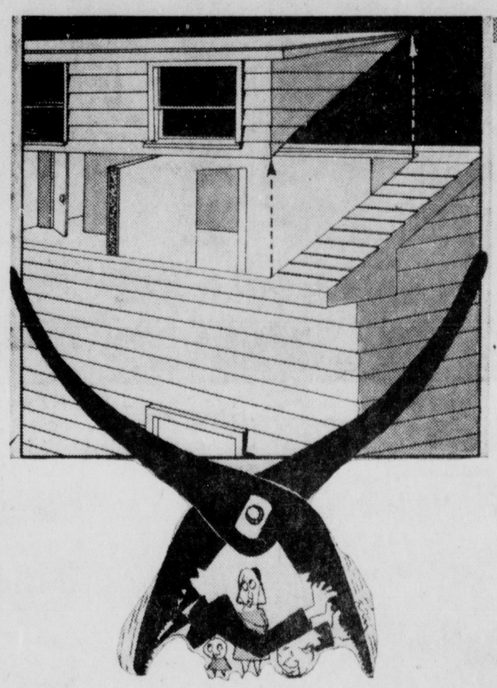

Commander William Burke spoke at the convention of the Legion's Seventh New York State District.

"The paramount interest of the United States is its own security," he said, "and this obligation cannot be delegated to any other nation or group of nations. If that action fails, the U.S. must act unilaterally."

Savings Banks Deposits In March Hit Record

NEW YORK — March deposit gains of $351 million in mutual savings banks were the largest on record for that month, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported today. The March gain brought total deposit gains for the first quarter of 1961 to $657 million.

The March increase this year compares with gains of $320 million in March, 1960, and the previous record of $337 million in March, 1958. Total deposits reached $37.0 billion and total assets $41.5 billion.

The quarterly deposit increase reflected gains of $596 million in regular accounts and $61 million in school savings, Christmas Clubs, and other special accounts. Last year, first quarter total deposit gains were $302 million.

In investment activity, the 515 mutual savings banks reached a five-year high for March in mortgage acquisitions. Additions of $204 million, sharply increased from February, brought total mortgage portfolios to $27.2 billion, or 65.6 per cent of assets.

Serving in Bermuda

Randolph R. VanKeuren, seaman apprentice, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy VanKeuren of Tillson, is serving at the Naval Station, Bermuda.

The station offers logistic support to the aircraft of two anti-submarine aircraft patrol squadrons and services all transient aircraft and ships visiting the station.

Before entering the service in August, 1960, VanKeuren was graduated from Kingston High School.

Africans Replace Belgians in Colleges

Says Lack of Secondary Level Schools Is Most Serious Problem Facing Congo

Editor's Note—A prime need of the Congo is education—but there are enormous difficulties, both on the higher and secondary level. They are explained in this last of a series on the Congo's big problems by John A. Kennedy, publisher and editor-in-chief of the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader, and Mrs. Kennedy. They just completed a tour of the troubled nation.

By JOHN A. KENNEDY

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—There were only 19 native Congolese college graduates in the whole of the Congo at the time it received independence last July.

In that fact, according to Dr. M. Dartiqu, senior educational consultant to the United Nations, lies the explanation for most of the Congo's troubles today.

He had traveled through the six provinces of the country on his special duties as a UNESCO representative several times before. On those trips he questioned the Belgians as to why they didn't send Congolese secondary school graduates to Brussels or other centers for university training.

Returned as Radicals

The answers invariably were, he said, that students who were sent from other African colonies to England, France, or the United States to study came back as "partially educated radicals."

Mrs. Kennedy and I got about the same answers in our tour of the Congo, talking with its experts, inspecting its schools and colleges two years ago.

The Belgians started to create a university — Louvanium — that would be a credit to any nation. It is modeled after the centuries-old institution of the same name in the mother country.

More than $15 million was poured into its modern, beautiful, efficient plant and laboratories.

It opened in 1954 with 33 students described by Monsignor L. Gillon, its president, as an "audacious move," considering the difficulty in recruiting students.

Belgian Students Scarce

When we visited the Congo first in 1959, they had 450 students in its various colleges, two thirds of whom were Belgians. When we visited this time, all but 10 were Africans. There is a college of medicine, agronomy, engineering, and a school of law is being started. Louvanium's hospital is as modern as any in the United States.

The question of secondary education in the Congo is no less urgent.

Two years ago in Elisabethville, Mrs. Kennedy and I visited a Congolese grammar school. It was of the four-year variety but had students ranging in age from 8 to 25.

Its director complained of a serious problem—the older students, when finished, didn't want to go to secondary school. Because of their age they felt they should be able to enter universities and colleges on graduation—the equivalent of completion of the sixth and seventh grade in the United States.

Nations Must Give Aid

The lack of a school system with sufficiently high standards on the secondary level, Monsignor Gillon says, is the worst problem facing the Congo.

"The aid which countries abroad must give the Congo is first and foremost a direct effort in the development of secondary education," he said. "In the immediate future, this aid must provide the Congo with secondary school teachers and help the Congo train its own teachers for this level of education."

Primary education was being pushed by the Belgians in the few years before independence — but unfortunately too little and too late.

There were about 1,500,000 stu-students in schools before the chaotic independence of last July, but more than 900,000 were in the first two grades.

Germans Ignore Ban

FULDA, Germany (AP) — Organizers of the 1961 "Kirchentag" have announced plans to go ahead with an all-German Protestant assembly next July 19 despite a Soviet ban on holding any of the events in the city's eastern sector.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Price fixing is a dirty term to consumers—particularly when they suspect the price is fixed higher than it would have been under free competition.

But price fixing today is also a confusing term because it is so widespread. And sometimes it's illegal but sometimes it's okay and often it's done by the government itself.

Price fixing is much in the news today because in Washington a Senate subcommittee is hearing testimony on an antitrust conspiracy for which a federal judge fined 2 9 makers of electrical equipment nearly $2 million and sent seven of their officials to jail for a month. The offense was illegal price fixing and bid rigging.

But some of the defendants pleaded that if the companies in that crowded industry hadn't divided the market amongst themselves the largest ones could have driven the small ones to the wall. The antitrust laws also frown on any domination of an industry by one or a few companies to the detriment of competition.

Many businessmen are confused about price-fixing bans, because it is customary to try to stop price wars by agreeing on an equitable price that will let all concerned function at a profit instead of a loss.

Businessmen regularly gather in conventions, national or regional, to discuss their problems — such as rising costs that affect prices. Many of them ask tariff protection against imports of foreign goods that could undercut domestic price levels.

Others note that many states have so-called fair trade laws which permit a manufacturer to set the retail price of his product under certain circumstances and forbid maverick retailers from selling below this fixed price.

The comparison shopper is a fixture in the retail world. This type of scout finds out what other merchants are charging for an item so that his employer may adjust prices accordingly. This is free competition and legal.

Consumers are used to many legal forms of price fixing—such as rent controls n some states. Consumers accept barbers in a community all charging the same price for haircuts. And the public expects the price of a man's labor to be fixed by bargaining between his union and his employer, often with a public official or two sitting in.

Governments also regulate many prices closely.

College - Community Orchestra Will Give Spring Program May 2 at New Paltz College

The spring program of the New Paltz College Community Orchestra will be presented on Tuesday evening, May 2 at 8:15 p. m. in the auditorium of the State University College of Education.

David Carpenter, pianist and student at the College, will direct the performance, planned to be a part of the celebration of National Music Week.

Mr. Carpenter, a resident of Plattsburgh, is a sophomore at the College. He is a product of a musical family and has been active in music much of his life. He has played with the Symphony Orchestra in Plattsburgh and is currently a bassoonist with the New Paltz Orchestra. Mr. Carpenter will play Schumann's Piano Concerto in A Minor which, together with similar works of Tschaikowsky and Grieg are among the most beloved and tuneful compositions of this type in the entire literature.

The Tuesday evening program will also include the Overture to Johann Strauss's delightful opera, The Gypsy Baron, and the Symphony No. 4 in G Major by Antonin Dvorak, the Bohemian composer best known for his New World Symphony. In fact, many similarities of style can be detected in these two works.

The program will mark the conclusion of the 1960-1961 season for the College-Community Orchestra. During the fall months the organization did not function in its usual role but, rather, made up the core of the orchestra which participated in the College's Seventy-fifth Anniversary presentation of Handel's Messiah. According to Dr. Igou, the orchestra will resume rehearsals on the last Tuesday of September to initiate the 1961-1962 season. New members will be welcome to join the group at that time.

Christensen Associates, at the special Secretaries Week luncheon to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston on Saturday, April 29, according to Mrs. Gloria Starling, chairman of Secretaries Week activities for the Kingston-Poughkeepsie Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International).

Mr. Christensen has been a Consultant Management Engineer for many years, and for the past two years has operated his own management consulting firm, based in Hurley, New York; just outside Kingston. During his consulting career he has served many of the major corporations in the country scattered throughout the East and Midwest.

after the end of World War II, Mr. Christensen served as a Senior Associate, Principal Associate and Regional Director for several of the major mangement engineering firms of this country, including three which are members of the Association of Consulting Management Engineers; two of which are Cresap, McCormick and Paget, and Booz, Allen and Hamilton. In addition, he has associated for a period of approximately five years with Management Development Associates of New York which specialize in the selection, training, and development of top management personnel; in which capacity he was engaged in training and development work, as well as recruiting key and top level management people.

Mr. Christensen's consulting assignments, in addition to the management development activities referred to previously, have included studies of businesses, ranging from small companies to divisions of very large corporations, such as engineering, marketing, manufacturing, etc. He has specialized in the analyses of critical operational and personnel problems in a wide range of business operations, developing approaches for the solutions of these problems, presenting recommendations for improvement of business operations to management, and assisting management in carrying out the recommended improvements.

In connection with his professional activities, Mrs. Christensen has lectured to business and other groups, primarily in connection with improvement of management and business practices. In this connection, he has trained in public speaking with the Dale Carnegie Institute, and for a time was a member of the Toastmasters International.

During World War 2, Mr. Christensen served both in the Ordinance Corps and in the General Staff Corps, rising to the rank of Colonel. He spent three and a half years overseas, first setting up base shops for the repair of tanks, artillery and other ordnance material in England and North Africa. Later, as an officer on General Eisenhower's Headquarters Staff in North Africa and Europe, he was involved in the rearmament of French and other liberated manpower.

Though Mr. Christensen was born in New Jersey and received his engineering education in New York — at Pratt Institute and Brooklyn Polytechnic — he has had close association with the Hudson Valley area from childhood; for his family has had a home in Krumville since those days. He went to school there and spent vacations and other times in this part of the country. For the past four years, he has maintained his business office and residence in Hurley, New York. In addition, after completing his service in World War 2, Mr. Christensen became engaged in establishing Highmount Ski Center, about 35 miles north of Kingston, and now in its fifteenth year of operation. He is presently President of the corporation which owns and operates Highmount.

In addition to Mr. Christensen's talk, a varied program will be presented at the luncheon. Each attendee will be gifted with a surprise presentation and all will be eligible for the door prize drawing, a transistor radio donated by Channel Masters Inc. of Ellenville.

All area secretaries are cordially invited to attend this special luncheon. Interested secretaries should contact either Mrs. Gloria Starling or Mrs. Beatrice Edwards for further details or reservations.

Proposed Revision Of City Charter Discussed by League

George Beck, assistant to corporation council William Kelly, discussed the proposed revision of the City Charter at the annual meeting of the League of Women Voters held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Monday night, April 24.

Mr. Beck, a lifelong resident of Kingston was educated here, at Siena College, Albany Law School and Union University. He is a member of the firm Ewig and Beck, attorneys, of this city.

Mr. Beck told the League that the present city charter was drawn up in 1896 and since then has had at least 300 amendments. It is not complete and is nearly useless. A good charter would be complete and have a good index. He outlined the steps that are being taken to revise the charter as follows: to study the present charter and present form of city government; to consult and decide what should be changed; to study other charters; to receive advice from the State Organization — office for Local Government; to select the form of the charter; to draft the subject matter which will consist of 12 articles and numerous sections; to hold public hearings.

Mr. Beck stated that the charter must be finished by September 1 of this year. It is the plan at the present time, he stated, to continue the Mayor-Council form of government. To make for more efficiency they want to combine some city departments and to specify duties and tenure of all boards. It is proposed that the term of mayor be changed to four years but the council will remain at the two year term.

After the charter has been revised it can either go to a referendum of the people or the Mayor can ask for enactment in the form of a bill by the Legislature and Governor in 1962. In the latter case it would not go to the people.

It is Mr. Beck's hope that the League of Women Voters can help arouse public in this project.

Mrs. Ellsworth Johnson, president of the League, announced that the League will be meeting with the Board of Supervisors on May 11 to discuss permanent, personal registration and urged all members to attend this very important meeting. All who plan to attend should contact Mrs. Jeremiah Sachs.

Mrs. John Johnson, chairman of the Foreign Policy Workshop announced that there will be a meeting Monday, May 1 at 8:30 p. m. at her home, 10 Lipton Street, to discuss the booklet "Hard Choices." All who wish to attend are urged to read the booklet before-hand.

Mrs. Charles Forst, education chairman, announced there will be a panel on "Financing Education" at the next general meeting of the League to be held Monday, May 22 at the Central Hudson Auditorium. Dr. William Hageny, State University, College of Education at New Paltz will moderate a panel of speakers consisting of Dr. Earl Soper, superintendent of Kingston Consolidated Schools, Mrs. Robert Greene, member of the Onteora School Board, and Lester Toosa, district superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Ellsworth Johnson announced that Mrs. Gifford Beal and Mrs. Morton Kamen will be the delegates to the State Convention at Niagara Falls from the Kingston League. This convention will be held May 16, 17, and 18. At that time the State Agenda for the next two years will be decided upon.

Mrs. John Hofler, chairman of the Court Reorganization item, announced that a Joint Legislative committee has been esablished by the Legislature to draft implementing legislation for the Court Reform Amendment. This is to consist of 10 members appointed by Senator Walter J. Mahoney, majority leader and Speaker Joseph Carlino. The Youth Court Act has been repealed and apparently any changes in the courts now will be within the framework of the Court Reform Amendment.

Mrs. Jeremiah Sachs announced that the League supported bills to provide mandatory, statewide permanent, personal registration by 1963, and optional house to house canvass under permanent personal registration, and an annual permaent June primary date failed to get legislative approval during the 1961 session.

These bills died in committee. The legislators representing less than one-fourth of the voting population, successfully fought this reform calling it an "infrigment of county home rule" which would raise election costs. The League must thus continue its battle for a statewide registration system which will assure equal voting privileges and protection for every voter.

Mrs. Jacob Moss, chairman of Water Resources workshop, announced that the League strongly favors the water pollution control bill known as the Blatnik Bill. This provides for increased appropriations for incentive grants for municipal sewage plant construction which means the Federal Governments will pay up to 30 per cent of the cost of any facilities. She urged the members to write to their Senators and Representatives telling of the support of the Blatnik Bill H. R. 4036.

Mrs. John Johnson, chairman of the foreign policy workshop, discussed the 500 million dollar appropriation for the Inter-American Fund for Social Progress. This is part of a long range 10 year plan for economic and social development of the Americas. It is in line with President Kennedy's program of the Alliance for Progress. The League is urging everyone to write to their Congressmen and Senators in support of this fund.

Following the reports, Mrs. John Burnett, chairman of the nominating committee read the proposed slate of officers and directors for 1961-63 which were elected unanimously. The following were elected: president, Mrs. Gifford Beal; first vice president, Mrs. Jeremiah Sachs; secretary, Mrs. Charles Meyer; treasurer, Mrs. Morton Kamen. Directors, the Mmes. Ellsworth Johnson, Edward DeGroff, Morton Zucker, and Robert Macdonald. Nominating committee, Mrs. John Burnett, chairman, Mrs. Melvin Mones, and Mrs. Bernard Bouton.

Seneca Falls Plant To Lay Off 100 People

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — One hundred of about 1,250 persons employed at the Sylvania Electric plant here will be laid off, beginning Monday, a company spokesman says.

A "substantial decrease" in the demand for television picture tubes forced the decision, Harry S. Prisby, division supervisor of personnel for Sylvania, said Thursday.

Price Correction

In the Leon's Young Togs, 43 North Front Street, advertisement in the Thursday, April 27, edition of the Freeman, the price on the Girls' Communion and Confirmation Dresses, sizes 5 to 14, should have been $6.98 to 12.98.

Home Extension Service News

National Home Demonstration Week is the topic of this week's article by Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration of the Ulster County Extension Service Association:

Even those of us who are familiar with the theme, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World," should give some special thought to its meaning during the week of April 30 to May 6—National Home Demonstration Week.

Nearly eight and a half million women now use home economics Extension services of one kind or another. Some of these women live on farms, some in towns and cities.

Today's homemaker has a bigger and more complicated job than did her grandmother or even her mother. She meets fresh problems created by vast social, technological, and economic changes. No longer does a wife and mother devote all her time to household duties. She may also hold down a full-time or part-time job outside the home. And she undertakes numerous other responsibilities to gain a richer life for herself and her family in the community.

The educational services of home economics Extension work can help a woman to learn to use her time, money, and energy to best advantage; to choose food, clothing, home furnishings, household equipment, and other essentials wisely; to keep her household running smoothly; to provide a comfortable, convenient, and attractive home; and to understand the relation of nutritious food, suitable clothing, and adequate housing to the health and well-being of her family.

The Refrigerator-Freezer

Today, conventional refrigerators are frequently replaced by refrigerator-freezer combinations that have greater capacity and automatic defrosting. In fact, these models now account for 50 per cent of current refrigerator sales, and in the next few years, may become almost standard in large-family homes.

A supply of frozen vegetables and fruit is especially helpful in preparing quick meals. But the quality of frozen foods when served depends greatly on storage, preparation, and cooking.

Directions based on research are given in Cornell bulletin 873, "Cooking Frozen Vegetables and Fruits." You may receive a copy by writing to Home Demonstration Department, U.P.O. Box 545, 220 Wall St., Kingston, N. Y. or calling FE 8-3494.

McMillan's One-Hitter Blanks Kingston High, 5-0

Mike Ferraro Gets 4th Frame Hit Off Hurler

Junior Jim McMillan, a hard throwing lefty, shackled the Kingston High baseball team with one hit at Dietz Stadium yesterday and Newburgh Free Academy won a 5-0 DUSO League decision.

A clean single up the middle of the diamond by shortstop Mike Ferraro in the fourth inning deprived McMillan of a no-hitter. He walked two and fanned six in hurling the defending champions to their second straight circuit decision.

Following the single by Ferraro, Mike Celuch drew a walk, putting runners on first and second. However, the ace southpaw was equal to the occasion. He forced Frank Allen to bounce into a double play, killing that threat. It was the only time in the game that the KHS nine had two runners on base in the same inning.

Dunn Goes the Route

Bob Dunn went the distance for Al Gruner's club and he did a good job. A walk and two singles netted the visitors a third inning run and in the fourth, a pair of base knocks and Ron Pdiego's double accounted for another pair of markers.

McMillan, who hits as well as he pitches, knocked in the final run in the seventh with a triple down the right field line. Jim tallied on an error.

Newburgh had opened its league season by stopping Poughkeepsie, 8-4, on Wednesday at the NFA diamond. It was the initial loop start for the locals and they will be at Poughkeepsie for a Monday engagement.

10 More Cagers, 6 Colleges Now in Hoop Scandal

More Indictments From Fixed Games Are Still Possible

By DON WEISS

NEW YORK (AP)—The cloud of a widespread bribery scandal that had hung ominously over college basketball for six weeks has descended, engulfing 10 more players from six more schools.

There were strong indications today that more disclosures and possible indictments resulting from point shaving and game fixing were due from the district attorney's office.

"The term of the grand jury investigating college basketball has been extended until June 30," Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan said after announcing a 37-count indictment for corruption against previously convicted football fixer Aaron Wagman of New York.

26 Games Cited

The indictment, confirming earlier reports that the scandal might mushroom to equal or top the size of the one that jolted the game in 1951, named 10 players from six colleges in the East and South and cited 26 games played in 13 cities. One player was named as one of four co-conspirators.

Together with previous disclosures, it brought the count of the current scandal to 12 players from seven schools. The 1951 scandal involved 33 players from seven schools. Hogan also conducted the investigation then.

The players named Thursday were:

Jack Egan, high-scoring ace of St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which finished third in the National Collegiate Tournament last month, and two teammates—Vince Kempton of Cambria Heights, N. Y., and Frank Majewski of Jersey City, N. J.

Egan, who said he "needed the money," is married and the father of two children. He lives in Bethlehem, Pa., and Thursday night was to have been honored at a banquet as St. Joseph's outstanding athlete. The banquet went on without him.

Jerry Graves, All-Southeastern Conference star at Mississippi State, from Jackson, Tenn.

Dick Fisher, senior, Memphis, and Ed Test, senior, Chattanooga, both of the University of Tennessee.

Lou Brown, senior, Jersey City, of North Carolina.

Granted Immunity

All but Brown, were granted immunity from prosecution for their testimony, Hogan said, adding that each allegedly accepted or agreed to accept from Wagman sums ranging from $750 to $1,500 for shaving points in games. The games included one during the 1959-60 season and 25 this past season. Of the 26, Hogan said 12 were "successfully" rigged.

Brown, who played in only two or three games near the end of the season after having been a first-line reserve with the Tar Heels in 1959-60, was not successful, Hogan said, in making such arrangements at North Carolina.

"Brown made efforts to line things up for Wagman at North Carolina," said Hogan, "but he (Brown) was more successful at luring players at St. Joseph's and LaSalle."

As a result, Brown was named a co-conspirator along with Bill Minnerly of White Plains, N. Y., ace halfback of the Connecticut football team; Jerry Vogel of the Bronx, N. Y., and Dan Quindazzi of Yonkers, N. Y., both former Alabama basketball players, and Joseph Green of New York, described as a close associate of Wagman. Green has disappeared and is wanted for questioning.

According to Hogan, all four allegedly were contact men with basketball players—visiting various campuses to make arrangements.

Of the 10 basketball players named, five have been expelled by their schools. So has Minnerly. Bowler has been suspended, Graves was graduated at midterm, Fisher and Test did not re-enter Tennessee for the spring quarter, and Brown last month withdrew from school.

High School Tennis Team Tops Middies

Trailing by a 2-1 margin going into the doubles event, the Kingston High tennis team won both doubles matches and nipped Middletown, 3-2, at the Mid City courts yesterday.

Coach John Gilligan's net team has a 1-1 mark to date, bowling in its first match to Poughkeepsie. The KHS team will host Monticello in a DUSO match on Monday.

The results:

Singles — Bruce Simon, M, stopped Pete Roberts, K, 7-5, 8-6; Jeff Moak, K, won over John Auty, M, 7-5, 8-6; Fred Babcock, M, won over Bob Reardon, K, 6-3, 7-5.

Doubles—Moak and Roberts trimmed Simon and Jud Suresky, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3; and Reardon and Richie Hesstorfer stopped Pete Nichols and Simon, 6-4, 7-5.

Dick Hall Pitches 2-Hitter; 286th Career Win for Wynn

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Hall, a right-hander acquired from Kansas City along with utilityman Dick Williams, pitched a two-hit, 5-0 victory over Washington for the Baltimore Orioles Thursday night. Early Wynn gained his 286th career victory and Minnie Minoso drove in five runs as the Chicago White Sox rapped Kansas City 9-1 in the only other night game.

In the other AL games, Minnesota regained first place by ruining the Los Angeles Angels' home debut 4-2, Detroit skidded to second with a 5-2 defeat by the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees beat Cleveland 4-3.

Chicago's Cubs whipped Cincinnati 5-2 in the lone National League game scheduled.

The only hits Hall allowed the Senators were singles—one in the fourth inning by Danny O'Connell and the other with two out in the ninth by pinch-hitter Joe Hicks.

The Orioles were shut out on two hits by rookie Joe McClain until the seventh. Then Brooks Robinson doubled and scored on Russ Snyder's sacrifice fly after two walks—the first allowed by McClain (2-1) in 23 2-3 innings. Consecutive singles by Williams, Whitey Herzog and Robinson then got the Birds started on a four-run spurt in the eighth.

Pascual Winner

The White Sox staked Wynn, now 2-0, to a quick lead against loser Bud Daley (1-3) with three runs in the first. Minoso drove in the last two with a double, then singled home two more in the third inning.

A three-run homer by Earl Battey brought the Twins from behind in the sixth against the Angels, who now have lost eight in a row. Camilo Pascual (2-0) was the winner. Eli Grba, who nailed the Angels' lone victory in the season opener, lost his second.

Vic Wertz drove in three runs for the Red Sox and paired with Russ Nixon for two-run homers off Jim Bunning (0-2). Dav Hillman won his first in the AL.

Mickey Mantle again led the Yankees, breaking a tie with a 407-foot triple off loser Johnny Antonelli (0-2) in the seventh inning and then spearing Bubba Phillips' long drive on a game-ending, sliding catch with the tying run on base. Art Ditmar (2-0) won it with a six-hitter.

Marlboro Beats Monroe-W, 4-2

Marlboro Central collected four of its six hits in the fifth to score three runs and defeat Monroe-Woodbury, 4 to 2, in a non-league baseball game Thursday.

Ricky Benevento and Woody Woodward collaborated on a three-hitter for the winners. Charlie Meisner went the route for M-W, gave up six hits, fanned five and was highly effective outside of the fifth inning.

Singles by the Benevento brothers — Ricky and Frank — and Woodward and Conn, with an infield out accounted for the three Marlboro tallies. In the first inning Woolsey singled, stole second, advanced to third on an infield out, then stole home.

Crawford of M-W had two singles. There were no extra base blows in the game. Woodward was credited with the victory.

Hilda Murphy's 184-17 Average Leads in HVWL

Hilda Murphy, Kingston's top woman bowler of the 1960-61 season, compiled a brilliant 184-17 average in 72 games to lead Hudson Valley Women's League keglers.

Runnerup was Rose Schatzel, a Manhattan Ball teammate of Mrs. Murphy's, with 181-28 in. Rosemary Scalli, the Poughkeepsie ace, placed third with 178-52.

Two other members of the Manhattan squad — Sis Balash and Dot Rawding — finished fourth and fifth with 177-14 and 177-13, respectively. The fifth member — Ada Dubost — was in the seventh spot with 174-26 and Evelyn Gross of Sangi's Bowlero was ninth with 172-36. Terry Beckert of Sangi's posted 165-8.

Rose Schatzel's 256 was high single and Gil Anderson, Dutchess Recs, had high triple of 661. Team records were the 1057 and 2947 by Manhattan's, the latter an all-time Hudson Valley women's record. Jones Dairy's final record of 61 wins and 11 losses left them 12 games ahead of the runnerup Holiday Recs.

McMillan's One-Hitter Blanks Kingston High, 5-0

Mike Ferraro Gets 4th Frame Hit Off Hurler

Junior Jim McMillan, a hard throwing lefty, shackled the Kingston High baseball team with one hit at Dietz Stadium yesterday and Newburgh Free Academy won a 5-0 DUSO League decision.

A clean single up the middle of the diamond by shortstop Mike Ferraro in the fourth inning deprived McMillan of a no-hitter. He walked two and fanned six in hurling the defending champions to their second straight circuit decision.

Following the single by Ferraro, Mike Celuch drew a walk, putting runners on first and second. However, the ace southpaw was equal to the occasion. He forced Frank Allen to bounce into a double play, killing that threat. It was the only time in the game that the KHS nine had two runners on base in the same inning.

Dunn Goes the Route

Bob Dunn went the distance for Al Gruner's club and he did a good job. A walk and two singles netted the visitors a third inning run and in the fourth, a pair of base knocks and Ron Pdiego's double accounted for another pair of markers.

McMillan, who hits as well as he pitches, knocked in the final run in the seventh with a triple down the right field line. Jim tallied on an error.

Newburgh had opened its league season by stopping Poughkeepsie, 8-4, on Wednesday at the NFA diamond. It was the initial loop start for the locals and they will be at Poughkeepsie for a Monday engagement.

Dick Hall Pitches 2-Hitter; 286th Career Win for Wynn

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Hall, a right-hander acquired from Kansas City along with utilityman Dick Williams, pitched a two-hit, 5-0 victory over Washington for the Baltimore Orioles Thursday night. Early Wynn gained his 286th career victory and Minnie Minoso drove in five runs as the Chicago White Sox rapped Kansas City 9-1 in the only other night game.

In the other AL games, Minnesota regained first place by ruining the Los Angeles Angels' home debut 4-2, Detroit skidded to second with a 5-2 defeat by the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees beat Cleveland 4-3.

Chicago's Cubs whipped Cincinnati 5-2 in the lone National League game scheduled.

The only hits Hall allowed the Senators were singles—one in the fourth inning by Danny O'Connell and the other with two out in the ninth by pinch-hitter Joe Hicks.

The Orioles were shut out on two hits by rookie Joe McClain until the seventh. Then Brooks Robinson doubled and scored on Russ Snyder's sacrifice fly after two walks—the first allowed by McClain (2-1) in 23 2-3 innings. Consecutive singles by Williams, Whitey Herzog and Robinson then got the Birds started on a four-run spurt in the eighth.

Pascual Winner

The White Sox staked Wynn, now 2-0, to a quick lead against loser Bud Daley (1-3) with three runs in the first. Minoso drove in the last two with a double, then singled home two more in the third inning.

A three-run homer by Earl Battey brought the Twins from behind in the sixth against the Angels, who now have lost eight in a row. Camilo Pascual (2-0) was the winner. Eli Grba, who nailed the Angels' lone victory in the season opener, lost his second.

Vic Wertz drove in three runs for the Red Sox and paired with Russ Nixon for two-run homers off Jim Bunning (0-2). Dav Hillman won his first in the AL.

Mickey Mantle again led the Yankees, breaking a tie with a 407-foot triple off loser Johnny Antonelli (0-2) in the seventh inning and then spearing Bubba Phillips' long drive on a game-ending, sliding catch with the tying run on base. Art Ditmar (2-0) won it with a six-hitter.

The Cubs sent the Reds to their sixth straight defeat on home runs by winning pitcher Don Cardwell (2-0) and Frank Thomas off rookie Ken Hunt (1-1). Don Elston saved it.

More Indictments FromFixedGames Are Still Possible

By DON WEISS

NEW YORK (AP)—The cloud of a widespread bribery scandal that had hung ominously over college basketball for six weeks has descended, engulfing 10 more players from six more schools.

There were strong indications today that more disclosures and possible indictments resulting from point shaving and game fixing were due from the district attorney's office.

"The term of the grand jury investigating college basketball has been extended until June 30," Dist. Atty. Frank Hogan said after announcing a 37-count indictment for corruption against previously convicted football fixer Aaron Wagman of New York.

26 Games Cited

The indictment, confirming earlier reports that the scandal might mushroom to equal or top the size of the one that jolted the game in 1951, named 10 players from six colleges in the East and South and cited 26 games played in 13 cities. One player was named as one of four co-conspirators.

Together with previous disclosures, it brought the count of the current scandal to 12 players from seven schools. The 1951 scandal involved 33 players from seven schools. Hogan also conducted the investigation then.

The players named Thursday were:

Jack Egan, high-scoring ace of St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which finished third in the National Collegiate Tournament last month, and two teammates—Vince Kempton of Cambria Heights, N. Y., and Frank Majewski of Jersey City, N. J.

Egan, who said he "needed the money," is married and the father of two children. He lives in Bethlehem, Pa., and Thursday night was to have been honored at a banquet as St. Joseph's outstanding athlete. The banquet went on without him.

Ed Bowler, sophomore at La-Salle College in Philadelphia, from Jersey City.

Jerry Graves, All-Southeastern Conference star at Mississippi State, from Jackson, Tenn.

Dick Fisher, senior, Memphis, and Ed Test, senior, Chattanooga, both of the University of Tennessee.

Lou Brown, senior, Jersey City, of North Carolina.

Granted Immunity

All but Brown, were granted immunity from prosecution for their testimony, Hogan said, adding that each allegedly accepted or agreed to accept from Wagman sums ranging from $750 to $1,500 for shaving points in games. The games included one during the 1959-60 season and 25 this past season. Of the 26, Hogan said 12 were "successfully" rigged.

Brown, who played in only two or three games near the end of the season after having been a first-line reserve with the Tar Heels in 1959-60, was not successful, Hogan said, in making such arrangements at North Carolina.

"Brown made efforts to line things up for Wagman at North Carolina," said Hogan, "but he (Brown) was more successful at luring players at St. Joseph's and LaSalle."

As a result, Brown was named a co-conspirator along with Bill Minnerly of White Plains, N. Y., ace halfback of the Connecticut football team; Jerry Vogel of the Bronx, N. Y., and Dan Quindazzi of Yonkers, N. Y., both former Alabama basketball players, and Joseph Green of New York, described as a close associate of Wagman. Green has disappeared and is wanted for questioning.

According to Hogan, all four allegedly were contact men with basketball players—visiting various campuses to make arrangements.

Of the 10 basketball players named, five have been expelled by their schools. So has Minnerly. Bowler has been suspended, Graves was graduated at midterm, Fisher and Test did not re-enter Tennessee for the spring quarter, and Brown last month withdrew from school.

Hilda Murphy, Kingston's top woman bowler of the 1960-61 season, compiled a brilliant 184-17 average in 72 games to lead Hudson Valley Women's League keglers.

Runnerup was Rose Schatzel, a Manhattan Ball teammate of Mrs. Murphy's, with 181-28 in. Rosemary Scalli, the Poughkeepsie ace, placed third with 178-52.

Two other members of the Manhattan squad — Sis Balash and Dot Rawding — finished fourth and fifth with 177-14 and 177-13, respectively. The fifth member — Ada Dubost — was in the seventh spot with 174-26 and Evelyn Gross of Sangi's Bowlero was ninth with 172-36. Terry Beckert of Sangi's posted 165-8.

Rose Schatzel's 256 was high single and Gil Anderson, Dutchess Recs, had high triple of 661. Team records were the 1057 and 2947 by Manhattan's, the latter an all-time Hudson Valley women's record. Jones Dairy's final record of 61 wins and 11 losses left them 12 games ahead of the runnerup Holiday Recs.

Marlboro Beats Monroe-W, 4-2

Marlboro Central collected four of its six hits in the fifth to score three runs and defeat Monroe-Woodbury, 4 to 2, in a non-league baseball game Thursday.

Ricky Benevento and Woody Woodward collaborated on a three-hitter for the winners. Charlie Meisner went the route for M-W, gave up six hits, fanned five and was highly effective outside of the fifth inning.

Singles by the Benevento brothers — Ricky and Frank — and Woodward and Conn, with an infield out accounted for the three Marlboro tallies. In the first inning Woolsey singled, stole second, advanced to third on an infield out, then stole home.

Crawford of M-W had two singles. There were no extra base blows in the game. Woodward was credited with the victory.

Saratoga Public Relations Director Is Columbus Man

SARATOGA SPRINGS—Frank L. Wiswall, President of Saratoga Harness Racing Association, Inc., announced today the appointment of David S. Garland of Columbus, Ohio, as Public Relations Director of the Saratoga Raceway.

"We consider Mr. Garland's qualifications for the position to be unexcelled and his well-rounded experience eminently fits him for the position. We are indeed fortunate in securing Mr. Garland's services as successor for Howard DeFreitas who has occupied the position for nearly twelve years," Mr. Wiswell stated.

DAVID S. GARLAND

Starts May 15

Garland, who has been associated with the sport in various capacities for eight years, will assume his duties at Saratoga Raceway May 15th.

Since January of 1960, the Hampton, N. H. native has served as assistant to Laurence T. Evans, Public Relations Director of the United States Trotting Association, in Columbus, Ohio.

In this capacity Garland traveled extensively for the association as a public relations representative both among the nation's pari-mutuel tracks and fairs. He handled advance publicity in the field for more than 100 fairs and Grand Circuit meets. In addition, he assisted in the preparation of various association publicity publications.

He also was responsible for the development of a harness racing exhibit which drew more than 30,000 spectators at the Ohio State Fair, and authored many articles for the USTA official magazine, Hoof Beats.

Prior to joining the USTA staff, Garland served as harness racing assistant to William Stearns, Director of Publicity at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H.

Longfield Hurls One-Hitter for Winning Side

Biff Longfield, one of the top athletes at New Paltz Central School, fired a one-hitter against visiting Onteora yesterday as the Huguenots opened the UCAL season with a 5-2 triumph.

Mixing up his curve and fast ball throughout the tilt, Longfield had several trying moments but he managed to wiggle out of most of them.

The home side got six hits off the slants of Len Muhlich and the powerful righthander was wild, walking six hitters.

The home side tallied two first inning runs on a bunt single by John Keator, a walk to Woody Osterhoudt and a two out single by Valky VanValkenburg.

A single by George Bush, the only hit off Longfield, started the Indians on their way in the third frame. A sacrifice and an error got the run home.

A Long Triple

Keator blasted a long triple to lead off the home third. He was cut down at home on a ground ball. But then a walk to Ken Freer, a wild pitch and Van Valkenburg's sacrifice fly got the third run across.

After the Indians used an error, stolen base and an infield out to tally again in the sixth, the home side came back with their final markers. A walk, Barney Hansen's double, and a sacrifice fly did the damage.

The Huguenots are now 3-0 for the season. Onteora has lost two straight decisions and will play at Saugerties tomorrow morning.

The Nimrod's Corner

By Old Doc

A news release a couple of weeks ago reported on the findings of a learned professor in one of our large universities, concerning spring fever. The good doctor, undoubtedly after long hours of careful study on the subject, reached the conclusion that there is a logical, scientific basis for the symptoms an individual experiences soon after the vernal equinox.

It was reported that the human body in the late fall, stores fat much the same as a hibernating bear. The excess tissue serves as insulation to keep the body warm during the cold winter months. With the advent of warmer temperatures, there is no longer a need for the fat and the wonderful mechanisms of the body, shed the unnecessary accumulations. It follows that the blood cells of the body come closer to the surface of the skin. The nerve centers become more responsive to the senses, the whole system works harder and the end result is the drifting, dreamy state of mind commonly termed spring fever.

With today's rage of emphasizing scientific findings on most phenomena, it is disconcerting to find that even springtime has become of such interest that men of learning have seen fit to pry into this short-lived, blissful state of existence.

The other morning I was dunking worms in the South Hollow Brook hoping to latch on to a spawning rainbow, which also would be motivated by the season. The sun had risen in great splashes of reds and oranges. A robin was whistling its distinctive love call in an all but grown over field, once farmed by our hearty ancestors. Other than this, the running stream and an occasional scurrying chipmunk, there was silence. The stream side willows had burst through their smoke gray caps and to my delight, showed their new green color. Bud hues were apparent on most of the trees. The morning was warm, the fish were hungry and I had spring fever.

As I travelled homeward, very content with the world now ready for the return of nature, my thoughts went back to that Ph. D. and his snooping into the mechanics of human reaction to spring. Disgust replaced the sense of serenity. Does everything of beauty and contentment, have to be reduced to a scientific finding, as cold and impersonal as a mathematical formula? Aren't there real values in the mysterious, the unexplored, such as the beauty of the morning's sunrise and the promise of immortality, that we are visibly reassured of each April, after the death of winter? Undoubtedly, these too, can be reduced to cold facts to dovetail into set, scientific conclusions. The question is not can they be, but rather should they be.

The warm weather has caused thoughts to turn towards fly fishing. Birds and game have paired off to satisfy their instincts of procreation. Waterfowl are on the rivers and ponds, homing northward to the potholes of the prairie provinces of Canada. All in all, the creator appears to be very busy with his scheme of things. The ramblings of a misguided professor somehow, don't really seem to fit into this broad picture of the season. Whether explained by a loss of fat or not, I still have spring fever. It's a grand feeling and makes me want to wet a trout line right now. Furthermore, I'm going to.

Michigan Runners Face Severe Test

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Michigan's talented distance runners face a real test of stamina in defending their distance medley and 4-mile relay titles today on the first day of the annual Penn Relays at Franklin Field.

Anchored by Ergas Leps, native Lithuanian and Canadian Olympian, the Big Ten runners meet a tough Abilene Christian College tea min the distance medley and about an hour later defend the 4-mile. Last year the races were on different days.

Saugerties High Gets 9-2 Victory Over Cairo

Bill Straub tried some of his second line pitching against Cairo yesterday and he liked what he saw as the Saugerties High nine downed the visitors, 9-2. Keith Mills hurled four hitless frames for the Sawyers and Mike Fury finished. Both are juniors.

The home side moved to a quick 3-0 first inning lead when with one out, Mike Dodig singled and stole second, Billy Eckhoff struck out and moved all the way to second when the catcher missed the third strike and then threw wild in attempt to get Eckhoff. Then John Nolan delivered the runners with a single.

The Sawyers added single runs in the third and fourth and then closed with four in the sixth. Fury was touched for markers in the fifth and sixth innings.

Mills walked four and struck out six in his four inning tenure. Fury didn't surrender a walk and he also fanned six batters.

The Sawyers wil host Onteora Central at 10 tomorrow morning.

Harry Grayson's Scoreboard

NEW YORK — (NEA) — This is the time of year when the hitters are catching up with the pitchers in baseball.

Week-end golfers are polishing clubs. Tennis rackets are being restrung, boatmen are refitting and more three-year-old colts look mediocre with each start.

You hear little of the college football players and coaches. Yet this is the moment of truth for them. Spring practice is either just finishing or squads are smack dab in the middle of it throughout the land. Everywhere but in the sacrosanct Ivy League, where because of pressure of students in the fall, it is needed most.

Spring drills are college football's laboratory. Every coach agrees that the varsity is fashioned in the spring and in the two weeks of intensive preparation in September. Ivy League character builders rightfully complain that they haven't time to do this as thoroughly as they would like.

ANY KNOWLEDGEABLE FOOTBALL man knows that coaches devoting their lives to it have to concentrate to keep up with the fluid strategy of the most complicated of combat games. Then how can the Ivy League presidents expect undergraduates to grasp this, as well as the techniques and skills of the roughest and toughest of games, in 20 days of spring practice and two weeks in the autumn?

Hardened professionals go into training camps in late July, go through intensive maneuvers for three weeks before being deployed in the first exhibition game. Preferred athletes with as much as eight seasons of high school and college play in back of them are given one, two and three campaigns to find themselves, Passers are given longer than that to find their eye.

College teams are made and remade during spring practice. This is the first time the varsity coaching staff gets any kind of a look at upcoming sophomores. These are the blocks of granite and mail carriers of the next three years. Casting them properly is of tremendous importance.

MAKING THINGS MORE DIFFICULT for the coaching staff, this also is the recruiting period. Coaches talk to many a high school kid, members of his family and his friends in rounding up the nucleus of a sustained squad of 90 or more. With all this, workouts and over-all planning, spring means an 18-hour work day, with the perusal of movies running far into the night.

The regular college season runs no longer than nine weeks. There no longer is time to experiment once the bell rings, and it is no time to make mistakes. Not so many years ago, major teams scheduled a breather or two to give the big team time to get ready. This plan was tossed out of the window. The varsity must now come up ready. It is likely to tackle its most formidable opponent on opening day.

It's make or break for the college team in spring practice.

Without it, Ivy League teams necessarily have to start considerably shy.

Su Mac Lad Captures Third Straight 'International'

With nothing pressing him, America's Su Mac Lad won his third consecutive international race at Yonkers Raceway, and stands supreme today as the best trotter in the world.

The 7-year-old gelded son of Potomac Lad-Spud's Sue barged into the lead soon after the start of the invitational $50,000 National Trotting Championship Thursday night and remained there to beat Air Record by three quarters of a length.

Tornese, the Italian champion owned by Sebastiano and Salvatore Manzoni of Milan, finished third, another three quarters of a length back of Air Record, owned by F. E. Ross of Milan, Mich., and George Sholty of Logansport, Ind.

Two weeks ago Su Mac Lad, driven in all his races by Stanley Dancer, won the $65,000 Gotham Trot, in which Air Record was second. Last week, the trotting champ scored a one-half length victory over Tie Silk, of Toronto, in the $50,000 United Nations trot.

The National was 1½ miles, same distance as the United Nations, and Thursday night's clocking was 3:10 3-5, a fifth faster than the U. N.

Su Mac Lad paid $3.40, and earned $25,000 to boost his career total to $317,549.

"Su Mac Lad deserves a rest, and he'll get it," said Dancer. He is staked in some rich races at Roosevelt Raceway and at Brandywine Raceway, at Wilmington, Del., this summer.

At Buffalo Raceway, Merrie Adios won the $1,500 handicap pace by five lengths, coming up from seventh place. John Patterson drove the winner home in 2:15 3-5 over a slow track, paying $10.-20. Scotch Kate was second and Irish Senator third.

Reading Routs Yankee Pheenom

Howie Kitt impressed the New York Yankees so much that they dished out a reported $75,000 for the pitcher, then sent him off to Binghamton of the Clss A Eastern League to make his professional debut.

Kitt, in making his debut Thursday night against Reading, apparently didn't impress the Indians. They went on the warpath, chasing him in the fifth inning with four runs which hoisted them to a 9-2 victory over Binghamton in the opener of a doubleheader. In the 4 1-3 innings Kitt worked he gave up five runs and six hits. Frank Smith picked up the win, his second.

Springfield defeated Johnstown 8-1.

The Nimrod's Corner

By Old Doc

A news release a couple of weeks ago reported on the findings of a learned professor in one of our large universities, concerning spring fever. The good doctor, undoubtedly after long hours of careful study on the subject, reached the conclusion that there is a logical, scientific basis for the symptoms an individual experiences soon after the vernal equinox.

It was reported that the human body in the late fall, stores fat much the same as a hibernating bear. The excess tissue serves as insulation to keep the body warm during the cold winter months. With the advent of warmer temperatures, there is no longer a need for the fat and the wonderful mechanisms of the body, shed the unnecessary accumulations. It follows that the blood cells of the body come closer to the surface of the skin. The nerve centers become more responsive to the senses, the whole system works harder and the end result is the drifting, dreamy state of mind commonly termed spring fever.

With today's rage of emphasizing scientific findings on most phenomena, it is disconcerting to find that even springtime has become of such interest that men of learning have seen fit to pry into this short-lived, blissful state of existence.

The other morning I was dunking worms in the South Hollow Brook hoping to latch on to a spawning rainbow, which also would be motivated by the season. The sun had risen in great splashes of reds and oranges. A robin was whistling its distinctive love call in an all but grown over field, once farmed by our hearty ancestors. Other than this, the running stream and an occasional scurrying chipmunk, there was silence. The stream side willows had burst through their smoke gray caps and to my delight, showed their new green color. Bud hues were apparent on most of the trees. The morning was warm, the fish were hungry and I had spring fever.

As I travelled homeward, very content with the world now ready for the return of nature, my thoughts went back to that Ph. D. and his snooping into the mechanics of human reaction to spring. Disgust replaced the sense of serenity. Does everything of beauty and contentment, have to be reduced to a scientific finding, as cold and impersonal as a mathematical formula? Aren't there real values in the mysterious, the unexplored, such as the beauty of the morning's sunrise and the promise of immortality, that we are visibly reassured of each April, after the death of winter? Undoubtedly, these too, can be reduced to cold facts to dovetail into set, scientific conclusions. The question is not can they be, but rather should they be.

The warm weather has caused thoughts to turn towards fly fishing. Birds and game have paired off to satisfy their instincts of procreation. Waterfowl are on the rivers and ponds, homing northward to the potholes of the prairie provinces of Canada. All in all, the creator appears to be very busy with his scheme of things. The ramblings of a misguided professor somehow, don't really seem to fit into this broad picture of the season. Whether explained by a loss of fat or not, I still have spring fever. It's a grand feeling and makes me want to wet a trout line right now. Furthermore, I'm going to.

Saugerties High Gets 9-2 Victory Over Cairo

Bill Straub tried some of his second line pitching against Cairo yesterday and he liked what he saw as the Saugerties High nine downed the visitors, 9-2. Keith Mills hurled four hitless frames for the Sawyers and Mike Fury finished. Both are juniors.

The home side moved to a quick 3-0 first inning lead when with one out, Mike Dodig singled and stole second, Billy Eckhoff struck out and moved all the way to second when the catcher missed the third strike and then threw wild in attempt to get Eckhoff. Then John Nolan delivered the runners with a single.

The Sawyers added single runs in the third and fourth and then closed with four in the sixth. Fury was touched for markers in the fifth and sixth innings.

Nolan had two safeties for the winners, one of them a double. Big John also drove in four runs.

Mills walked four and struck out six in his four inning tenure. Fury didn't surrender a walk and he also fanned six batters.

The Sawyers wil host Onteora Central at 10 tomorrow morning.

Su Mac Lad Captures Third Straight 'International'

With nothing pressing him, America's Su Mac Lad won his third consecutive international race at Yonkers Raceway, and stands supreme today as the best trotter in the world.

The 7-year-old gelded son of Potomac Lad-Spud's Sue barged into the lead soon after the start of the invitational $50,000 National Trotting Championship Thursday night and remained there to beat Air Record by three quarters of a length.

Tornese, the Italian champion owned by Sebastiano and Salvatore Manzoni of Milan, finished third, another three quarters of a length back of Air Record, owned by F. E. Ross of Milan, Mich., and George Sholty of Logansport, Ind.

Two weeks ago Su Mac Lad, driven in all his races by Stanley Dancer, won the $65,000 Gotham Trot, in which Air Record was second. Last week, the trotting champ scored a one-half length victory over Tie Silk, of Toronto, in the $50,000 United Nations trot.

The National was 1½ miles, same distance as the United Nations, and Thursday night's clocking was 3:10 3-5, a fifth faster than the U. N.

Su Mac Lad paid $3.40, and earned $25,000 to boost his career total to $317,549.

"Su Mac Lad deserves a rest, and he'll get it," said Dancer. He is staked in some rich races at Roosevelt Raceway and at Brandywine Raceway, at Wilmington, Del., this summer.

At Buffalo Raceway, Merrie Adios won the $1,500 handicap pace by five lengths, coming up from seventh place. John Patterson drove the winner home in 2:15 3-5 over a slow track, paying $10.-20. Scotch Kate was second and Irish Senator third.

Harry Grayson's Scoreboard

NEW YORK — (NEA) — This is the time of year when the hitters are catching up with the pitchers in baseball.

Week-end golfers are polishing clubs. Tennis rackets are being restrung, boatmen are refitting and more three-year-old colts look mediocre with each start.

You hear little of the college football players and coaches. Yet this is the moment of truth for them. Spring practice is either just finishing or squads are smack dab in the middle of it throughout the land. Everywhere but in the sacrosanct Ivy League, where because of pressure of students in the fall, it is needed most.

Spring drills are college football's laboratory. Every coach agrees that the varsity is fashioned in the spring and in the two weeks of intensive preparation in September. Ivy League character builders rightfully complain that they haven't time to do this as thoroughly as they would like.

ANY KNOWLEDGEABLE FOOTBALL man knows that coaches devoting their lives to it have to concentrate to keep up with the fluid strategy of the most complicated of combat games. Then how can the Ivy League presidents expect undergraduates to grasp this, as well as the techniques and skills of the roughest and toughest of games, in 20 days of spring practice and two weeks in the autumn?

Hardened professionals go into training camps in late July, go through intensive maneuvers for three weeks before being deployed in the first exhibition game. Preferred athletes with as much as eight seasons of high school and college play in back of them are given one, two and three campaigns to find themselves. Passers are given longer than that to find their eye.

College teams are made and remade during spring practice. This is the first time the varsity coaching staff gets any kind of a look at upcoming sophomores. These are the blocks of granite and mail carriers of the next three years. Casting them properly is of tremendous importance.

MAKING THINGS MORE DIFFICULT for the coaching staff, this also is the recruiting period. Coaches talk to many a high school kid, members of his family and his friends in rounding up the nucleus of a sustained squad of 90 or more. With all this, workouts and over-all planning, spring means an 18-hour work day, with the perusal of movies running far into the night.

The regular college season runs no longer than nine weeks. There no longer is time to experiment once the bell rings, and it is no time to make mistakes. Not so many years ago, major teams scheduled a breather or two to give the big team time to get ready. This plan was tossed out of the window. The varsity must now come up ready. It is likely to tackle its most formidable opponent on opening day.

It's make or break for the college team in spring practice.

Without it, Ivy League teams necessarily have to start considerably shy.

Reading Routs Yankee Pheenom

Howie Kitt impressed the New York Yankees so much that they dished out a reported $75,000 for the pitcher, then sent him off to Binghamton of the Ciss A Eastern League to make his professional debut.

Kitt, in making his debut Thursday night against Reading, apparently didn't impress the Indians. They went on the warpath, chasing him in the fifth inning with four runs which hoisted them to a 9-2 victory over Binghamton in the opener of a doubleheader. In the 4 1-3 innings Kitt worked he gave up five runs and six hits. Frank Smith picked up the win, his second.

Springfield defeated Johnstown 8-1.

Appeal Brings Forth Many Questions

JFK's Self-Censorship Bid To Newspapers Not Very Clear

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and members of his administration suggest the American press, for the sake of national security, might practice self-censorship of the news.

It is not clear: (1) Whether the administration has thought this through; (2) Whether it is uneasy about the amount of information being printed on American foreign involvements or (3) Whether the administration is planning to take some foreign action soon.

Activity Speculated

But the idea is to keep the Communist world from learning every American move, even though this might deprive the American public of information vitally affecting it. Kennedy made the proposal in a speech Thursday night in New York.

Unusual White House activity—a series of top level conferences—in recent days has caused some speculation that the President may be considering some foreign action, such as intervention to save Laos or South Viet Nam, or some move involving Cuba.

In the past week members of the administration have complained some misinformation was printed about Cuba. But no one has done more to confuse information on Cuba than administration officials who talked anonymously and contradicted each other.

But the question of how much thinking Kennedy has done on the subject before suggesting self-censorship by the American press is caused by an episode earlier this week.

On Monday and Tuesday Kennedy and some of his top men talked in the State Department auditorium to newspaper editors gathered from around the country. The purpose was to give them a fill-in on America's foreign problems.

But the administration laid down a rule before the talks began: Although what the officials said could be reported, none of them could be identified by name as saying any of it.

Their remarks could only be attributed to "high officials" or "authoritative sources." Thus newspaper readers were deprived of full information. They were left to wonder who each "high official" was and who was responsible for saying what.

But at the same time the Washington Post reported the administration let a correspondent from the Polish Communist party daily Tribuna Ludu, sit in with the American editors to hear what the administration officials were saying.

U.S. Baffled, Reds Not

So, while American readers were left baffled about who said what, the Communist world was in a position to get a complete fill-in on everything said, with each speaker identified for the Communist bosses back home.

Self-censorship was suggested by one of the officials who talked to the editors. Then Thursday night Kennedy devoted a whole speech to it in his talk to the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The President, pointing out that this country is in a deadly struggle with communism, which can impose secrecy on its every move suggested that editors, when trying to decide whether to use a certain story, ask themselves not only, "Is it news?" but also, "Is it in the national interest?"

Kennedy said he himself has no intention of suggesting government censorship and he said he wants no one in his administration to interpret his remarks Thursday night as a license to censor news.

But this week they did in effect impose a limited kind of censorship in two different ways:

1. When administration officials talked about the Cuban disaster to the editors but would not permit what they said to be attributed to them by name.

2. When other key administration men talked to groups of reporters about the cause of the Cuban invasion failure and again, while permitting use of what they said, would not permit use of their names as saying it.

Not Clearest Speech

The result of this anonymity—because one "high official" contradicted what another "high official" said—was a first class information mess.

While the Kennedy administration itself may not have been confused by events its officials talked about, it managed to create confusion.

This New York speech will not be remembered as one of Kennedy's clearest. While he said "this administration intends to be candid about its errors," it has not been candid about the errors in the Cuban invasion.

And although the President said, "I have complete confidence in the response and dedication of our citizens whenever they are fully informed," the kind of self-censorship he suggests would keep the citizenry less than fully informed.

Jobless Picture Improves

Spring Projects, Steel Gains Tonic for Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Spring construction projects and an upturn in steel production has given employment in the economically depressed Buffalo area a shot in the arm.

Industry sources said Thursday that an estimated 100 men a day are being called back by area steel mills as idle open hearths are relighted. The spokesman said about 1,000 men have returned to work.

Area unemployment reached 12.1 per cent of the total labor force in mid-February and the U. S. Department of Labor placed the Erie-Niagara County metropolitan area on its list of most depressed areas.

The picture brightened slightly, however, and by mid-March unemployment had dropped to 11.8 per cent of the labor force. Labor Department officials said April figures were not available but they predicted continued improvement.

Unemployment in the entire Buffalo labor market, with a force of 510,700, was 60,300 last month. The hardest-hit single field was primary metals.

The Buffalo area is producing steel at 56.2 per cent of capacity, on the basis of furnaces in operation, compared with 31.8 per cent at the low point during the winter. The plants normally operate their newest, biggest and most efficient furnaces, however, so these figures are not entirely representative.

On Price-Fixing Inquiry

Kefauver Would Reopen Charges Against GE Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., called today for the reopening of a Justice Department investigation of price-fixing charges against Arthur F. Vinson, a top General Electric Co. executive.

Vinson originally was among GE officials indicted on price-fixing charges, but the Justice Department dropped the case against him after further investigation. It said it was unable to substantiate the charges.

Conflicting Testimony

Kefauver said conflicting testimony received by the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, which he heads, requires a reevaluation of information already gathered by the department and a new search for additional facts.

His comments were made to newsmen in advance of further questioning of Raymond W. Smith, a former GE department manager who was called as a surprise witness by the subcommittee late Thursday in the midst of Vinson's testimony.

Vinson, a GE vice president responsible for directing major divisions of the company, denied he had instructed subordinates to participate in illegal price-fixing meetings with competitors.

He also swore that, prior to a federal grand jury investigation in the fall of 1959, he was unaware that they had done so.

This was in conflict with the testimony of four previous witnesses, all former GE executives who pleaded guilty to government charges of price fixing and who subsequently were forced to resign after first being demoted at a heavy loss of pay.

To Check for Perjury

Kefauver said that a transcript of the clashing testimony would be sent to the Justice Department "to be examined for the possibility of perjury."

The four witnesses whose testimony Vinson denied were George E. Burens, former general manager of GE's switchgear and control division, and Clarence E. Burke, Frank E. Stehlik and H. Frank Hentschel — all formerly department managers in Burnes' division.

Smith, who was general manager of GE's transformer division in Pittsfield, Mass., was suddenly called as a witness after Vinson's denial that he had known of price-fixing activities by subordinates.

"Is it your belief that Arthur Vinson knew that you and your colleagues were meeting with competitors?" Smith was asked.

"It is my belief that he knew I was meeting with competitors," he testified.

Smith pleaded guilty to government charges of price fixing, was fined $3,000 and given a one-month suspended jail sentence. He resigned from GE on Nov. 30, 1959.

Appeal Brings Forth Many Questions

JFK's Self-Censorship Bid To Newspapers Not Very Clear

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and members of his administration suggest the American press, for the sake of national security, might practice self-censorship of the news.

It is not clear: (1) Whether the administration has thought this through; (2) Whether it is uneasy about the amount of information being printed on American foreign involvements or (3) Whether the administration is planning to take some foreign action soon.

Activity Speculated

But the idea is to keep the Communist world from learning every American move, even though this might deprive the American public of information vitally affecting it. Kennedy made the proposal in a speech Thursday night in New York.

Unusual White House activity—a series of top level conferences—in recent days has caused some speculation that the President may be considering some foreign action, such as intervention to save Laos or South Viet Nam, or some move involving Cuba.

In the past week members of the administration have complained some misinformation was printed about Cuba. But no one has done more to confuse information on Cuba than administration officials who talked anonymously and contradicted each other.

But the question of how much thinking Kennedy has done on the subject before suggesting self-censorship by the American press is caused by an episode earlier this week.

On Monday and Tuesday Kennedy and some of his top men talked in the State Department auditorium to newspaper editors gathered from around the country. The purpose was to give them a fill-in on America's foreign problems.

But the administration laid down a rule before the talks began: Although what the officials said could be reported, none of them could be identified by name as saying any of it.

Their remarks could only be attributed to "high officials" or "authoritative sources." Thus newspaper readers were deprived of full information. They were left to wonder who each "high official" was and who was responsible for saying what.

But at the same time the Washington Post reported the administration let a correspondent from the Polish Communist party daily Tribuna Ludu, sit in with the American editors to hear what the administration officials were saying.

U.S. Baffled, Reds Not

So, while American readers were left baffled about who said what, the Communist world was in a position to get a complete fill-in on everything said, with each speaker identified for the Communist bosses back home.

Self-censorship was suggested by one of the officials who talked to the editors. Then Thursday night Kennedy devoted a whole speech to it in his talk to the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The President, pointing out that this country is in a deadly struggle with communism, which can impose secrecy on its every move suggested that editors, when trying to decide whether to use a certain story, ask themselves not only, "Is it news?" but also, "Is it in the national interest?"

Kennedy said he himself has no intention of suggesting government censorship and he said he wants no one in his administration to interpret his remarks Thursday night as a license to censor news.

But this week they did in effect impose a limited kind of censorship in two different ways:

1. When administration officials talked about the Cuban disaster to the editors but would not permit what they said to be attributed to them by name.

2. When other key administration men talked to groups of reporters about the cause of the Cuban invasion failure and again, while permitting use of what they said, would not permit use of their names as saying it.

Not Clearest Speech

The result of this anonymity—because one "high official" contradicted what another "high official" said—was a first class information mess.

While the Kennedy administration itself may not have been confused by events its officials talked about, it managed to create confusion.

This New York speech will not be remembered as one of Kennedy's clearest. While he said "this administration intends to be candid about its errors," it has not been candid about the errors in the Cuban invasion.

And although the President said, "I have complete confidence in the response and dedication of our citizens whenever they are fully informed," the kind of self-censorship he suggests would keep the citizenry less than fully informed.

Jobless Picture Improves

Spring Projects, Steel Gains Tonic for Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Spring construction projects and an upturn in steel production has given employment in the economically depressed Buffalo area a shot in the arm.

Industry sources said Thursday that an estimated 100 men a day are being called back by area steel mills as idle open hearths are relighted. The spokesman said about 1,000 men have returned to work.

Area unemployment reached 12.1 per cent of the total labor force in mid-February and the U. S. Department of Labor placed the Erie-Niagara County metropolitan area on its list of most depressed areas.

The picture brightened slightly, however, and by mid-March unemployment had dropped to 11.8 per cent of the labor force. Labor Department officials said April figures were not available but they predicted continued improvement.

Unemployment in the entire Buffalo labor market, with a force of 510,700, was 60,300 last month. The hardest-hit single field was primary metals.

The Buffalo area is producing steel at 56.2 per cent of capacity, on the basis of furnaces in operation, compared with 31.8 per cent at the low point during the winter. The plants normally operate their newest, biggest and most efficient furnaces, however, so these figures are not entirely representative.

To Check for Perjury

Kefauver said that a transcript of the clashing testimony would be sent to the Justice Department "to be examined for the possibility of perjury."

The four witnesses whose testimony Vinson denied were George E. Burens, former general manager of GE's switchgear and control division, and Clarence E. Burke, Frank E. Stehlik and H. Frank Rentschel — all formerly department managers in Burnes' division.

Smith, who was general manager of GE's transformer division in Pittsfield, Mass., was suddenly called as a witness after Vinson's denial that he had known of price-fixing activities by subordinates.

"Is it your belief that Arthur Vinson knew that you and your colleagues were meeting with competitors?" Smith was asked.

"It is my belief that he knew I was meeting with competitors," he testified.

Smith pleaded guilty to government charges of price fixing, was fined $3,000 and given a one-month suspended jail sentence. He resigned from GE on Nov. 30, 1959.

Blast Injures 9 Pupils, Teacher

WARWICK, N. Y. (AP)—An explosion during an experiment in a science laboratory of the Warwick Valley High School Thursday injured nine pupils and a teacher.

Still reported in serious condition today at Horton Hospital, Middletown, were the teacher, Charles Carter, 27, and eighth-grade pupils Gayle Lempka and Craig Gustafson, both 13. A hospital spokesman said, however, there was "a slight improvement" in all three cases.

Eight other children escaped injury when the blast from a chemical mixture blew out six windows in the room and tore a hole in the ceiling.

Treated at Warwick Hospital were Paul Kubli, Barry Heil, Joseph Grogan, Kathleen Lupino, Vicki Olmedo, Harold Hansen, and Joyce Kusek.

Collision Is Fatal

PORT JERVIS, N. Y. (AP)—Clarence Stearns, 69, of nearby Milford, Pa., was killed early today in a highway accident on Route 42 just outside Port Jervis.

Stearns' pickup truck and a large trailer-truck collided.

$50,000 Orange Fire

CHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Fire destroyed 10 connecting, wooden bungalows at an unoccupied summer colony near this Orange County community early today.

Damage was estimated at $50,000. There were no injuries.

The cause of the fire was undetermined.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg acknowledges that a probe has been ordered of Canadian labor in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls area of New York State.

Think Orders Bought With Counterfeits

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Two men have tried to cash part of $75,000 worth of Western Union money orders that police believe were purchased with counterfeit bills in Ohio and Western New York.

Police said Thursday the money orders were bought in Cleveland and Akron, Ohio, and in Niagara Falls, N.Y., as well as other cities, with counterfeit $50 and $100 bills.

A man tried to redeem the orders Wednesday night but a local Western Union office employe told him he didn't have enough cash on hand to cover them. The man did not return Thursday.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie comeback story of the year is being written by Walt Disney, in the red last year and now enjoying four hits in a row.

Disney is the envy and wonder of his fellow producers. Not only is he rolling in hits. He also has gone against the trend toward sex and sadism in films.

The movie wizard was observed at close hand in his office at the start of one of his busy days. He had already been on a lot tour before most of his workers had arrived. His day would be spent planning and checking every phase of studio projects.

"Having these hits worries me," he said over his coffee. "Everybody at the studio gets happy and I spend my time pulling them down from the ceilng to get to work.

"Last year, the film business was off and we had a lot of expensive pictures, so we didn't do so well. Then everybody was down in the dumps and I had to boost them up and tell them we've been through these periods before."

Disney's golden string started with "Swiss Family Robinson," made for $4½ million and expected to gross $7-8 million domestically. Then came "101 Dalmatians," costing $3½ million with $6½-7 domestic gross in sight.

He expects "The Absent-Minded Professor" to be his biggest moneymaker so far; it could go to $12 million in this country with a $2.1 million cost. Previewers have already classified his next, "Parent Trap," a surefire hit.

"It's all very nice, but I really don't concern myself too much with how the pictures do," Disney said. "Most of my thinking is two years ahead."

These are the projects in his future book: "Babes in Toyland," his first live-action musical; "Moon Pilot," a comedy about space travel; "Bon Voyage," a comedy about a family touring Europe; "Big Red," about a boy, a man and a dog in Canada; "The Castaways," a Jules Verne adventure. Also in the works is a cartoon feature, "The Sword and the Stone."

Protestant-Catholic

BALTIMORE (AP)—Protestants and Roman Catholics are working together here in a drive against slot machines in southern Maryland. The so-called "one-arm bandits" are legal there, and in Nevada.

Think Orders Bought With Counterfeits

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Two men have tried to cash part of $75,000 worth of Western Union money orders that police believe were purchased with counterfeit bills in Ohio and Western New York.

Police said Thursday the money orders were bought in Cleveland and Akron, Ohio, and in Niagara Falls, N.Y., as well as other cities, with counterfeit $50 and $100 bills.

A man tried to redeem the orders Wednesday night but a local Western Union office employe told him he didn't have enough cash on hand to cover them. The man did not return Thursday.
